Youth-aid bureau faces relocation if land deal OK'd

Omni-House: Youth Services Bureau, 57 S. Wolf Rd., may be relocating next summer. A Glenview realty firm has applied for business zoning on the Wolf Road site and will purchase the land if zoning is approved.

Three officers to change jobs

Changes in the duty assignments among the three lieutenants in the Wheeling Police Dept. were announced Monday by Chief Peter Guttilla.

Lt. Theodore Bracke, head of the detective bureau for several years, will be replaced by either Lt. Thomas Conte or Lt. Ronald Nelson effective Dec. 1. Reportedly the decision on which man has not yet been made by Guttilla. Bracke will switch assignments with the man who replaces him.

Effective Sept. 1, Conte and Nelson will switch their assignments. Conte will become head of the service division and Nelson will become head of the field or patrol division. Each man has held those assignments in the past.

Guttilla was unavailable for comment; however, Nelson said the aim of the changes is to familiarize all three lieutenants with the operation of all three sections of the police department.

Wheeling principal receives doctorate

Wheeling High School principal Thomas W. Shirley has received his doctorate in philosophy in school administration from Northwestern University.

His dissertation examined the values of several schools' administrators and how well these values were perceived by the schools' teachers.

Shirley graduated from Illinois State University, Normal, in 1952 with a bachelor's degree in mathematics. He received his master's degree in 1956 from the same university. Shirley has been principal at Wheeling since 1965. He also is a captain in the Naval Reserve and secretary of the Rotary Club of Wheeling.

Richard (Ned) Lyko & Associates has asked that the Omni-House property be rezoned from residential special use to business zoning for professional offices. The request was to be considered Monday night by the village board.

According to the petition for rezoning, the contract purchase price on the property is $92,500. The owners are Earl and Anita Jensen, who formerly lived in the red-brick ranch home on the site.

The Jensens obtained the residential special use zoning on the property last year that allowed Omni-House to move in. The counseling agency signed a lease last January to rent the house for one year with the option of renewing the agreement for an additional six months.

PETER DIGRE, Omni-House executive director, said Monday the counseling agency will continue to rent the house until the option expires next July.

If Lyko & Associates purchase the property, Digre said the decision facing the Omni-House board of directors will be whether to seek another location for one central office or set up several branch facilities in the area.

Omni-House serves Wheeling, Buffalo Grove, Arlington Heights, Prospect Heights and Mount Prospect.

Digre said Omni-House had an opportunity to bid on the property, but decided against making a large real estate investment in favor of using available funds to provide services.

"We could have bid if we had wanted to," he said, "but we didn't want to get strapped with a large debt for capital development while we're trying to go on with programs. We decided it would be better to keep the money in programs."

DIGRE ALSO SAID it was understood when the original lease was signed on the property that it might be sold after 18 months.

"We took it knowing that it could be an 18-month deal and I'll admit we have a problem — this is an ideal location and we don't like the idea of leaving," he said.

In discussing the future home for Omni-House, Digre said he favors establishing branch offices, but the cost of maintaining more than one agency might be prohibitive.

"Because branches would mean greater overhead costs, we're a little leery about it, but we do want to be closer to some of the neighborhoods we serve," he said.

The main priority in the search for one or more new locations will be finding as much usable space as possible for the lowest cost.

OMNI-HOUSE: YOUTH Services Bureau, presently renting this house at 57 S. Wolf Rd., may be moving to a new location next summer. A Glenview realty firm is seeking to change the zoning on the property to allow offices. If the firm gets the zoning, it will buy the property for $92,500.

Senior citizen units an exception

Village to limit multiple housing

by LYNN ASINOF
Developers of multiple-family housing projects will find it difficult to win approval of their plans in Wheeling, according to village officials.

Village board members said Monday they expect to limit the number of apartments, condominiums and townhouses built in Wheeling.

Their statements came in reaction to a report that 61.43 per cent of all housing in Wheeling is multiple-family. The report was prepared by Thomas Markus, administrative assistant.

Trustee Ronald Bruhn said he was not surprised that there are so many multiple-family units in Wheeling. He said, however, he does not plan to vote for more multi-family projects unless they have a special need, such as senior citizen housing.

"FOR CONDOMINIUMS and so forth, unless it is an extremely specialized type thing, I won't be voting for it," Bruhn said.

Noting that the village has not approved any multiple-family projects in several months, Bruhn said the village has neared the saturation point. He said, however, the village can maintain a proper balance by promoting single-family proper balance by promoting single-family homes for the remaining vacant village land.

"Growth goes in cycles. I think we're starting a new cycle of housing," he said.

Trustee Donald Jackson suggested the village seek professional planning help in developing policies that will restrict the amount of multiple-family development.

"There are some obvious ways of doing it by more restrictive policies and so forth," he said. "But rather than bring all development to a complete halt, I would rather get some professional help in the areas of community planning so we can proceed."

NOTING THE NEED for long range planning, Jackson said he was glad Markus' report pointed out the direction of Wheeling's development. "The reason I became involved in village government was to put a stop to this kind of thing," he said.

Trustee John Koeppen said he will ask for a further breakdown of Wheeling's housing to determine how many units are rental and how many are actually for sale. He said the report does not sound as bad once the amount of for-sale housing is taken into consideration.

"You can't classify a renter with a buyer," Koeppen said of the developments' impact on the need for village services. He said he will ask Markus to break down the number of multiple-family units into condominiums, townhouses and apartments, saying this will give the board a better picture.

Nonetheless, Koeppen said he plans to take a good look at any multiple-family project that is proposed, and indicated it will probably be more difficult for such projects to win village approval.

TRUSTEE ALBERT LANG said he thinks the village has been gradually moving towards a harder line on multiple-family projects. He said, however, he had not realized how many multi-family units had been built.

Apartment cleanup cost: $2,200

by JOHN MAES

The owner of the buildings that include a townhouse at 529-J W. Dover Dr., will be billed for the $2,200 it cost the city to haul tons of garbage from the apartment during the weekend.

Wallace Schaeffer, deputy commissioner of public works for Des Plaines, said Monday the bill would be turned over to Robert Lubin, of Lubin Management Corp., owners of the 22-unit complex on the city's west side.

Schaeffer said his crews spent 15½ hours Friday and Saturday shoveling mounds of assorted trash and human excrement from the townhouse.

The tenant, Wayne Cleghorn, 38, was arrested last week by Des Plaines police and charged with violating a city ordinance for creating a public nuisance.

CITY WORKERS boarded up the residence after finishing the massive cleanup operation late Saturday afternoon. City Health Director Jean Branding said Lubin will also be given a deadline for "cleaning and extermination."

Residents of the development and his employer said Cleghorn was neat in appearance and had no idea he lived among heaps of garbage.

"He was a good man, no problems with him at all," said Nick Tarant, owner of Happy Foods, 4816 Oakton, Skokie, where Cleghorn worked for almost five years before he quit several days ago.

Cleghorn has a wife and three children, but they were not living in the apartment when police arrested him after responding to a call of a break-in at the address.

Mrs. Cleghorn works as an obstetrical nurse in Chicago, police said.

THE CLEGHORNS kept their windows and door shut all the time and those neighbors who noticed the odor thought it was sewage rather than the heaping debris accumulating in the house.

Pieces of paper were stuffed under the rear door of the residence and were stuck over a door window blocked in apparent attempts to cover up the mess inside.

ALTHOUGH SOME neighbors said they had complained to city health officials about an odor several months ago, Mrs. Branding said she received no "specific" complaints about the 259-J apartment other than general nuisance-abatement complaints that she said came from all over the city.

Lubin could not be reached for comment yesterday and Mrs. Cleghorn, when contacted, refused to answer questions about how long it had been since she had been in the apartment and why it was in such condition.

"I don't have anything to say," she said.

Hundreds of tax bills undelivered

Tax bills for several hundred homeowners in the New Town section of Mount Prospect are being delayed because the bills were mistakenly sent to the homeowners' discontinued Prospect Heights addresses. The bills were returned to the county treasurer marked "undeliverable" by the post office. Street names and numbers in New Town were changed after the area was annexed by Mount Prospect in 1971. Despite the delay, property owners must still meet the Sept. 16 tax payment deadline.

Luisada backs public transit

The need for public transportation in the Northwest suburbs is as great today as it ever was, says Claude Luisada, the man who tried but failed to run a profitable commuter bus service in Arlington Heights. "The two biggest misconceptions are that we don't need public transportation and that nobody's going to ride it even if we do have it," says Luisada. The door is open for a bus company backed by the Regional Transportation Authority to provide suburban mass transit, he says. "I don't think we ruined it for the future for Arlington Heights. I know we didn't leave our passengers with a bad taste in their mouths," said Luisada.

Multi-family housing threatened

Prospective developers may have a tough time getting multiple-family projects approved in Wheeling as a result of disclosure that 81 per cent of existing housing units are apartments or townhouses. "I didn't realize that we had that many in, and I don't like to see any more come in," said one village trustee. But, said Village Pres. Ted C. Scanlon, "I feel that this is all that builders want to build and I don't know how we're going to stop it."

Teacher settlement probable

A contract settlement for Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15 teachers now appears likely this week. A meeting was scheduled Monday, and Frank Whitley, Dist. 15 superintendent, said agreement was possible. The district has been pulled off the Illinois Education Assn.'s "critical" list. Thomas Kelly, who heads the teacher negotiating team, said he sees no threat of a strike. The teachers' wage hike request has dropped from an original 18 per cent to the 11-13 per cent level.

Finds $1,109, gets 'thank you'

Kyle E. Mock, 600 Oriole Ln., found a bag with $1,109.14 in it Saturday evening in the Randhurst Shopping Center parking lot. He took the bag to the Mount Prospect police station. As it was explained shortly thereafter, the bank bag was filled with receipts from LePetit Cafe, a restaurant inside the shopping center, 899 N. Elmhurst Rd. An agent for the restaurant, Richard S. Fenton, had placed the bag on the roof of his car, while he unlocked the car door. He then drove off forgetting the bag which fell off as the car moved. Fenton's destination was the nearby First National Bank of Mount Prospect. Mock received a simple "thank you" for his honesty, according to police.

Parks finance group named

The Arlington Heights Park District is naming members to special citizens' committee charged with solving the district's financial problems. One option is dissolving the district and turning most of its functions over to the Arlington Heights village government. "We want to give them the broad ability to look at all methods of financing recreation," said Kay Muller, district vice president who heads a liaison group that will deal with the committee. "We purposely did not tie it to the district specifically."

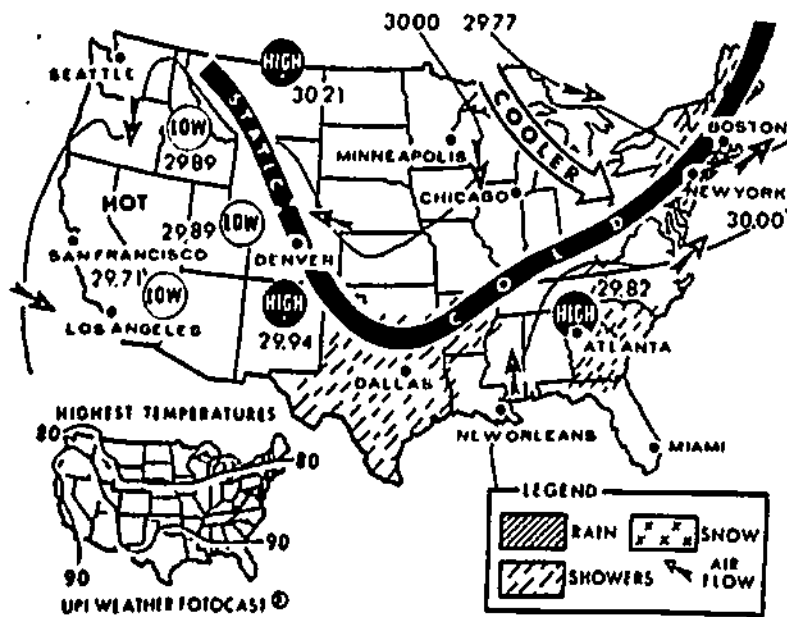

Maryville bids may be let soon

Architects in charge of the new Maryville school project are still hopeful of letting construction bids by October. Last week, the Illinois Capital Development Board, which will provide funding for the school, approved about 40 per cent of design drawings completed so far. Chief architect Anthony J. Siros said he is hopeful the board will complete its review in only one more session. The new building will replace the present school operated by River Trails Dist. 26 at Maryville Academy in Des Plaines.

Omni-House may lose home

Omni-House, Youth Services Bureau, a Wheeling counseling agency, may have to move. A Glenview realty firm will buy the property from Omni-House's landlord if rezoning is approved for an office building. Omni-House will stay in its present building until its lease runs out in July, according to Peter Digre, executive director.

Justice Dept. lawyers to make review

Lottery may be illegal after all

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Justice Dept. lawyers will decide in two to three weeks whether to recommend a crackdown on state lotteries as violators of federal gambling laws, an official said Monday.

In the view of some officials, strict enforcement would mean criminal prosecution of state officials in the 13 states that have lotteries even though their operations are sponsored by state governments under valid state laws.

One such official is Peter Mills, U.S. attorney for Maine, who has spread concern among states and surprised his superiors by pledging to enforce the letter of federal law.

But the Justice Dept. has called for a moratorium on prosecution while its criminal division lawyers study the complex relation of federal law to state law and come up with a recommendation.

Assistant Atty. Gen. W. Vincent Rakestraw, in charge of the legislative affairs division, said this review is expected to be completed within two to three weeks. He said Atty. Gen. William B. Saxbe "will carry out the decision."

In Rakestraw's view, the state operated lotteries are in "apparent violation of a variety of federal criminal statutes," as he advised Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, D-Me., last month.

LOTTERIES ARE NOW operated in five of the six New England states; Vermont is the exception, and in New York, New Jersey, Maryland, Delaware, Pennsylvania and Michigan. Lotteries have just gotten under way here in Illinois and in Ohio.

Federal statutes outlaw most interstate aspects of the operations such as use of the mails or broadcast advertising, and also forbid participation by federal banks as selling or payoff agents.

William S. Lynch, chief of the Justice Department's organized crime and racketeering section, said he would like Congress to clear up federal-state conflict by amending federal law.

Lynch testified last April before a House Judiciary subcommittee in favor of a bill that he believes would solve a number of the most pressing legal problems.

"Neither this nor other administrations have taken a position that a lottery is a good thing or a bad thing," Lynch said. But he said the department seeks to protect policies states set for themselves.

Certification at issue

Two Dwyer teachers to appeal releases

by WANDALYN RICE

The two uncertificated teachers cut from the staff of Dwyer School Saturday hope to appeal their cases to State School Supt. Michael Bakalis so they can get their jobs back.

Michael Biskupski, one of the two uncertificated teachers who taught in the Dwyer junior high school program last year, said he and Bryan Smith will contact Bakalis in an effort to get provisional certification as special education teachers. The Dwyer program is for emotionally disturbed children.

Biskupski said both he and Smith have completed course work required for regular secondary school teaching certificates and that they had hoped to qualify for provisional certification as special education teachers.

The two did not receive the certification, however, and Saturday the Northwest Educational Cooperative governing board indicated the two would not be hired this year.

"It's not the board's fault," Biskupski said, "but I'm going to do everything I can to get Bryan's and my job back. I'm going to contact Bakalis directly."

OFFICIALS IN Bakalis's office, however, said Monday that the state has not been issuing provisional certificates since 1972, because of the surplus of qualified teachers.

The alleged lack of qualifications of Biskupski and Smith was one of the issues in a series of charges made about the operation of Dwyer by a group of teachers who went to Cook County School Supt. Richard Martwick last spring. In addition, the teachers charged that children in the program were beaten with large wooden paddles and that the program's director John Whipple was unqualified for his job.

Officials from Martwick's office said Monday they have asked John Wightman, special education director for NEC, and Robert Taylor, coordinator of the Dwyer elementary program, to come into their office this week to discuss the charges. NEC officials said the two will be accompanied by Roger Bardwell, acting NEC executive director.

Officials from Martwick's office did not indicate whether any action against Wightman or Taylor is planned, saying only that Martwick wants to question the two about the charges. Earlier this month, Martwick suspended the certificate which allows Whipple to practice as a psychologist in the schools for one year and recommended that his certificate be revoked. Whipple is appealing the action.

ALSO MONDAY, Barbara Hickey, one of the teachers who made the charges about the program, said she has resigned from her job as learning disability teacher at the school because she felt she would be "uncomfortable" if she continued to work there.

Tax collection fee law signed by Walker

Gov. Daniel Walker yesterday signed into law a bill which will allow counties to charge a fee when they collect taxes for other units of government. Counties had previously been empowered to charge a 3 per cent collector's fee for extending the taxes levied by special-purpose districts within their boundaries. That power, however, was removed by the 1970 state constitution. The new law permits a charge equal only to the cost of collection.

Review Socialist Workers party scratch

An attorney for the state Board of Elections said yesterday the board may have erred last week in ruling that Socialist Workers party candidates may not appear on the November ballot. Michael Levinson, attorney for the board, said he is reviewing petitions submitted by the party state to determine if the board ruled correctly in refusing to grant the party a position on the ballot.

Rail hazardous material law delayed

U.S. District Court Judge Bernard Decker yesterday extended for 30 days an order preventing the Illinois Commerce Commission from enforcing new regulations affecting rail movement of hazardous materials. The extension was granted at the request of 25 railroads which filed suit against the ICC. Christopher Mills, attorney for the Chicago & North Western Transportation Co., said if the new regulations take effect, railroads will not be able to move hazardous materials in Illinois. He said that would include everything from fertilizer to peanut butter under pressure.

Ford announces recall for emission defect

The Ford Motor Co. yesterday announced it is recalling 282,000 of its 1973 and 1974 model cars to replace a part in the emission control system that may fall after extended use. Vehicles affected are 1973 and early 1974 Moverick, Comet, Torino, Montego, Mustang and Ranchero models with the 250-cubic inch, or 200-cubic inch engines with automatic transmissions. It is not known how many owners will respond to the recall, since a malfunction in the anti-pollution gear could actually improve fuel economy.

'Male chauvinist' roasted on Equality Day

Monday was official National Women's Equality Day in the United States by virtue of a proclamation signed Thursday by President Ford to mark the 54th anniversary of passage of the women's suffrage amendment. Unofficially, however, most women attended their jobs, and/or homes as they did any other day, although there was vocal support for women's rights. In Knoxville, Tenn., women held a picnic and roasted a "male chauvinist" pig. In New York, a woman dressed as Mary, "Mother of God," hung a proclamation urging Equal Rights passage on St. Patrick's Cathedral.

Evers pleads innocent of tax charges

Fayette Mayor Charles Evers yesterday pleaded innocent in Biloxi, Miss., to charges of evading $52,814 in federal income taxes during a three-year period. Evers and his former wife, Nan, entered the pleas during a five-minute arraignment before U.S. District Court Judge Dan M. Russell Jr.

Israeli military test called successful

Israel's chief of staff, Lt. Gen. Mordechai Gur said yesterday he put frontline forces on a precautionary alert against attack during a 22-hour practice mobilization of reservists... a move condemned by the country's Arab neighbors. He pronounced the drill successful. In Cairo, meanwhile, two huge American navy salvage cranes arrived at the Suez Canal to begin clearing the waterway of sunken ships and debris that have kept it shut since the 1967 Arab-Israeli war.

Cargo plane crashes in Cambodia

A C-46 cargo plane carrying 10 passengers and two American crewmen crashed into the sea yesterday shortly after takeoff from an airport 134 miles southwest of Phnom Penh in strong winds and overcast skies. A passing ship pulled all 10 passengers, the pilot and co-pilot from the water. It was not known if anyone was injured. On the Cambodian battlefield meanwhile, Cambodian troops killed 13 rebel soldiers in the third consecutive day of heavy fighting for control of Anlong Chen Island, about six miles southeast of Phnom Penh.

Guinea granted independence Sept. 10

Portugal granted independence to its west African territory of Guinea effective Sept. 10 and started bringing home its troops yesterday, ending five centuries as part of the West's last remaining colonial empire. The new Portuguese government that took power after a coup April 25 also promised eventual independence to Lisbon's other two African territories, Mozambique and Angola.

Koreans demonstrate against Japanese

Thousands of Koreans took part in anti-Japanese demonstrations for the seventh consecutive day yesterday while lawmakers demanded strong diplomatic action against Japan in connection with the attempt to assassinate President Park Chung-hee. Park was unharmed, but a bullet fatally wounded his wife during the attack on Aug. 15.

Prices mixed in moderate trading

After a topsy-turvy session on the New York Stock Exchange, stock prices closed mixed in moderate trading. An afternoon buying spree erased morning losses, but then petered out as the final bell neared. The Dow Jones average finished the day up 1.33 to 688.13, following a drop of more than 12 points in the morning. Standard & Poor's index rose 0.61 to 72.16. The price of an average common share gained 17 cents. Declines led advances 794 to 627 among 1,809 issues traded.

Lindbergh, the 'Lone Eagle' dies of cancer

HONOLULU (UPI) — Charles A. Lindbergh, the "Lone Eagle" who electrified the world by flying alone across the Atlantic in 1927, died Monday in a small cottage overlooking the vast Pacific where he had gone "home" to spend his last days.

The 72-year-old Lindbergh, whose 33-hour flight in the "Spirit of St. Louis" captured the world's attention as nothing did again until astronauts landed on the moon, died at 7:15 a.m. Hawaiian time at Hana on the island of Maui of a malignant tumor of the lymphatic system.

His physician, Dr. Milton Howell, said Lindbergh spent the last weeks of his life planning his own funeral. He was to be buried in work clothes in a wooden coffin Monday. Funeral services were to be held in a century-old missionary church near his adopted Hawaiian home, with only close friends and his Hawaiian neighbors present.

Howell said Lindbergh made no last statement, but said "his final theme was that he would like for his actions in coming to Hana and having a simple funeral to be — in itself — a constructive act."

Lindbergh had been under treatment for the malignancy for several weeks at the Columbia-Presbyterian Medical Center in New York City in July.

He returned secretly to the island of Maui last week. When told he could go home to die, Lindbergh said he did not wish to go to his Connecticut home, but wanted to return to Maui "that is my home." His wife, Anne Morrow Lindbergh, and a son, Lind, were with him at the time of his death. He also is survived by four other children.

Lindbergh's incredible flight across the ocean in the tiny monoplane, "The Spirit of St. Louis," and his modest and unassuming personality made him one of the greatest heroes of the hero-worshipping 1920s and 1930s. It was precisely this wild acclaim that darkened his life in 1932 when an intruder climbed through a nursery window at Lindbergh's secluded mansion in Hopewell, N. J., and kidnapped his first-born son, Charles Jr., who was later found dead. The ensuing trial, which became a public spectacle, ended with the conviction and execution of a Bronx carpenter named Bruno Hauptmann.

Lindbergh lost public favor in the years preceding World War II by urging the U.S. to stay out of the mounting conflict in Europe. Nevertheless, he served as a "silent hero" in the war. Ostensibly a civilian, he flew on at least 50 combat missions in the Pacific.

Grocery prices to continue rising

Butz: no basis for panic buying

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz, cautioning against panic food buying, said Monday he expects grocery prices to continue rising in 1975 but at a pace well below the 15 per cent anticipated this year.

Butz said heavy U.S. cattle production should help hold the overall average food price jump next year to less than 10 per cent.

He also called for "full steam ahead" crop production next year to help in the long-range fight against inflation. Butz said no planting controls will be imposed on next year's grain and cotton crops.

Butz and a panel of economists held a news conference to outline their revised view of domestic and world food supplies and prices in light of sharp declines in U.S. crops due to summer droughts.

"There is absolutely no basis for panic about the food supply in 1974 and 1975," Butz said. The world has a far greater food reserve than most people realize, he said, because livestock herds in the United States and around the world are at peak levels.

Effects of the drought conditions prompted government economists to revise upward from 12 per cent to 15 per cent their estimate of the amount food prices will increase for this year as a whole. In 1973, they rose an average of 14.5 per cent.

Butz and his aides said the domestic food price outlook is filled with uncertainties such as weather conditions and the impact of inflation on food marketing and processing costs. Asked, however, for his assessment of the probably average price increase for all foods in 1975, Butz said, "At the moment, we don't anticipate anything like 10 per cent."

Meanwhile, President Ford met with his Cabinet to plan strategy for the administration's battle against inflation, which he has described as "Public Enemy No. 1."

The White House said Monday the President intends during next month's economic summit to explore ways to help the Americans hardest hit by inflation, but it warned against expecting miracles from the top-level meeting.

Administration officials set Sept. 27-28 for the unprecedented meeting of business, labor and government leaders seeking ways to ease the current inflationary crisis.

White House press secretary Jerry terHorst said Ford's economic advisers are "deeply concerned" about the sharply steeper foreign trade deficit reported for July, and said it "underscores the fact that this problem that has been with us so long is not going away overnight and that it would not be realistic to expect that the President could achieve a miracle."

Turks fire on Greeks along Evros River

From United Press International
Greek government sources said Turkish troops opened up with machinegun fire on Greek army positions along the tense Evros River border between the two countries Monday in the first frontier flareup since the beginning of the Cyprus crisis.

Greek sources in Alexandroupolis, near the border, said "Greek troops fanned out but did not return the Turkish machinegun bursts."

The sources said the incident took place at Telement near the village of Lykoffi, 40 miles north of Alexandroupolis.

The shooting came the day rival Greek and Turkish Cypriot leaders met in Nicosia for their first face-to-face discussions since Turkey invaded Cyprus July 20 and Greece and Turkey mobilized their armies.

In Athens, Greek Foreign Minister George Mavros informed Soviet Ambassador Igor Yezov that Greece had formally accepted the Soviet proposal for an expanded international conference to try to solve the Cyprus crisis, a government spokesman said.

The United States for the first time Monday expressed its opposition to the Russian plan in a State Department statement.

It calls for participation in Cyprus peace talks by the 15-member U. N. Security Council, including China and the U.S.S.R.

In Nicosia, U.N. Secretary General Kurt Waldheim said Greek Cypriot President Glafkos Clerides and Turkish Cypriot Vice President Rauf Danktash agreed to meet once every week on humanitarian issues as a first step to reconcile the two divided communities.

Lawmen trail convicts into mesquite thicket

STEPHENVILLE, Tex. (UPI) — Mud-spattered lawmen on horseback and in jeeps Monday trailed bloodhounds into a damp, dense North Texas mesquite thicket where three armed and violent convicts have hidden for the past two days.

As a siege mentality enveloped area citizens, Texas Ranger Capt. G. W. Burks, field commander for the more than 200 state and local police officers, warned that the tiring and dangerous vigil was far from over.

"As of 4 p.m. CDT the wanted subjects have not been seen for some eight hours," he told reporters. "But we believe they are still in the area and they will probably surface sometime tonight or tomorrow."

"We are going to maintain our perimeter, our roadblocks and checkpoints and our roving patrols throughout the night."

Fresh squads of lawmen were warned that the convicts could have as many as 40 guns and, "they'd just as soon kill anybody that gives them any trouble whatever."

The convicts murdered two persons, raped two young women and wounded five other persons in a 1,000-mile, four-day dash across three states from the Colorado State Penitentiary. They disappeared Sunday in the rolling farmland of North Texas.

"People are running scared," said Mike Maikell, sports editor of the Stephenville Empire Tribune. "Rumors are a dime a dozen. You can't buy a gun in this town for any price."

Persons living outside the city moved into motels or in with friends after police warnings.

Despite the tight cordon they had thrown around the area, law officers began to doubt they had the men trapped after going 30 hours without contact.

Kerner to make first bid for parole this October

• Former Illinois governor and U.S. Appeals Court judge Otto Kerner — who entered the federal penitentiary at Lexington, Ky., on July 29 — will make his first request for parole in October. That word came Monday from Thomas Patton, one of the lawyers who defended Kerner in the racetrack stock bribery trial that resulted in a three-year sentence for Kerner. A parole panel will hear the appeal, and if approved by the full U.S. Parole Board, Kerner could be freed in January. Normally, a prisoner must serve one-third of a sentence before being eligible for parole, but when U.S. District Court Judge Robert Taylor sentenced Kerner, he made him eligible immediately.

• The controversial speechwriter and staunch defender of former President Nixon — Rev. John J. McLaughlin — says he has a new sense of "excitement and peace" with President Ford in the White House. He admitted he felt "rage" in the waning Nixon days, with Nixon permitting a "mountain to grow out of a mole hill" until he had to go, but he still defended him as a "thoroughbred" with "a flawed personality."

• President Ford got a boost from former Republican presidential candidate Alfred M. Landon of Kansas, who said he told Ford by phone that he's off to a good start handling national affairs with dispatch and working with Congress. The only problem, said Landon, is that he's not sure why Ford called him, except maybe that he'll turn 87 on Sept. 7.

• The new American ambassador to Cyprus — William R. Crawford Jr. —

was sworn in Monday, just a week after the slaying of Rodger Davies in Nicosia. Deputy Secretary of State Robert Ingersoll, who conducted the ceremony, said such occasions are usually light moments, but "the lighter vein does not seem appropriate today."

• A most familiar name will be on the primary ballot in Alaska today: Walter J. Hickel, the ex-governor who later was fired as Interior Secretary by President Nixon after criticizing administration policies. Hickel is seeking the Republican nomination in an attempt to return to the statehouse, and if he wins is expected to face Gov. William Egan, whom he had defeated in 1966. In Oklahoma, Democratic Gov. David Hall — under investigation for three years in connection with alleged kickbacks on state building projects — is seeking renomination.

• Former Postmaster General James Farley — one of the last surviving members of President Franklin Roosevelt's cabinet — is expected to be released from a New York hospital today following treatment for an undisclosed illness. Farley, 86, was described as looking "absolutely wonderful."

• Actor Cyril Ritchard, 75, who collapsed on stage Sunday night during a rehearsal of the stage show, "Sugar," is in a Los Angeles hospital for treatment of a heart attack.

• It was a grimly embarrassing moment at New York's city hall Monday morning, where Gilberto Diaz, 19, and a friend were to be given merit awards by Mayor Abraham Beame and Fire Commissioner John O'Hagan for their part in helping save the lives of four children in an apartment fire Aug. 19. But moments before the ceremony, Diaz was taken off in handcuffs to be charged in connection with a tenement fire that only hours before killed one person, injured 16 others and left 65 homeless.

• Georgia is still the nation's moonshine production leader, and Atlanta — with an estimated 5,000 gallons per week sold to "shothouses" — is still the consumption capital. But inflation is threatening to do what the combined might of state and federal "revenuers" has been unable to do — put the makers of "white lightning" out of business. The problem is that sugar, a key ingredient, has tripled in price in the past year, and according to Harry Russell, head of the state's alcohol tax unit, it's a "sign of the times" that more and more stills are being found inactive.

Money, power, office—who'll head RTA?

A News Analysis

A large office, substantial salary and significant power will await the person who assumes the challenging position of chairman of the Regional Transportation Authority.

It sounds like enough to entice almost anyone to the job, which carries with it a five-year appointed term. But the transit industry has a shortage of good leaders, and the RTA board is shopping among almost bare shelves for its chairman.

Many of the top recognized leaders could not be expected to shift to Chicago for various reasons. Some have just assumed new positions. Others are in the private transportation business, or have long ties with the areas they serve.

T. WILLIAM SWINFORD, director of public affairs for the Urban Mass Transit Administration, said, "There is a complete dearth of experience available in transportation." He explains that middle management positions begin disappearing as transportation was waning in recent years, and the people who would have been expected to move up to new positions in the renewed transit field are not there now.

Several of the transit districts have acquired or are in the process of acquiring new directors themselves, and some of the largest bus companies in the big cities are owned by private businessmen who could not be expected to give up their firms for the RTA chairmanship.

"There are a lot of good people who aren't visible," says Dr. Thomas Harvey, Chicago regional representative of the Urban Mass Transit Administration (UMTA). In that group he includes some secretaries of state departments of transportation. One Illinois name that has been mentioned is Langhorne Bond, who once was a public affairs officer for UMTA. Another top name, according to Harvey, is Alan Altshuler, DOT secretary for Massachusetts.

Harvey also mentions Wilson Campbell, who is in a high position in the New York DOT but was formerly head of the Chicago Area Transportation Study (CATS). These names are just an indication of the type of person who might be available for the RTA seat.

WHILE THE FIELD of mass transit experts is admittedly narrow, the RTA board does have the legal option of selecting instead a chairman with proven management abilities in any field. In New York, for example, the giant Metropolitan Transit Authority is run by former Macy's Department Store vice chairman David L. Yunich, who took the reins four months ago from Dr. William Ronan. Ronan moved on to the Port Authority of New York and New Jersey — an unpaid position.

The RTA board has reportedly interviewed about 40 persons, some of whom were considered marginal, self-declared candidates. Board members have indicated in open discussions that some of the candidates do meet the management rather than transportation criterion.

The biggest question mark is the board's consideration of Milton Pikarsky, chairman of the CTA. He is repeatedly referred to by persons in the transportation industry as a respected and capable leader, often called one of the best in the field.

NEW TRANSIT SYSTEMS such as the Bay Area Rapid Transit in San Francisco are the product of new leaders in the industry. Plans for other similar programs create a demand on transit expertise.

Transit 'experts' a rare commodity, RTA learns

Any list of recognized transportation leaders would include several capable men. Such a list may not be much help to the RTA board, however, if most of the executives are reluctant to leave their present high positions.

A roster of such transportation experts might include the following men, although this is by no means a complete list of qualified transportation leaders:

• Dr. William Ronan — He is considered to be the principal figure in developing the New York Metropolitan Transit Authority. Backed by former Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller, he pulled together a sprawling agency serving 12 counties, 4,000 square miles and a total population of 12 million. Shortly after Rockefeller resigned his post as governor, Ronan resigned his $80,000-a-year position and became non-paid chairman of the Port Authority of New York and New Jersey. Observers have said the MTA board was shut out of major policy-making decisions, with Ronan and Rockefeller running the show. In discussing mass transit experts, his name often comes up first.

• Milton Pikarsky — Unquestioned by men in the transit industry as one of the top mass transit experts, Pikarsky, 49, has to overcome a less tangible obstacle of politics to realize his ambition as RTA Chairman. As chairman of the CTA and with previous experience in Chicago, he is identified as a "city" man although he has not been actively involved in politics. A professional engineer, he started his career in his home city of New York. He was an assistant civil engineer with the New York Central Railroad and supervised design and field engineering of the reconstruction of the LaSalle Street train station. He was partner in an engineering firm before becoming project coordinator of the Blue Island Railroad group, where he was liaison with four railroads and the associated municipalities and governments. He went from there to the Chicago Public Works Dept., rose to commissioner in 1964 and was appointed to the CTA board in May, 1973, where he was subsequently elected chairman.

• William R. Stokes — Former general manager of the Bay Area Rapid Transit (BART) in the San Francisco area, he recently accepted a post as executive director of the new American Public Transit Assn. The association is the result of a merger with the Institute for Rapid Transit (train oriented) and the American Transportation Assn. (bus oriented). One expert says Stokes, in addition to being reluctant to leave his new job, might be gun-shy of another political arena after criticism and problems that arose in San Francisco. There are two assistant positions in San Francisco and only one of them can move up to the post of general manager. Larry Dahms is acting general manager until a BART board is elected. That might free the other assistant, L. A. Kimball.

• James C. McConnon — voluntary chairman of the Southeast Pennsylvania Transit Authority (SEPTA) in the Philadelphia region, he receives no pay but works about 50 hours a week, according to his staff. A lifelong resident of Pennsylvania, he is a patent attorney with an engineering degree. He is deeply involved in mass transit at the national organizational level and in the state. He has been elected chairman of the ap-

Village begins to enforce zoning expiration dates

Owners of several large parcels of land previously proposed for planned developments have been notified by Wheeling officials that their zoning has expired.

The notification is part of a recent enforcement of the village's two-year zoning limit. The ordinance governing planned developments has been on the books since 1967 and other projects are governed by a 1972 ordinance, neither of which had been enforced by local officials.

According to the planned development ordinance, projects that are not begun within two years of zoning approval must go through the zoning board and village board before construction can begin.

AMONG THE PARCELS affected by the zoning limit is the 75 acres at the southwest corner of Hinz and Wheeling roads proposed as Tara Village, a 1,200-unit apartment complex. Developers abandoned that project last year.

This property also includes an industrial area that was to be developed by the La Cancha Raquet and Swim Club. Zoning for the recreation project also has expired.

Planned-development zoning has expired for 75 acres east of the Soo Line R.R. tracks and west of Wolf Road in the northern part of the village. The land was rezoned for multiple-family development in 1969.

A small section adjacent to the 75 acres has also lost its planned development zoning. This parcel was rezoned in 1970.

Roy Lichter, owner of 10 acres on Schoenbeck Road across from the Sandburg School, has asked the village board for a 90-day extension of his present residential zoning. He said that the Wheeling Park District has filed condemnation action on the site, and asked for an extension until the court action is resolved.

LIKEWISE, James Burke, owner of property behind Browns' Fried Chicken on Wheeling Road, is seeking an extension of his business zoning. Burke said development has been delayed because of water and sewer problems.

Since the village began enforcing the two-year limit this month, board members have granted only one of four requests for zoning extensions. The trustees said that unless a developer has good reason for his delay, the zoning will not be extended.

REPAIRING A TRACTOR is a lot easier in the Wheeling Park District's new maintenance garage, built with 1972 park improvement referendum funds. Although the inside of the garage is unfinished, the building provides more space, and will house equipment previously stored outside.

Village promised review, they say

Jeffery residents ask state for bridge job hearing

by LYNN ASINOF

Residents living next to the Jeffery Avenue bridge have asked the Illinois Division of Waterways for a public hearing on Wheeling's plans to replace the bridge and widen the Wheeling Drainage Ditch.

In a letter to the state, the residents said that plans for the project were finalized without any review by the property owners living next to the creek. Such a review was promised by the village.

The letter was signed by Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Davis and Mr. and Mrs. Mike Hernandez, who live directly west of the bridge on Jeffery Avenue.

Mrs. Davis said the hearing would first determine if the proper division of waterway permits had been issued for the creek work. The residents have also asked for a ruling on whether the alteration to the creek is "necessary, practical and safe."

THE RESIDENTS earlier complained to the Wheeling Environmental Commission that the creek work would cause the loss of both property and trees, which might threaten their yards with erosion and flooding.

Current plans for the bridge replacement and creek widening will move the creek banks up to the property lines of these homeowners. Nearly all of the trees along the creek banks will be removed, and the upper banks will be sodded.

Mrs. Davis said she fears that this may lead to serious erosion problems for a project that may not have a great deal of impact on the village's flooding problems. The residents have asked the division of waterways to obtain a written guarantee for the property owners that the work will not cause erosion, flooding or decrease property values.

In the letter, the residents state that they favor the replacement of the bridge, which has a center support that acts as a dam for debris during high water conditions. "We still maintain an earnest desire to have the bridge replaced and leave the creek undisturbed, using the remainder of the funds to complete work on the four retention basins at Heritage and Husky parks, which have never operated properly," the letter states.

Residents said work on these basins will do more to relieve flooding conditions than the widening of the creek.

AS PART OF THE hearing review, the residents have asked that the need for widening the creek at the Jeffery Avenue bridge be evaluated in light of future flood control plans in the area.

The letter states that if the creek widening is deemed necessary after the hearing, certain protective measures should be taken before the project is begun.

These measures include the installation of retaining walls at the four bridge corners where eddying occurs, and installation of a retaining wall by a flap gate just north of the bridge. Residents also asked that the upper portion of the creek bank be left undisturbed to serve as a buffer area.

In addition, the residents asked that any trees removed be replaced with similar plantings rather than ornamental flowering trees.

MRS. DAVIS SAID the residents want a written statement as to what work will be done and that the work be staked out before excavation begins. Finally, the residents asked for a written guarantee that the work will not adversely affect their property or property values.

The creek widening and bridge replacement was stalled two years ago when first proposed because Meadowbrook West residents opposed the removal of trees along the creek banks. The village then promised to consult residents about any tree removal and drew up plans for the project.

Last summer the project failed to attract any bidders because of design problems, and the village had its engineers redraw the plans over the winter. A contract for the project was awarded earlier this year, but work has again been stalled because a second exit has not been found from the Meadowbrook area. Currently the only exit is by the bridge.

A stolen-auto case ...or was it?

Wheeling and Buffalo Grove police became involved with a stolen-automobile case Sunday only to find out later that the car never had been stolen.

The car, a 1965 Buick Skylark, reportedly had been stolen from 387 Fletcher Dr. between 1:30 and 4:28 p.m. Sunday. Daniel Wilken of that address allegedly told police the car had been taken while he was at a nearby shopping center.

At 6:15 p.m., Buffalo Grove police found the car rolled over in a field off Nichols Road. Upon investigation, Wheeling police said they learned Wilken had taken the car himself and abandoned it after it rolled over.

Men's touch football league slated

The Prospect Heights Park District will start a men's touch football league this fall.

Registrations for teams are being accepted at the park district office, 13 Prospect Ct., Prospect Heights. The league will start play about Sept. 15. Games will be played Sundays at 9 and 11 a.m.

Persons signing up must be at least 18 years old. The park office will try to attach interested individuals with teams. The fee for the program will be determined once the number of teams is known.

The park district also is accepting pre-registrations for the boys' tackle football program. There will be two district teams — fifth and sixth graders on the junior tackle team and seventh and eighth graders on the senior tackle team.

Practice for the boys' tackle football program will start this week.

terested in participating in the parade should assemble at noon at Bernard Street and Indian Hill Drive.

FOLLOWING THE PARADE, a beer and brat festival and an old-fashioned corn roast will take place at the field across from the village hall. Residents will be able to purchase "beer and brat for a buck" as well as hot dogs and soft drinks.

At 1 p.m., a homemaking and garden contest will be in progress at nearby Emmerich Park and at 2 p.m., an art fair will start at the village hall. Entries for the homemaking contest should be made by 9 a.m.

and I don't like to see any more come in," he said. "I think we have enough multiple-family housing. I think we should go for single-family."

Village Pres. Ted C. Scanlon also said the village has been moving away from multiple-family projects. He said, however, the village board will not be able to do anything about property that has already been zoned for such projects.

"I believe this is all builders want to build, and I don't know how we're going to stop it," he said. "If the land is so zoned, the only thing we can do is stop any more zoning of that type."

Although residents have long complained about the number of multiple-family projects being built, the board previously said the village legally cannot prevent such development. The trustees told residents the village could be taken to court if it denied zoning for these projects. They also said developers will not build single-family homes because of the skyrocketing construction costs.

Following 'the year of the dog'

New TV season a crucial one for networks

by DICK KLEINER

HOLLYWOOD — Crime continues to be rampant, but nostalgia, women and the great outdoors are gaining.

That, in a nutshell, is the report on the '74-'75 television season opening in September. Because last year was pretty much of a disaster — "The Year of the Dog," the TV brass is calling it — there has been a major shakeup of the TV schedule by all three networks.

At this time last year, because of the writers' strike, the season was a shambles. Maybe that's why the season was such a dud. Maybe it was just because last season's new shows were losers. It's all hypothetical. Whatever the cause, last year was bad.

Of the 20 new shows which premiered a year ago, only three — CBS' "Kojak," NBC's "Police Story" and ABC's "The $8 Million Man" — are back. The others are now history, and pretty forgettable history, at that.

This year, there are 25 new programs, standing nervously at the post. ABC and NBC have 10 new ones each, with CBS adding five more.

HOW DO THE three networks view the coming season? What do they see as the significant trends?

NEA put those questions to program executives at each of the networks, and, predictably, got three different answers.

"The significant thing this year," says Darryl Diller, vice president, prime time programs, of ABC, "is the number of new shows. Twenty-five is a lot of new shows. It's the kamikaze approach, with everybody debuting the same week. We'll see some fast casualties, which is unfair to all of the shows."

"This is a critical year," says Perry Lafferty, vice president, programs, Hollywood, of CBS. "We'll see if The Waltons was the right show in the right place at the right time. Did the audience go for it because it represented better times, when values were better?"

"The Waltons" was the only show in many years in which the hero did not have the power of life and death. We have no franchise on that type of show, and that's the big news this season. If it works, it will open up the whole face of TV and open up dramatic programs to all sorts of things."

FOR NBC, John J. McMahon, vice president, program operations, says that "this year, except for the fact that there are few variety shows, has as good a balance as we've ever had. There's also a trend toward women as stars of action shows. In the past, these shows have depended on franchised heroes — cops, lawyers, doctors. Now that women are moving into those areas, it's easier to find shows for women. It's definitely a trend."

All three are right. Diller is correct when he says that 25 new shows, all starting at the same time, are a lot. Nobody will ever be able to see them all, and the ones with the biggest public relations campaign will probably win.

Lafferty is right, when he says that there are imitators of "The Waltons" coming. In one form or another, each of the networks has a Waltonesque show on the boards.

And McMahon is right, in his view of the trend toward using women. There are three action shows on the schedule which star a woman — Angie Dickinson in "Police Woman" for NBC, Jessica Walter in "Amy Prentiss," also for NBC, and Teresa Graves in "Get Christie Love," for ABC.

In the Walton mold, or perhaps the better generic term is nostalgic shows, there are CBS' "Sons and Daughters," NBC's "Little House on the Prairie," and ABC's "Paper Moon" and "The New Land."

CRIME SHOWS, of course, continue to be prevalent. We'll have a spate of new ones. CBS has Ken Howard as "Manhunter," another private eye. NBC has James Garner in "The Rockford Files," more of the same.

And ABC has three of them, plus the previously mentioned "Get Christie Love." They are David Janssen as private eye Harry O. Darren McGavin as "Kojak" — "The Night Stalker" who tracks down weirdos and kooks, and Rob-

Fall's screen will have more action heroes (Clint Walker in "Kodiak".)

... and comedy spins off (Valerie Harper as "Rhoda".)

... and heroines (Jessica Walter as "Amy Prentiss".)

Will the TV public go ape?

Nostalgia rides again (Glynnis O'Connor and Gary Frank in "Sons and Daughters".)

Many 'specials' to highlight new season

by JACK GAVEN

NEW YORK (UPI) — The television networks seem to be putting more emphasis on "specials" for the 1974-75 season than ever before despite the fact that video critics for the print medium in the past have expressed some skepticism as to just how special a number of "specials" are.

Well, it's a new season, so let's wait and see how things turn out this time.

NBC appears to be emphasizing this phase of telecasting a bit more than the other two networks.

NBC offers Sophia Loren and Robert Shaw in Noel Coward's "Brief Encounter," which was beautifully done by the movies years ago, a film that has had several television exposures. Why this?

THE NETWORK has a two-hour adaptation, with music, of Charles Dickens' "Great Expectations" novel with a first-rate cast of Michael York, Sarah Miles and James Mason; a six-part dramatization of the Carl Sandburg biography of Abraham Lincoln starring Hal Holbrook, and that sounds good.

Richard Burton weighs in with an impersonation of Winston Churchill in the latter's first volume of his World War II memoirs; Henry Fonda impersonates Clarence Darrow, in which he had a triumphal stage tour this past season.

Variety show specials on NBC will be headlined by Ann-Margret, Jack Benny, Bob Hope, Bing Crosby, Dean Martin, Peggy Fleming, Wayne Newton, Burt Reynolds, George Segal, Andy Williams and Flip Wilson.

ABC calls attention to more "ABC Theater" specials. One is "The Missiles of October," with William Devane, Martin Sheen and Howard Da Silva; dramatization of the 1962 crisis about Russian missiles in Cuba.

ert Forster as "Nakla," an Indian who is a deputy sheriff in New Mexico.

There are a few new series which are trying to plow new ground. NBC's "Born Free" and CBS' "Planet of the Apes" both come from very popular movies and will try to recapture that popularity on the home screen.

"BORN FREE" is part of an outdoors trend. In that same broad area are NBC's "Sierra," dealing with park rangers, and "Kodiak," an ABC series dealing with life in Alaska.

There's a new lawyer about to practice on TV — Barry Newman as "Petrocelli," for NBC. There are a couple of truck drivers about to wheel out for a weekly adventure — Claude Arkins and Frank Converse in NBC's "Movin' On." And there's a teacher ready to do his thing — David Hartman as "Lucas Tanner," another NBC entry.

New comedy shows are scarce. CBS has "Rhoda," with Valerie Harper spinning off from "The Mary Tyler Moore Show," and "The Paul Sand Show," with Sand as a symphony orchestra bass player. NBC has "Chico and the Man," an ethnic (Chicano) tale of an Anglo garage owner (Jack Albertson) and his Mexican-American helper (Freddie Prinzo). And ABC has another black comedy, "That's My Mama," plus another one set in Texas, "Texas Wheelers."

If comedy shows are scarce, variety shows are even scarcer — only one, "The Sonny Comedy Revue," on ABC, with the Cher-less Sonny Bono.

That's the new season. Wear it in good health.

Hormones needed after hysterectomy?

I am 34 and have had a complete hysterectomy. I was told a woman could not live without estrogen, and yet I know several women who have had the same operation who have gotten along without taking shots or pills. A couple of them were in their 20s. They said the only thing was they were thrown into the change of life early. Could you please explain the difference to me as I am confused, and I don't have a doctor anymore as our doctor left the area.

I was taking estrogen shots and pills, but I am taking nothing now. If I can live without estrogen I would rather. My doctor never said I had to take it at all in the first place. It was my mother who says I need it.

First, just having a complete hysterectomy does not mean that there will be any loss of estrogen production at all. Estrogen is produced by the ovaries, and these may be left in place when a complete hysterectomy is done. And, usually they will be left in unless there is some disease of them that requires their removal. The difference between whether the ovaries were taken out or left in is one factor in the different responses women have to this type of surgery.

If the ovaries are taken out then a young woman will have a premature menopause. However, estrogen is also manufactured by the adrenal gland. Deciding whether any woman, with or without an operation, needs estrogen is dependent upon the results of a medical examination. Some women go through the menopause with no problems and never take estrogen. In others it is very useful in controlling symptoms and preventing changes.

by Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

In any case, you do not die because your body is not producing a large amount of estrogen. My advice would be to find a doctor and get a good examination to find out what you need, not what your mother needed or your girl friends needed. Only then you can know if YOU really need any additional female hormone or not.

Can being overweight cause pain in the chest?

Yes. It contributes to causing a hernia of part of the stomach through the normal, but enlarged, hole in the diaphragm. This is quite a common problem in our society in middle aged and older people.

The hernia causes a leak of normal acid digestive juices into the esophagus. This irritates the lower esophagus and causes a burning pain at the lower end of the breastbone. It can also cause the esophagus to go into spasm, creating pain in the middle of the chest, not unlike a heart attack.

Then obesity contributes to heart disease, which leads to chest pain. It also contributes to the problem of arthritis.

They went to fair and won

Ida made Virginia a dare So together they went to the fair. Ida's rug won first prize; Virginia's quilt did likewise.

The two of 'em make a great pair. Both won blue ribbons at the state fair in Springfield; Virginia Oliver for her quilt and Ida Laskowski for her braided rug.

Ida, who lives at 307 S. Waterman, Arlington Heights, had been working on her rug for 10 months. It was all in shades of blue, and with two sons and a son-in-law to contribute cast-offs Ida managed to get enough wool strips for a thick 4 by 6 oval rug. She even padded some of the thinner wools so the rug would be nice and even.

It turned out very well and Ida wanted to enter it in the fair. But she didn't want to go to the fair alone.

IT TOOK A lot of talking for her to convince Virginia, who lives next door at 303 S. Waterman, to enter her cathedral window-patterned quilt. All done by hand of 4,000 squares, it took Virginia almost a year to complete.

"Virginia is very talented. She does all sewing and craftwork extremely well and I told her there was no reason why she shouldn't win first prize," said Ida.

The competition was tough — nine quilts were vying for first place honors. But Ida was right. There was no reason Virginia shouldn't win — and she did.

Westward Ho

Aliyah Chapter of Pioneer Women will hold a Westward Ho barbecue featuring steak and prizes Saturday, Sept. 7, at Robinswoods Clubhouse, Streamwood.

Admission to the 8:30 p.m. affair is $10 per couple and guests are invited. Those interested may call Gail Sandler, 991-0592, or Surella Bartel, 255-4623.

Mr. and Mrs. Michael H. Martin

Newlyweds back at college

Nebraska Wesleyan University seniors Michael H. Martin and Mariellen Wilson are returning to classes as Mr. and Mrs. this fall. They were married Aug. 4 in United Methodist Church in Auburn, Mich., the home of Mariellen's parents.

Michael's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Howard N. Martin of Mount Prospect. The 4 p.m. service was both candlelight and double ring with Mariellen wearing an ivory A-line gown in old-fashioned styling. Lace paneling trimmed the bodice and skirt and a deep flounce with semi-full train trimmed the hemline. She carried a Bible with a white orchid accented with pink roses and gypsophylla.

Matron of honor was her sister-in-law, Mrs. R. G. Wilson Jr., Pullman, Wash., and bridesmaids were Lindsay Sinn and Kathie Bence, sorority sisters from Lincoln, Neb.; Mrs. Steven Cummings, Minneapolis; and Mrs. Myron Lautenschlager, Doniphan, Neb.

THEY WORE PINK crepe gowns with lace bodices and shawls. Their flowers were pink roses, daisies and gypsophylla.

Kristine Warburton, Auburn, was flower girl, wearing an ivory smocked pinafore over a pink dress. She carried a basket of rose petals. Scott Gay, 3-year-old nephew of the groom from Glendale Heights was ring bearer.

Joel N. Martin was his brother's best man, and groomsmen were the bride's brother, R. G. Wilson Jr., Pullman, and Jeffrey Wilson, Auburn; James Falitz, fraternity brother of the groom from Lincoln; Fred Snyder, Hastings, Neb.; and Donald Strebs, Mount Prospect.

A reception for 300 guests was held in the church hall after which the newlyweds honeymooned a week in Hawaii. They are now living on a farm near Lincoln while attending the university. Mariellen is studying elementary education and Michael is studying business administration.

Order Jewish New Year cards

"Joyful Circle" is the title of UNICEF's 1974 Jewish New Year Card.

Its theme of children at play is significant because of the aid United Nations Children's Fund has offered Israel in rebuilding health centers, schools and war-damaged areas, according to Evelyn Favus, American artist who created the card.

Sold in boxes of 10 cards for $2, the cards carry the message, "May the New Year bring you peace, good health and joy."

Purchase of one box of cards can provide enough vaccine to protect 94 children against tuberculosis or provide lesson books for 21 school children, according to UNICEF which is selling the cards through its Chicago office, 372-5359.

The new year is Sept. 17 and the UNICEF office suggests that orders be placed immediately.

Wedding breakfast follows Aug. 3 rites at St. Thomas

A breakfast reception at the Navarone Steak House in Elk Grove Village followed the 10:30 a.m. wedding Aug. 3 of Kathleen Ann Semler and Allan R. Koenig. Kathleen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William A. Semler, 1454 Joan Dr., Palatine, and Allan, son of former Palatine residents Mr. and Mrs. Roland Koenig of Woodruff, Wis., were married in a double ring service in St. Thomas of Villanova Church, Palatine.

The couple honeymooned in Hawaii and southern California for 10 days and are now residing in Schaumburg. Kathleen is with A. G. Smith Harvestore, Arlington Heights, and Allan is with Procon, Inc., Des Plaines. Both are graduates of Palatine High School.

FOR HER WEDDING Kathleen chose a white organza gown trimmed in Venice lace. The entire bodice of the Empire gown was appliqued in the floral patterned lace. Appliques also dotted the skirt and formed a band on the hemline and around the chapel train. A Camelot headpiece held her short, lace-edged veil, and she carried a cascade of white gladioli florets, stephanotis and baby's breath.

Her sister, Karen, was maid of honor, and her sisters, Jane, Joan and Nancy, were bridesmaids. Janis Stephens and the groom's sister, Nancy, both of Palatine, were also bridesmaids.

They wore Victorian gowns of white nylon sheer trimmed in yellow flocked roses and yellow ribbons. White picture hats with yellow ribbons, and white baskets of yellow carnations, yellow Sweetheart roses and white baby's breath completed their ensembles.

Lon Marchel, Palatine, was best man, and ushers were Terry and Michael Koenig, brothers of the groom from Hoffman Estates; Donald Larson, Arlington Heights; Randy McAllister, Palatine; and the groom's nephew, Scott Riley, Schaumburg.

Aluminum may foil aphids

Dear Dorothy: My neighbor is very generous with her lettuce, but it's full of aphids. We've talked about it and she's against any kind of chemical deterrent. Any ideas about this? Is it worthwhile bothering with this late in the season? — Geraldine Bovenkamp Sure it's worthwhile. Lettuce can grow right into the frost. I understand your neighbor's reluctance. None of us can be sure these days what's safe and what's dangerous. Pyrethrum and rotenone used to be considered completely toxic-free. Now, both are under restrictions, as is even malathion.

Why don't you tell her to try what the Department of Agriculture recommended six years ago — aluminum foil? Wrapped around climbing roses and trellises, it discourages aphids and thrips. If it were my lettuce bed, I'd put strips of aluminum foil around the whole business. If it didn't work, I'd be out some foil. If it did, I'd have aphid-free lettuce.

Dear Dorothy: I've purchased a shut-off valve that attaches to the shower pipe. A turn of the knob shuts off the flow of water and thus conserves water until needed again. Open the valve and the water is once again "mixed" as you had it. It cools off slightly if held quite a while but not drastically. Now all I have to do is condition the rest of the family to use this gadget. — Sharon Jepson.

Dear Dorothy: I've been meaning to write this for some time and now, with school sewing upon us, I'd better get with it. When you fold pattern pieces to put back in the envelope, always fold with the piece number showing. Next time you use the pattern, all the pieces are easy to find. Saves tearing the fragile paper and losing your temper. — Joyce McCreary

(Mrs. Ritz welcomes questions and hints. If a personal reply is required, please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Write to her in care of Suburban Living, Paddock Publications, Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006.)

PICNIC STOP. While driving through France's beautiful Burgundy countryside, enjoy a sumptuous picnic lunch for less than $2. Flexi-Plan rental car vacations, which enable you to travel at your own pace, are available from Air France all through the year.

Shimmering Burgundy

by CLARE WRIGHT

It isn't that I have anything against tour buses. Some of my earliest and happiest memories of skimming through gentle, gorgeous Old World countryside were those I gleaned with my nose lightly pressed against the "wide-screen" window of a comfortable European motorcoach. But there's just one thing wrong. When you're riding a tour coach and locked into a tight itinerary, how can you explore that 16th-Century chateau perched on a rolling hillside — or wander through a place where Picasso was reputed to have painted — or stop to smell the sweet aroma from miles and miles of vineyards — or snatch a few minutes of "out of nowhere" time for a wayside picnic?

There's just no way. HOW MUCH better to rent a car and go at your own pace — and have a chance to really get to know the country you're visiting — and its people.

Since we've tried it and found it an ideal way to travel, we're happy with Air France's Flexi-Plan car rental programs.

The airline will design plans to fit your own special needs and wishes. Flexi-Plan packages can even include hotel accommodations as well as the car rentals.

Rental rates, including taxes and full insurance protection, begin at $14 daily on an unlimited mileage basis. You buy your own gas — but with what you save by stopping at low-cost (and charming) countryside hotels and inns, you can well afford it.

One of our favorite spots in France is Burgundy where the medieval charm has not changed — nor have reasonable prices.

Autumn is an ideal time to visit Burgundy. That's the time of the "vendanges," the grape harvest.

PICK UP YOUR car at Paris' Orly Airport, and it's a leisurely two-hour drive to Auxerre, gateway to Burgundy country.

Stop in Auxerre to visit the Cathedral of St. Etienne where Joan of Arc stopped to pray on her march to rescue the kings of France. Along the Yonne River you'll find several good restaurants where a fancy gourmet lunch can cost as little as $5 a person.

With your red and green Michelin guides in hand (we'd never travel without them in France) you'll be able to choose the gothic towns, chateaux, country inns and restaurants that seem most appealing to you as you drive from Auxerre to Chagny and into the famous wine producing area called the "Cote d'Or."

You will find about 60 chateaux in the Burgundy area open to the public. One you shouldn't miss is the Chateau de la Rochepot near the great wine town of Beaune. Once a fortress, it dominates a Romanesque town of the same name. Its rich furnishings alone make it worth the stop.

YOUR RED Michelin guide lists numerous restaurants where you can sample the area's specialties — escargot, Bresse chicken, Carrots beef and Chablis wines.

An even better (and cheaper) way to savor the local cheeses, pates, breads and wines is to picnic in the Burgundian countryside. A stop at a grocery store (which is an adventure all its own) will provide you with a delicious roadside lunch for about $2 a person.

You should plan a whole day to drive the 40-mile route that passes through Burgundy's most famous vineyards. When you visit the vineyards you can see where your favorite wines come from by looking at the signs identifying the grapes growing there. In many vineyards you can tour the cellars and take part in a wine tasting.

DIJON IS THE capital of Burgundy where a comfortable room with breakfast at the modern and convenient Hotel Central costs between $12 and $15.

For more information on Flexi-Plan car rental programs — an ideal way to enjoy "la bonne vie" — the good life — in various areas of France, check with your travel agent.

Bridge between summer and fall

Michigan blossoms during September

by SUE CALLAWAY

September is the bridge between summer and fall. The weather moderates, there's more room at "favorite spots" and leisure time assumes its true definition. September in Michigan is an ideal vacation month accented with festivals, fairs and fun for all.

The month begins with a tribute to Bishop Frederic Baraga (the Snowshoe Priest), who devoted his life to the Chippewa Indians of Michigan's Upper Peninsula. The ceremonies will take place Sunday, Sept. 1 at the Baraga Shrine, which rises six stories above the Red Rock Bluffs, between Baraga and L'Anse overlooking Keweenaw Bay.

Sept. 1-2 is Old Time Summer Festival time at Greenfield Village, Dearborn. Strolling minstrels, a medicine show, colorful yarns spun from the writings of Mark Twain, heated debates between Stephen Douglas and Abraham Lincoln and a musical revue, "Gaslight Melodies," are some of the bygone diversions and entertainment that will be relived.

If you're physically fit, "in the pink" or just have an excess of energy to expend, lace-up your most comfortable walking shoes and join the annual Mackinac Bridge Walk Sept. 2, from St. Ignace to Mackinaw City.

Sept. 7-8 will be a busy weekend. The Old Car Festival at Greenfield Village, Dearborn, will feature antique automobiles and high-wheel bikes "jazzed-up" with Dixieland music and flapper hostesses straight from the days when America first started rolling on wheels.

THE MERRY Marketeers Flea Market will be beckoning bargain hunters to the Fort Saginaw Mall in Saginaw. It's also the weekend of Marshall, Michigan's 11th annual Historic Home Tour. In addition to the tour of nine vintage homes, a variety of collateral events are scheduled including an arts and crafts fair and antique sale. The potato harvest and the customs of a Polish heritage are the main ingredients of the Posen Potato Festival Parade, carnival, Polish dances and dinners will help to keep the festivities on a lively note.

Potatoes are the king crop in the Edmore area and the folks there also feel that a festival is in order at harvest time. The Edmore Potato Festival is a three-day celebration, Sept. 11-13, complete with dancing in the streets, a big parade, pony pulls and good things to eat.

CHESANING WILL be "buzzing" in the most literal sense of the word, Sept. 12-13, when the Michigan Honey Bee Festival will be in residence. In addition to graphic exhibits showing how the busy little bees make honey, there will be a 40-pitch softball tournament, canoe race, honey baking contest and a gala parade of bands from all areas of the State. Some 40 acres of campsites will be available at Showboat Park.

Art 'n' Apples may seem like a strange combination but that's the name of the Festival, Sept. 12-15, at Municipal Park in Rochester.

The Folk Life Festival, Sept. 14-15, at Charlton Park near Hastings brings pioneer days to life with demonstrations of early crafts and folk art. Spinning, weaving, sausage, soap, bread, butter and "likker" makin' are some of the activities on the agenda.

Harvest time of the fruit of the vine in southwest Michigan heralds the Grape and Wine Festival at Paw Paw, Sept. 17-22. Festival guests are invited to tour the wineries and sip a sample of the mellow merchandise. Other attractions include grape stomping, a turtle derby, art show and carnival.

HOLIDAY TRAVEL

The old adage "book early" becomes more important every year. As most of you know, since the fuel shortage the airlines have reduced their number of flights. Also, hotel rooms and cars are at a premium during the holidays.

Since we want to see you, our clients, have the schedules and dates you want it becomes imperative to BOOK EARLY.

Ageless charm of Nazare

NAZARE, Portugal — What ever happens to this politically troubled nation, I have a feeling the ageless charm of its most unique fishing village will never change.

I'm glad we visited it out of season — even though we perhaps missed some of the glamor and excitement that bursts forth in the summer months, when the tiny village becomes an international beach resort.

The afternoon we strolled through the narrow streets down toward the beach the village was quiet and deserted. But we were told there would soon be plenty of activity because it was just about time for the fishing boats to come in. This is the high point of every day in Nazare.

Descended from dauntless Phoenician sailors who landed on this rugged Portuguese coastline almost 4,000 years ago, Nazare's brawny men of the sea provide great excitement for the women and children who flock to the beach every afternoon to wait for the return of the boats, which are Phoenician in design — elongated, slender and embellished in bright vivid colors.

The wives of the fishermen wait on the beach in their heavy Moorish-like shawls. Their faces are sometimes somber for as one native told us, there are times when the boats don't return home from the stormy seas.

BEFORE we heard that, we had wondered about all the women dressed in black.

Then we learned that these women had lost their fisher husbands to the sea. Unless she marries again, the widow wears black the rest of her life.

Standing there on the sandy beach that afternoon we watched the fishermen fight the swirling surf to bring their boats to shore.

After the boats are beached, teams of yoked oxen tug the bulky, flat-bottomed crafts high onto the sandy shore and the fishermen and their families rejoice over the day's catch.

THE SUN was going down as we left the beach — stopping in a few handicraft shops nearby. Not many were open since the tourist season hadn't really started.

Inevitable "people-watcher" that I am, I spent a lot of time staring at the handsome Nazare folk we passed — noting their classical features, aquiline noses and dark brows.

The rugged-looking men wore rough woolen shirts and trousers that looked almost Scottish. Later a Nazare native told us there's a legend that the plaid and tartan designs were copied from seafaring Scots shipwrecked on the Nazare shore centuries before.

NAZARE MEN wear long woolen stocking caps on their heads. Precious valuables are carried in the dangling ends.

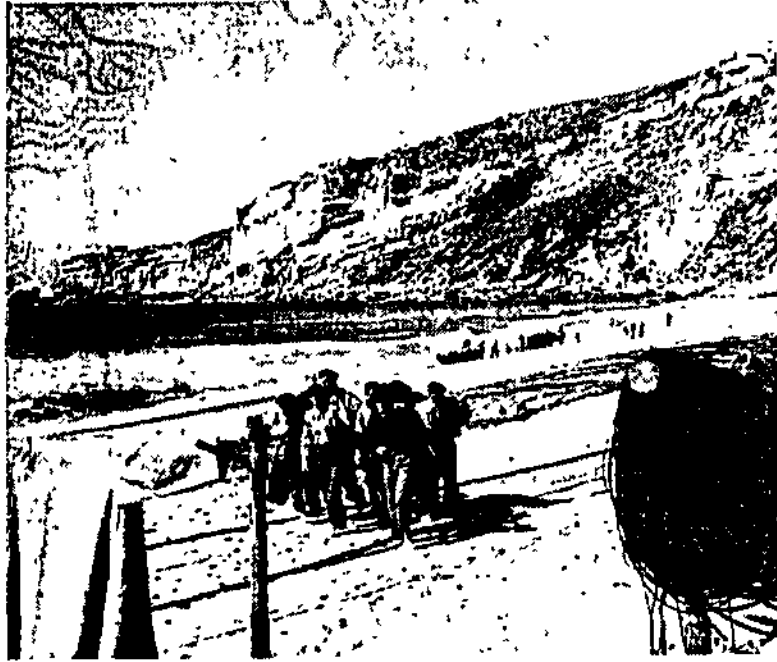

Our hotel, the Nazare, was just a two-minute walk from the waterfront and beach. It's a comfortable, modern hotel — in fact, so modernized it hardly seems to belong in this quaint fishing hamlet.

The dramatic view from the rooftop terrace and dining room directly below is breathtaking.

After dinner that night (which included tempting Nazare fish dishes) we were entertained by a troupe of young villagers who demonstrated some of the lively Nazare folk dancing.

The young men were in their typical Scotch-type garb and the young ladies were barefooted and wore embroidered handmade blouses and pleated skirts that covered seven petticoats.

THERE ARE two sections of Nazare — the fishing quarter and the Sítio, the upper town where most of the people live.

To get to the Sítio you can ride the funicular (for 10 cents) or climb a steep cobblestone pathway.

The view of the sea and village far, far below is spectacular, to say the least. Nearby the tiny "Chapel of Memory" carries the legend that the Virgin Mary appeared in 1182 to save a young nobleman in pursuit of a wild deer on horseback. To honor the miracle the nobleman built the chapel. When you go inside you can see a horse's hoofmark.

A man at the Hotel Nazare told us that many inhabitants of the Portuguese fishing village have never left there — not even to go to Lisbon, just 80 miles away.

But after all — with such serenity and beauty — why would one really want to leave?

In reservations, a special "Hable Español" desk has been added which will be manned 24 hours a day. American has 10 Spanish speaking reservations agents.

Herald opinion

DST experiment failed, we want morning light

The U.S. House of Representatives acted last week to rid us of year-round Daylight Savings Time, and we couldn't be happier to hear that this one-year phenomenon may fade shortly into memory.

Like alternate-day gas purchasing, rationing coupons and darkened Christmas trees, year-round DST was once regarded as the sure-cure for the energy crisis which kept our houses cold and our cars in the garage last winter.

Experience soon taught us, however, that DST didn't save much energy — one report was less than one per cent — and was proven to be more of a safety hazard and a morale wrecker than we had imagined.

Summertime DST is, of course, a worthwhile tradition — but DST during the winter means that we face an extra hour of darkness in the morning, from Nov. 1 through the last dog days of winter.

It means that our children go to school in pitch darkness and face the threat of being run over by half-asleep motorists. It means that all of us struggle to work in the darkness, and that's a demoralizing experience.

In the panic that followed the news last fall that we were about to run out of gasoline and electricity, it seemed like a good method of cutting energy waste. Far from it, however, for statistics never revealed that we saved much of anything from the time shift.

Now, a bill has cleared the House and is headed to the Senate to restore standard time from Nov. 1, 1974, through March 1, 1975. After that time, the emergency year-round legislation expires, and we go back to the old, time-tested system.

The Senate's to be encouraged to pass speedily this legislation — and we believe the weight of public opinion will probably speed that body's vote.

There's a lesson to be learned here, and it has something to do with the need for calmness and deliberation in the midst of a crisis. If cooler heads had prevailed 12 months ago, we wouldn't need the DST legislation. But there was an energy crisis then . . . or was there?

Divorce in politics: it's no longer a taboo

by ROBERT M. ANDREWS

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In America of the 1970s, the stigma of divorce seems hardly more of a liability to a national politician than the color of his neck tie.

When Nelson A. Rockefeller was nominated for the vice presidency last week, many a murmur was heard in Congress about his celebrated divorce and remarriage a little more than a decade ago, which some politicians believe cost Rockefeller the GOP presidential nomination in 1964.

Catholic, divorced his wife of 25 years and married a young aide in his congressional office.

"The shibboleths, the taboos of politics in the past are simply gone," said Richard M. Scammon, director of the Elections Research Center of the Governmental Affairs Institute and a leading authority on American politics.

"I am sure most politicians consider divorce far less of a handicap than it was in an earlier generation," he said. "Society has taken on a did," Scammon said, "it would make a helluva lot of people mad."

"He would be making a judgment against people who have divorced, and risking a backlash. It would be like telling a Polish joke before a Polish audience."

In 1962, Rockefeller divorced his first wife of 31 years, the former Mary Todd Hunter Clark, who bore him four children. The next year, he married the former Margaretta "Happy" Fitter Murphy, a neighbor and campaign worker, barely a month after she divorced her husband of 14 years.

In 1964, Rockefeller narrowly lost the crucial California primary to Barry M. Goldwater a few days after the birth of the new couple's first child, Nelson Jr., and went on to lose the GOP nomination to Goldwater in San Francisco.

Rockefeller said his polls showed the divorce issue made a difference of only 3 or 4 per cent, and that his party already was swinging toward the right under Goldwater. But that margin might have changed the outcome in psychologically important California, some observers said.

Two years later, Rockefeller easily won his third term as governor of New York, and was re-elected again in 1970.

Although the timing and great publicity of Rockefeller's marital problems might have hurt him in 1964, the taboo of divorce seems historically to have played a minor role in American politics.

The only two major presidential candidates who had been divorced, Democrats Adlai E. Stevenson and James M. Cox, were defeated. But politicians agree that Stevenson lost in 1952 and 1956 because of Dwight D. Eisenhower's overwhelming popularity. And Cox was believed overwhelmed by Warren G. Harding in 1920 because of a public rejection of Woodrow Wilson's internationalist policies.

Like President Ford, Harding and Andrew Jackson both had wives who were previously divorced.

much more liberal view in the past 10 years. Now, there is even talk of considering a Negro for vice president."

The public's tolerance of divorce among politicians coincides with a dramatic increase in the American divorce rate in recent years. The Census Bureau, where Scammon once was director, reports that one of every three marriages today eventually will end in divorce.

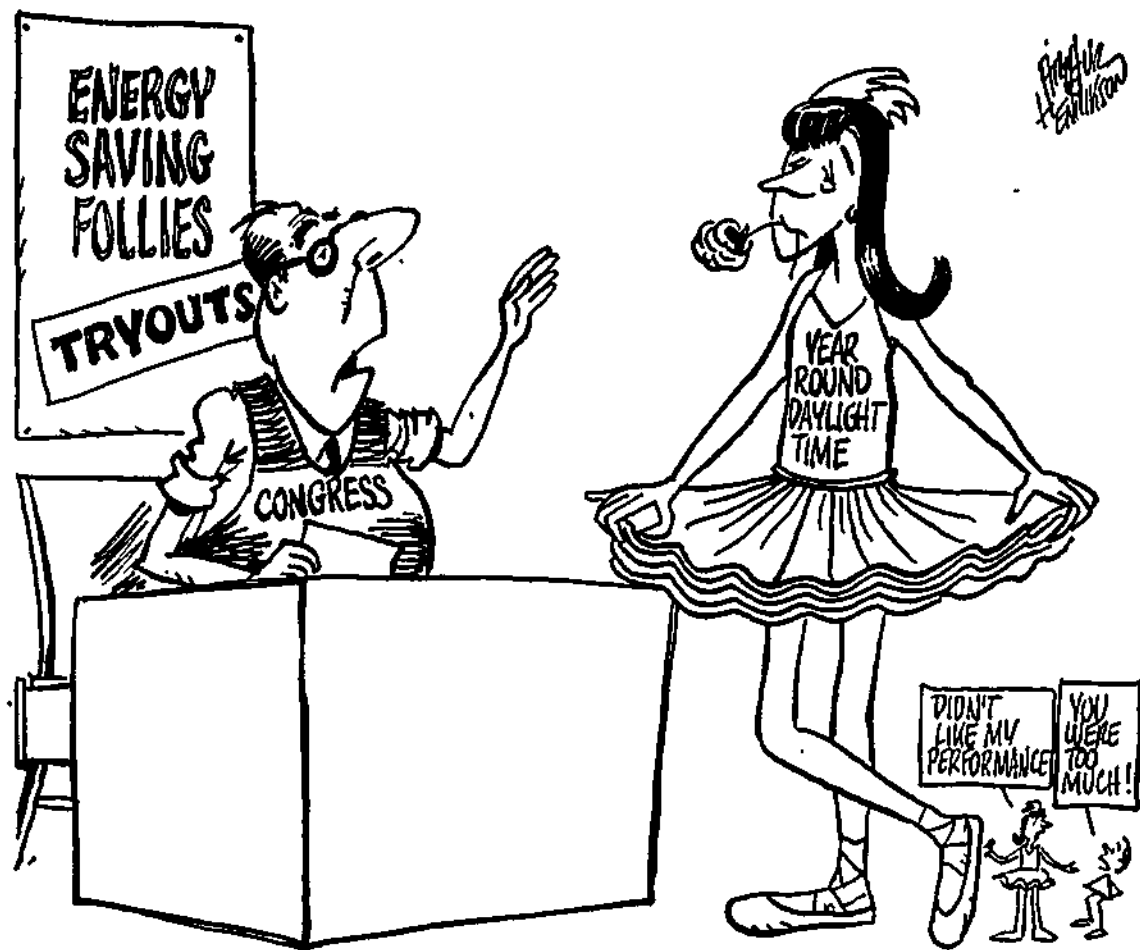

The number of divorces among today's electorate makes it unwise for a politician to build a campaign issue on an opponent's divorce. "If he Divorce has touched other lives in official Washington. President Ford's wife, Betty, is a former divorcee, and Ford's parents were divorced when he was an infant. Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger recently remarried after divorcing his first wife.

In neighboring Maryland, popular Democratic Gov. Marvin Mandel, who is running for re-election in November, recently wed "the woman I love" one-half hour after his divorce became final. His Republican opponent, Rep. Lawrence F. Hogan, has avoided the issue. Hogan, a Roman

'Too much concrete' hit

After such an interminable, insufferable period of time awaiting the completion of the road construction on Dundee Road, what do we citizens of Buffalo Grove get saddled with? A four-lane ribbon of concrete, the center of which we are being told should be filled in with more concrete, and no sidewalks. At least there does not appear to be room enough for pedestrian walkways on the eastern end of this blanket of stone.

I personally feel, particularly in this ecological age, that a landscaped median strip would beautify the area — add some class. One of the arguments against seeding the median is the cost of upkeep. I am sure there are a number of enterprising young men who own lawn tractors for that singular purpose — who would jump at the chance to contract with the village to mow that strip and prune where needed for a few hundred dollars a season. Then, of course, there's always the alternative — synthetic turf, the latter, admittedly, more expensive initially, but not so in the long term. Besides, the majority of the Buffalo Grove residents to whom I have broached the subject of added taxes, versus greater population density, high rises, obtrusive commercial development, etc., would willingly opt for the former — if they had the opportunity.

Which brings me to the subject of the dissident parties in this controversy — our "friendly" merchants. How can a few businessmen sway not only local authorities, but state legislators as well, in light of the wishes of the community being served, which run counter to theirs? I am sick and tired of hearing committees, boards, politicians, and now merchants telling my neighbors and me what is good for us. This group of objectors are not representing residents of our village. Granted, they are taxpayers, but the will of the majority of the taxpayers in our community should be served in this matter.

Anyone curious as to the appearance of a concrete median should travel Willow Road from Waukegan Road west to the landfill. It looks like an abandoned World War II landing strip. That one happens to be a raised and curbed median, but it illustrates the accumulation of litter and the need for maintenance (sorely lacking) to remove the clutter and weed growth.

I think all residents of Buffalo Grove interested in a little greenery, which is too often disappearing these days, should write their state legislators to ask that they influence the proper committee members to reconsider landscaping the median strip on Dundee Road — Grow Grass!

Fence post letters to the editor

'Where will planes go?'

This is in reply to Park Ridge residents who recently have become disturbed over the noise of the aircraft flying over their homes to land at O'Hare Field. They have proposed writing to individual airlines to ask them to approach O'Hare Field from a different direction as one of the means of pressuring the airport to stop flying over their homes.

This raises a very interesting question in my mind. That is, over which suburb does Park Ridge residents wish the aircraft to fly? Palatine maybe, or Arlington Heights, Rolling Meadows, Schaumburg, Elk Grove or any of the suburbs surrounding O'Hare. I must add, we in these suburbs already have the aircraft flying over our homes most of the time, but with no complaints from residents.

Why do Park Ridge residents think they are privileged to be the only suburb without aircraft flying overhead. Suppose each suburb should complain about the noise and request the airlines not to fly over their homes. What would happen to O'Hare then?

Are the same residents of Park Ridge who are complaining also the people who use these airlines for business or pleasure or maybe they just earn their livelihood from one of the many jobs provided by the world's busiest airport.

Quite possibly O'Hare International Airport was there before many of these complainers were.

Mrs. L. Gorman Rolling Meadows.

'Driving not a right'

I wish to reply to the letter appearing in your July 2 paper.

A woman stated that motorists are unsafe while driving in Mount Prospect. Since when is it a crime for a 3-year-old child to cross the street at a corner?

I am the mother of the boy, Chris Janu, who was hit while trying to cross the street from a corner. He died 10 days later. Unlike the driver of the car, Chris will never reach 18 years of age.

Chris never played in the street a day in his too short life. Unfortunately, he will never play anywhere again.

As for being given a ticket for hitting someone, the pedestrian always has the right of way. Driving is a privilege, not a right.

Mrs. Lynn Janu
Mount Prospect.

Townships supported

Your August 12 editorial concerning township funding of mental health programs just came to my attention.

I am pleased with your attitude that the provision of mental health services is an appropriate function of township government.

You seem to imply that this can be done only through appropriation of revenue sharing funds, and while I don't wish to detract from the bold and sincere actions of many town boards in allocating revenue sharing for this purpose, I do wish to inform you that townships also have the power to expend their own tax monies for mental health.

Under House Bill 231, which I authored and which became law Oct. 1, 1973, townships may, by approval of the electors at the annual meeting, appropriate general fund monies derived from the real estate tax for mental health services.

The new statute limits the expenditures to payments (for services to township residents) to mental health agencies in existence for at least one year and approved by the Illinois Department of Mental Health.

Mental retardation, alcoholism and drug abuse services are specifically included in the definition of mental health services for purposes of this law.

The law does not permit an increase in the tax rate ceiling for the general fund.

I am pleased to inform you further that many townships are currently using 231 and that is almost every Cook County town meeting where the question was put to the electors last April, it was enthusiastically endorsed.

I have, by the way, heard of no responsible person who questions the power of townships to spend revenue sharing funds for mental health within the guidelines of 231. The crux of the dispute is whether such funds can be paid to agencies which would not qualify for 231 funds or even be spent for a township-operated mental health program. Any challenge going beyond this limited question is clearly no less than a blind attack on township government itself.

Thank you, editor, for caring about the little guy who needs the services and doesn't take the time to worry about the politics involved while he or one of his loved ones is in crisis.

pointed 11-member board every year since 1966, for a system that includes rapid transit, buses, trolleys and trackless trolleys, as well as subsidies for commuter operations of two bankrupt railroads. His general manager, William R. Eaton, came to SEPTA four years ago from the aerospace industry with no experience in mass transportation.

• Stanley Gates Jr. — He is president of National City Management Co., of Houston, Tex., but the city just bought that transit system from him. He operates systems in 13 other U.S. cities, including Miami, Fla. For him, transportation is a business and not a public service role.

Alan Blingham — His domain is the private firm of AC Transit in Alameda and Contra Costa counties near San Francisco, which includes buses only. Again, transit is a business to him.

• Jack R. Gilstrap — An executive for 15 years with the transit industry of Los Angeles, he has risen through the ranks to general manager of the Southern California Rapid Transit Dist., known as RTD. Formerly an executive with the state Dept. of Mental Health and the California legislature, he has a master's degree in public administration. At age 43 he is also involved in national transit organizations. Gilstrap manages a system of 4,630 employees and 1,869 buses that carry 630,000 passengers daily. He is charged with coming up with developmental legislation and development of a rapid transit system, for which a referendum is planned soon. He works for an 11-man, appointed board representing the RTD's various areas.

John Simpson — Probably the nation's youngest top transportation official, Simpson, 37, heads the Denver area's Regional Transportation Dist. He accepted the job as executive director there less than a year ago, with past experience as deputy administrator of the New York City Environmental Protection Agency. A retired U.S. Army Colonel and West Point graduate, he has a degree in civil engineering and master's degrees in engineering and public administration. In his military career he served with the Office of Emergency Preparedness (on energy matters) and was staff officer in procurement (including vehicles) in Detroit. He was a combat engineer in Southeast Asia and ran the Berlin Railroad for a while. The young RTD is in the process of acquiring six bus companies in six counties including Denver, and is planning for a futuristic rapid transit system that may include unmanned, demand-activated cars described as horizontal elevators. Termed aggressive, energetic and innovative, his system is realizing a 25 percent a month increase in ridership, according to his staff. Simpson is a Chicago native.

• John T. "Jack" Doolittle Jr. — He holds two positions in Massachusetts. He is undersecretary of transportation and construction for the state and chairman of the board of directors of the Massachusetts Bay Transit Authority. He declines his MBTA salary. Doolittle, 39, has been executive director of the Twin Cities Metropolitan Transit Commission in Minneapolis-St. Paul, Minn., and general manager of the Capital District Transportation Authority in Albany, N. Y. He was also project manager during the planning stages of the Baltimore Regional Transit System. His general manager, Joseph C. Kelly, 32, is one of the few career transit executives in the business. Kelly started with the old Boston Elevated Railway Co. in 1947 and stayed through the evolution to the MBTA, which now serves 79 communities with buses, streetcars, trolleys and rapid transit trains.

• Jackson Graham — A 30-year career U.S. Army officer, he was sought for the post of general manager of the Washington Metropolitan Area Transit Authority in 1967. A major general at the time of his retirement from the Corps of Engineers, Graham had extensive experience with personnel and engineering, handling thousands of employees and a budget exceeding a billion dollars. Washington is in the midst of a three-state subway construction program planned by a small federal agency. The system includes 1,900 buses and operation of exclusive bus lanes in the median of Shirley Highway.

RTA chairman to be named 'after few more interviews'

Selection of a permanent chairman for the Regional Transportation Authority should come "after a few more personal interviews," temporary chairman Joseph Tecson said Monday.

Tecson said the eight RTA board members have considered more than 60 persons for the post which is both the administrative head of RTA and the tie-breaking vote between the suburbanites and the Chicagoans on the board.

Eighteen "personal conferences" have been held with prospective chairmen in executive sessions that have been going on for three days each week in June, July and August, Tecson said.

Noting that the candidates for the chairman post recruited by the eight board members have included "the highest levels of government and industry," Tecson said that the board has been hampered by legal tests of the RTA's constitutionality, by threats to change the RTA structure and by a lack of funds.

Finances for the newly-formed authority were looking up Monday, however, after action taken by Gov. Daniel Walker on Friday led to the RTA receiving more than $17 million in state sales tax funds.

Richard Newland of Waukegan, acting treasurer for the board, said the money would be available late Monday afternoon and would be on deposit by Tuesday morning.

Conference gives workers campaign 'tools'

GOP to hang inflation on Democrats

by BOB LAHEY

Big spending by a Democratic Congress as a major cause of rampant inflation was targeted by Republican conservatives Sunday as their chief hope for holding their own in the 1974 elections.

Five Republican congressmen and one congressional candidate spanning the nation from Maryland to California gathered at Mundelein for the second "National Leadership Conference" hosted by Rep. Philip M. Crane, R-12th.

A highlight of the afternoon session was a panel discussion between three of the visitors and four precinct workers, designed to give grassroots campaign workers tools with which to attract Republican votes in November.

WHAT THE GRASSROOTS workers wanted to discuss was inflation and the national economy in general.

State Comptroller George Lindberg, the panel moderator, set the tone for most of the discussion when he declared, "The principal issue is that the Congress has been dominated by the Democrats for 40 of the last 44 years." (Republicans had majorities in the House only from 1917 to 1949, and from 1953 to 1955).

On the panel were Rep. Marjorie Holt of Maryland, one of only two Republican women in the House; Rep. Harold Froelich of Wisconsin, a member of the House Judiciary Committee; and congressional candidate David Rehmann of California, who spent 6½ years as a prisoner of war in Vietnam.

Questioner Robert Clark of Palatine opened the discussion by asking the guests how Republican vote-seekers can answer the charge that the nation suffered the worst inflation in its history during the 6½ years of the Nixon administration.

"You have got to pin it on the big spenders in Congress," said Mrs. Holt.

"The blame rests squarely on the House of Representatives," said Rehmann. "They are the only ones who can appropriate money and tax, and they are the ones to blame."

He said he has proposed legislation which would require all bills introduced Water-what and Rocky-who...?

An assemblage of conservative Republican congressmen got through several hours discussion of the 1974 congressional campaign Sunday without a mention of two topics which they find unpleasant:

Watergate, and the nomination of Nelson Rockefeller as Vice President.

Not until three of the visiting congressmen faced a panel of Chicago-area newsmen was either topic broached in a conference designed to help grassroots workers shape their campaign appeals.

When the issue of Richard Nixon was finally brought up, the congressmen approached the subject obliquely.

"We are all pleased to be running with Jerry Ford," said U.S. Rep. Jack Kemp, R-N.Y. "The fact that someone has fallen doesn't mean that what he stood for has fallen."

In Congress to include an "inflation-impact statement" showing their effect on the economy, an idea which became a recurring theme in the conference.

BETWEEN PANEL discussions, George Burditt, candidate for the U.S. Senate against Democratic Sen. Adlai Stevenson, presented his proposal for a constitutional amendment requiring a balanced national budget and outlined a five-point program for reducing the current budget estimate by $10 billion.

Burditt said the estimated $305 billion budget could be brought into balance through:

- A one-month moratorium on hiring to replace those who leave government service.
- Elimination of overlapping services by government agencies.
- Deferment of certain public works and Corps of Engineers projects.
- Reductions in foreign aid.
- Restructuring of certain taxes, and institution of a minimum tax on all corporations to close certain loopholes.

U.S. Rep. Edward Derwinski, R-4th, said it was "the tough luck" of the Democratic party that "the political situation has turned around 180 degrees" since Nixon left office.

U.S. Rep. Robert Huber, R-Mich., declared, "The penalty for Watergate has been paid."

Asked about Rockefeller, Ford's fellow Michigander Huber said, "His appointment will not help unify the party." Huber said that Rockefeller remains unacceptable to conservatives who three times rejected him as a presidential nominee.

He added that he does not believe Ford will seek election in 1976, and that Rockefeller will become the frontrunner for the GOP presidential nomination.

Rep. Philip Crane

Crane to seek ways, means panel seat

U.S. Rep. Philip M. Crane, R-12th, will seek assignment to the powerful Ways and Means Committee of the House in the 94th Congress, he told colleagues Sunday.

A vacancy to which Illinois is "entitled" will be created on the committee with the retirement of U.S. Rep. Harold Collier, R-6th, of Riverside this year.

Although seven of the 12 Illinois Republicans who could be reelected in November outrank Crane in seniority, he said only one of them, U.S. Rep. Thomas Rallsback, R-19th, of Moline, has expressed interest in Collier's committee seat. However, Crane indicated that Rallsback's assignment to Ways and Means is unlikely because his voting record is not popular with the Republican leadership.

Other senior Republicans from Illinois serve on such key committees as Rules, Appropriations, Education and Labor, and "are satisfied" with those spots, said Crane.

Crane now is the ninth ranking Republican on the House Banking and Currency Committee.

Bidding two four-card suits

Let's see what we can do about establishing a basis for choice of which suit to bid when you hold two four-card suits. When they are clubs and spades the rule is easy. Even the most obtuse four-card-suit bidder opens today's North hand with one club.

After that club opening the bidding moves gently to a final contract of two diamonds and South has no trouble making the contract with an overtrick.

Suppose North opens one spade. There is a real theory in back of this spade opening. North wants to be sure that if anyone does play spades he will be the declarer.

If South raises him to two North will pass. He may make it. If he doesn't he will complain about bad luck.

Now suppose that South responds one notrump. The defense will start with five heart tricks and probably succeed in gathering a spade and a club or diamond for down one.

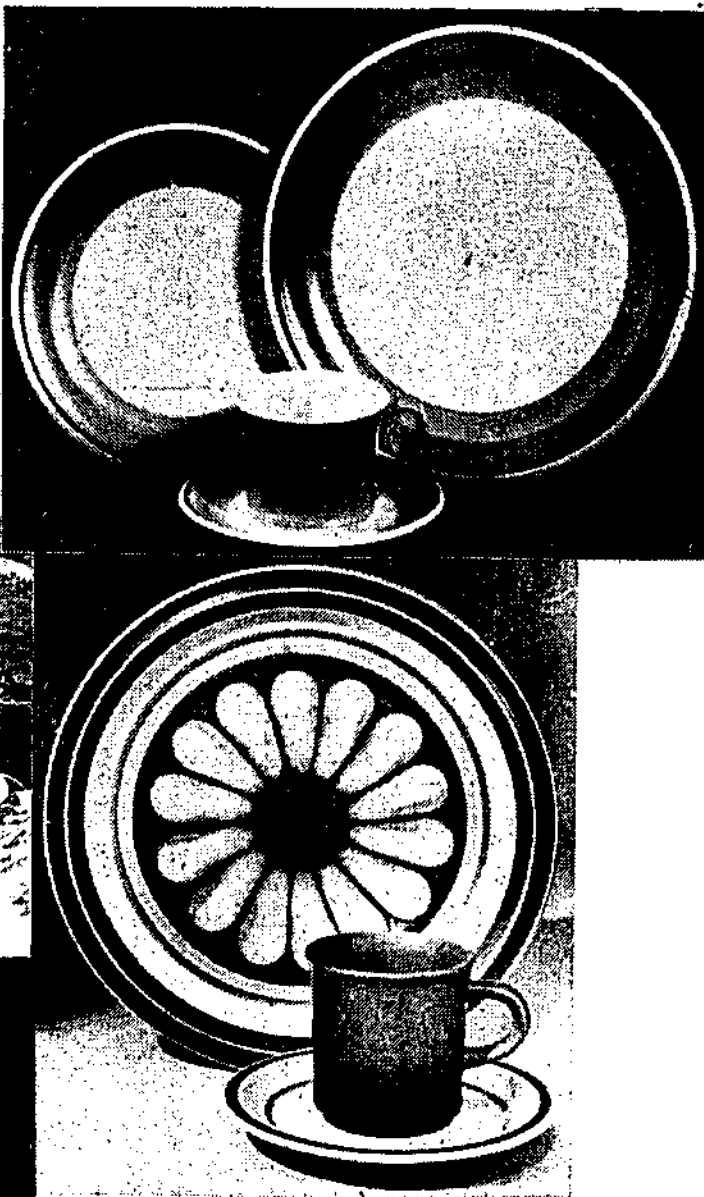

The real trouble results if South elects to try a two diamond response. That is a forcing bid and the chances are the partnership will wind up going down several tricks at some horrible game contract.

WESTCHESTER CHAMP Johnny Miller, displaying his $50,000 winner's check, is at that dangerous age where the little voice inside him

'This is a joke, really'

HARRISON, N.Y. — Westchester champ Johnny Miller, winner of six golf tournaments already this year, is at that dangerous age where the little voice inside him which says slow down, relax and take it easy keeps being drowned out by that other one saying don't be a sucker, get it all while you can.

Johnny Miller doesn't know this yet because he's only 27, but voice No. 2 is bound to prevail nine times out of 10. Twenty years from now, when he's 47, he'll have a much better understanding why this usually is the case.

So far this year, Miller has won the Crosby, the Phoenix, Tucson and Heritage opens, the Tournament of Champions and now the Westchester Classic, which really wasn't anywhere as close as the final returns might indicate.

Miller beat runner-up Don Bles by only two strokes, but had it all the way, finishing 19 strokes under par to shave a stroke off the previous record held jointly by Arnold Palmer and Jack Nicklaus. Their old record was 270. Miller's new one is 269, and netted him the $30,000 first prize, pushing his already top money winnings total for the year to $256,000.

"This is a joke, really," he said, without intending to sound boastful either. "I mean, when you're in contention seven times and you win six, what else can you say?"

Johnny Miller spoke about how well he was doing generally this year, the remaining tournaments in which he intends to compete over the next four months and the enormous help he received from his caddy, Andy Martinez, here, and then suddenly he applied the brakes and talked about something he certainly did not intend doing. He said he never was going to let golf and its accompanying outside business commitments interfere with the time he spends with his family.

"I'm not as goal-oriented as Gary Player," he said. "I'm not driven as the Arnold Palmer of old. I think there are some guys who live and die with every shot. I'm not that way. Jack Nicklaus also has been driven very hard."

"We were coming down the 18th hole today and he told me he had so many things going, that all he really was doing was creating jobs for other people."

Lee Trevino ran himself into the ground the same way.

"You know, we've thrown sports so out of proportion in this country. Somebody comes up to you and says 'how would you like to make $150,000 simply by making three or four personal appearances?' Of course you tell him okay."

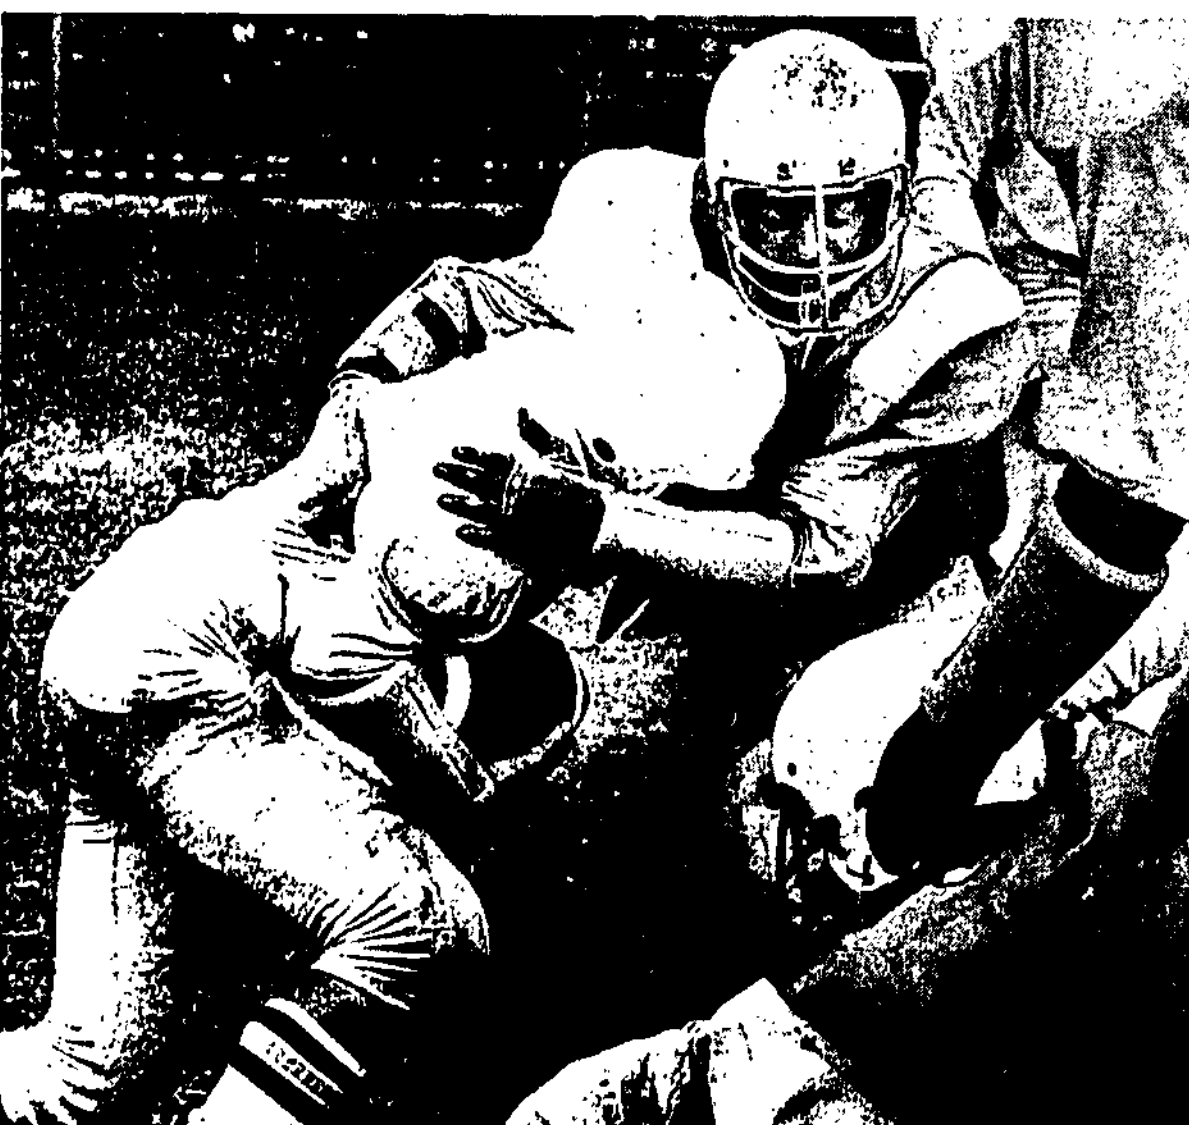

"So you do it, and you make a million dollars, but then you find out it isn't that easy. On Monday and Tuesday you discover somebody owns you. On Wednesday you're playing in a pro-am, and then on Thursday, Friday, Saturday and Sunday you're playing in some tournament. You don't really own yourself."

Johnny Miller doesn't realize he is saying the very same thing that fellows like Palmer, Nicklaus and Player have said so many times before.

It wasn't so many years ago, when Gary Player, sitting in the clubhouse in Augusta, Ga., during the Masters said he'd be switched if he'd let tournament golf become the same kind of passion with him as it had with this one other former player he knew. Player never mentioned this other man's name, but he was talking about Ben Hogan.

Golf was, and still is, deep in Hogan's blood. It's in Player's the same way, and it's in Palmer's and Nicklaus' veins also. Johnny Miller can say anything he likes, primarily because he's winning and because he's 27, but the chances are he will no more be able to get the game out of his innards than any of the others have.

DEFENSE WAS the strong suit for last year's Elk Grove football team and this year looks like more of the same as the Grans go through grueling two-a-day drills preparing for the opener against Palatino.

Heating up

Pete Rose: 'Los Angeles is chasing us'

NEW YORK — There is nothing spectacular about the drama of a pennant race. Eighteen-legged creatures strive against each other to be first at the October wire. Thousands of pairs of eyes watch in the night and as many throats bellow partisan demands from the stands. In other milieux, millions of index fingers scan the morning paper's box scores and standings.

It is a race as throbbing for the players as for the fans.

With spikes clacking on the wooden runway under the cool stands leading to the dugout, Pete Rose was saying, "I can tell you without having looked that the Dodgers' game is fourth down on the right-hand side of the scoreboard. At this time of the season, we do a lot of scoreboard watching."

Rose is the star Cincinnati Reds outfielder, and 1973 National League Most Valuable Player. The Reds are in pursuit of the Los Angeles Dodgers for the lead in the N.L. West division. At this time of the season, too, the moss-encrusted cliché, "We play them one at a time," is trotted out by the players. No one believes them. Rose is too bumptiously honest to play that spurious game.

"We sit in the dugout and watch the numbers," Rose continued. "Is there a change in pitchers? There's trouble for Coast and a lot of times the morning papers don't have the score. Then I got to start asking around. Anyone heard it on the radio?"

"The time difference I think is to our advantage. I mean, they always start a game knowing how we did in the East. And if we win, that puts pressure on them."

"It's like when I won my first batting title in 1968. I came down to the last game of the season tied with Matty Alou. Our games were at the same time. He went four-for-four. I went five-for-five. And I won the championship by a fraction. But if I had played later and had known he went four-for-four, no way I could have gotten five straight hits myself."

"The fans are a barometer of how a team is doing even before the scoreboard relays the news. Radios in the stands will elicit roars of sorts when it is announced that the Dodgers have gone ahead or have fallen behind. The Reds' ears are as attuned to such signals from the stands as they are aware of the numerical transformation unfolding in centerfield."

When Rose can, he will catch the Dodger games on his high frequency radio. In his living room in Cincinnati, he roots, moans or sits unmoving, as the situation dictates.

"And like the other day when the Dodgers played Philadelphia and Larry Bowa, a friend of mine, screwed up, I gave him hell the next time we played the Phillies," said Rose, smiling his at once tough but ingenuous gap-tooth smile. "I'm a real agitator. The worst."

He also agitates his closest rivals, the Dodgers, particularly his friends, like Ron Cey, Dodger third baseman.

Just before the start of the recent series at Los Angeles, Rose and Cey stood together behind the batting cage. Rose reminded Cey that this was a similar race to last season, when the Reds were 11 games down to the Dodgers as late as July 1 and won 30 out of their last 40 games to overtake them.

"I said to Cey," Rose recalled, "You guys know we're right on your tail. You can hear the Big Red Machine getting louder and louder behind you."

Cey said, "What are you talkin' about, man. We're in first place, not you."

"Yeah," replied Rose, "but we're in the driver's seat. You got a 6½ game lead and you're chasin' us."

That, said Rose, was when Cey got mad and walked away.

(Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

Ron Cey isn't listening to Rose

Los Angeles Dodger third baseman Ron Cey denies none of the above.

"We blew the pennant last season," says Cey. "It ain't gonna happen again."

It actually wasn't the pennant. It was the National League West division. The Dodgers at one point had an 11-game lead over the Cincinnati Reds and finished in second place, 3½ back. This season, the Dodgers have enjoyed a lead as thick as 10½ games, which was then whittled at one point to 3½ in front.

"When the Reds last season began their late-season charge," recalls Cey, "we began to watch them too closely. We'd be playing two games, ours on the field and the Reds' on the scoreboard."

"I'd go up to bat with men on base, say, and I'd be thinking, 'The Reds won, or the Reds just scored to go ahead of Philadelphia in the sixth inning. I'd better get a hit here to keep our rally going.' That was just putting double pressure on me. And I wasn't alone. Most of our club was doing the same."

Cey was a 25-year-old rookie last season. Most of his teammates were relatively inexperienced major leaguers, and inexperienced certainly in the crucible of a big-league late-season struggle for first place. They were battling the Reds, a Red Machine now, we're starting to roll.' Something. Anything to try to play with our minds, to force us out of our routine. Last year, it was true, we had a lead but we were chasing the Reds. Now I'll tell Rose, 'I hear you talking', but I ain't buyin'."

Cey takes solace in the fact that the Dodgers are a perceptively different club this season. For one thing, they have had several short losing streaks and have each time bounced back into even longer winning streaks.

They have Mike Marshall, gotten in trade with Montreal over the winter. Marshall is the best relief pitcher in baseball, and the most fire-relievers in one," says Cey. The Dodgers have won many pennants in the past 35 years, and they've always done it with superb pitching. Now they have Messersmith and John and Sutton. Just as they've had the Erskines and Newcombs and Roes and Drysdale and Koufaxes. But they've never won without the great reliever —

Hugh Casey, Joe Black, Phil Regan, Ron Perranoski.

Jim Wynn, outfielder received in trade from Houston, has been a powerful addition. And converted outfielders like Davey Lopes at second, Joe Ferguson behind the plate, and Bill Russell at short are a year older and more confident.

And they, like Cey, now know what it takes to win a title.

Steadiness, for one thing. The Dodgers were 5½ in front of Cincinnati at the All-Star break and were 5½ in front later in mid-August. "Time is getting thin for the Reds," Cey says.

"The biggest concern is to avoid the mental fatigue of the pennant race. Sure, we know we can make a lot more money by winning. But I think we are mostly playing for the pride, for the race involved. We have to remain kind of pure in our minds. We can't think too much, can't see too much, can't hear too much. If you don't know nothin', you can't out-think yourself out of first place."

by JILL BETTNER

Omni-House: Youth Services Bureau, 57 S. Wolf Rd., may be relocating next summer. A Glenview realty firm has applied for business zoning on the Wolf Road site and will purchase the land if zoning is approved.

The festival will begin with the swim party and dance Friday night at Buffalo Grove High School. The swim will begin at 6:30 p.m. and music by "Sahara" will begin at 7:30 p.m. Admission is free.

ON SATURDAY, adults can attend the steak fry and dance at the Buffalo Grove Golf Club. Cocktails will be served at 6 p.m., with dinner at 7 p.m. "The Speakers" will provide music beginning at 9:30 p.m.

Richard (Ned) Lyko & Associates has asked that the Omni-House property be rezoned from residential special use to business zoning for professional offices. The request was to be considered Monday night by the village board.

According to the petition for rezoning, the contract purchase price on the property is $92,500. The owners are Earl and Anita Jensen, who formerly lived in the red-brick ranch home on the site.

The Jensens obtained the residential special use zoning on the property last year that allowed Omni-House to move in. The counseling agency signed a lease last January to rent the house for one year with the option of renewing the agreement for an additional six months.

PETER DIGRE, Omni-House executive director, said Monday the counseling agency will continue to rent the house until the option expires next July.

If Lyko & Associates purchase the property, Digre said the decision facing the Omni-House board of directors will be whether to seek another location for one central office or set up several branch facilities in the area.

Omni-House serves Wheeling, Buffalo Grove, Arlington Heights, Prospect Heights and Mount Prospect.

Digre said Omni-House had an opportunity to bid on the property, but decided against making a large real estate investment in favor of using available funds to provide services.

"We could have bid if we had wanted to," he said, "but we didn't want to get strapped with a large debt for capital development while we're trying to go on with programs. We decided it would be better to keep the money in programs."

DIGRE ALSO SAID it was understood when the original lease was signed on the property that it might be sold after 18 months.

"We took it knowing that it could be an 18-month deal and I'll admit we have a problem — this is an ideal location and we don't like the idea of leaving," he said.

In discussing the future home for Omni-House, Digre said he favors establishing branch offices, but the cost of maintaining more than one agency might be prohibitive.

"Because branches would mean greater overhead costs, we're a little leery about it, but we do want to be closer to some of the neighborhoods we serve," he said.

The main priority in the search for one or more new locations will be finding as much usable space as possible for the lowest cost.

OMNI-HOUSE: YOUTH Services Bureau, presently renting this house at 57 S. Wolf Rd., may be moving to a new location next summer. A Glenview realty firm is seeking to change the zoning on the property to allow offices. If the firm gets the zoning, it will buy the property for $92,500.

Buses still the way, Luisada believes

by KURT BAER

The need for public transportation within the Northwest suburbs is as great today as it ever was, says Claude Luisada, the man who tried but failed to run a profitable commuter bus service in Arlington Heights.

It was a year ago that Metron Systems Corp. began shuttling commuters to and from the Arlington Heights train station, an enterprise that was to end in financial collapse nine months later.

But though the system may have been ill-fated, it was not ill-conceived, Luisada insists today.

"Nothing has happened to change my mind about that," he says. What he has changed his mind about is the notion that public transportation will ever turn a profit.

"Maybe if you have a million dollars' backing for 18 to 24 months at full operation, along with all the necessary promotion, you might have a fighting chance," he says.

Claude Luisada

LUISADA ADMITS that the commuter bus shuttle was undercapitalized. "We started on a shoestring," he says. But he also criticizes the Arlington Heights Village Board's decision not to provide an operating subsidy to keep the buses running. "I think they should have bit the bullet and kept something going until the Regional Transportation Authority could take over funding."

Despite its financial failure, the commuter service itself was good and couldn't have been expanded with more buses, Luisada says. "People have told us they felt we were providing a very good service."

At the time it ceased operation on May 31, Metron was using two village-owned buses, purchased at a cost of $57,000, and a small van. More buses, even if they had been second hand, would have permitted the company to run more routes, and meet more trains which eventually would have meant more riders, Luisada reasons.

The 200 passengers who were riding Metron's buses each working day is a "very misleading number," he says, because the buses in use were nearly filled for each of the three trips they were able to make during the rush hour.

METRON SYSTEMS had only started to meet the need for public transportation in Arlington Heights when it was forced to abandon its bus service, Luisada says.

There is a need for transportation to area office buildings, industries, shopping centers and other traffic generators. There is a need for dial-a-bus among the elderly, persons who do not drive, families who cannot afford a second, or even a first car, and youngsters aged 10-16, he says.

"People are generally skeptical of public transportation because it hasn't met their needs," Luisada says, adding that he has detected a general slackening of interest in public transportation in the Chicago area over the past several months.

"The two biggest misconceptions are that we don't need public transportation and that nobody's going to ride it even if we have it," he says.

by JOHN MAES

The owner of the buildings that include a townhouse at 520-J W. Dover Dr., will be billed for the $2,200 it cost the city to haul tons of garbage from the apartment during the weekend.

Wallace Schaeffer, deputy commissioner of public works for Des Plaines, said Monday the bill would be turned over to Robert Lubin, of Lubin Management Corp., owners of the 22-unit complex on the city's west side.

Schaeffer said his crews spent 15½ hours Friday and Saturday shoveling mounds of assorted trash and human excrement from the townhouse.

The tenant, Wayne Clegghorn, 38, was arrested last week by Des Plaines police and charged with violating a city ordinance for creating a public nuisance.

CITY WORKERS boarded up the residence after finishing the massive cleanup operation late Saturday afternoon. City Health Director Jean Branding said Lubin will also be given a deadline for "cleaning and extermination."

Residents of the development and his employer said Clegghorn was neat in appearance and had no idea he lived among heaps of garbage.

"He was a good man, no problems with him at all," said Nick Tarant, owner of Happy Foods, 4618 Oakton, Skokie, where Clegghorn worked for almost five years before he quit several days ago.

Clegghorn has a wife and three children, but they were not living in the apartment when police arrested him after responding to a call of a break-in at the address.

Mrs. Clegghorn works as an obstetrical nurse in Chicago, police said.

THE CLEGGHORNS kept their windows and door shut all the time and those neighbors who noticed the odor thought it was sewage rather than the heaping debris accumulating in the house.

Pieces of paper were stuffed under the rear door of the residence and were stuck over a door window blocked in apparent attempts to cover up the mess inside.

ALTHOUGH SOME neighbors said they had complained to city health officials about an odor several months ago, Mrs. Branding said she received no "specific" complaints about the 259-J apartment other than general nuisance-abatement complaints that she said came from all over the city.

Lubin could not be reached for comment yesterday and Mrs. Clegghorn, when contacted, refused to answer questions about how long it had been since she had been in the apartment and why it was in such condition.

"I don't have anything to say," she said.

Wheeling to limit multiple housing to 'special need'

by LYNN ASINOF

Developers of multiple-family housing projects will find it difficult to win approval of their plans in Wheeling, according to village officials.

Village board members said Monday they expect to limit the number of apartments, condominiums and townhouses built in Wheeling.

Their statements came in reaction to a report that 61.43 per cent of all housing in Wheeling is multiple-family. The report was prepared by Thomas Markus, administrative assistant.

Trustee Ronald Bruhn said he was not surprised that there are so many multiple-family units in Wheeling. He said, however, he does not plan to vote for more multi-family projects unless they have a special need, such as senior citizen housing.

"FOR CONDOMINIUMS and so forth, unless it is an extremely specialized type thing, I won't be voting for it," Bruhn said.

Noting that the village has not approved any multiple-family projects in several months, Bruhn said the village has neared the saturation point. He said, however, the village can maintain a proper balance by promoting single-family homes for the remaining vacant village land.

"Growth goes in cycles. I think we're starting a new cycle of housing," he said.

Trustee Donald Jackson suggested the village seek professional planning help in developing policies that will restrict the amount of multiple-family development.

"There are some obvious ways of doing it by more restrictive policies and so forth," he said. "But rather than bring all development to a complete halt, I would rather get some professional help in the areas of community planning so we can proceed."

NOTING THE NEED for long range planning, Jackson said he was glad Markus' report pointed out the direction of Wheeling's development. "The reason I became involved in village government was to put a stop to this kind of thing," he said.

Trustee John Koeppen said he will ask for a further breakdown of Wheeling's housing to determine how many units are rental and how many are actually for sale. He said the report does not sound as bad once the amount of for-sale housing is taken into consideration.

"You can't classify a renter with a buyer," Koeppen said of the developments' impact on the need for village services. He said he will ask Markus to break down the number of multiple-family units into condominiums, townhouses and apartments, saying this will give the board a better picture.

Nonetheless, Koeppen said he plans to take a good look at any multiple-family project that is proposed, and indicated it will probably be more difficult for such projects to win village approval.

TRUSTEE ALBERT LANG said he thinks the village has been gradually moving towards a harder line on multiple-family projects. He said, however, he had not realized how many multi-family units had been built.

"I didn't realize we had that many in, and I don't like to see any more come in," he said. "I think we have enough multiple-family housing. I think we should go for single-family."

Village Pres. Ted C. Scanlon also said the village has been moving away from multiple-family projects. He said, however, the village board will not be able to do anything about property that has already been zoned for such projects.

"I believe this is all builders want to build, and I don't know how we're going to stop it," he said. "If the land is so zoned, the only thing we can do is stop any more zoning of that type."

Although residents have long complained about the number of multiple-family projects being built, the board previously said the village legally cannot prevent such development. The trustees told residents the village could be taken to court if it denied zoning for these projects. They also said developers will not build single-family homes because of the skyrocketing construction costs.

Only 35 volunteer; goal is 175 pints

More blood donors needed Saturday

The Buffalo Grove Blood Donor Commission still is in need of donors for Saturday's blood drive at Buffalo Grove High School.

Officials said Monday 35 residents have made appointments to donate at the drive, considerably short of the village goal of 175 pints.

Members of the blood commission said several weeks ago that donations are down and they are concerned about the village's eligibility in the North Suburban Blood Center's free blood-replacement program.

In order for the village at large to remain eligible under the program, residents must donate 190 pints of blood every three months, or 760 pints a year.

Blood commission co-chairman Sylvia Bogart said only 36 pints of blood have been donated so far, for the three month period ending Sept. 1.

EVEN WITH THE additional 35 pints pledged for the next drive, the village would fall 119 pints short of its quarterly quota.

Anyone wishing to donate Saturday can make an appointment by calling Mrs. Bogart at 541-1620, commission co-chairman Carol Lauter at 541-4640 or the village hall at 537-8984.

A mobile unit from the NSBC will be at the high school, Dundee and Arlington Heights roads, from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Persons unable to donate the day of the drive can sign a pledge card and donate at an area hospital at their convenience.

THOSE WHO DONATE through organizations, businesses or on their own are asked to notify village officials so the blood donation can be credited toward the village's quota.

The village program provides free blood replacement anywhere in the United States for all residents if 4 per cent of them donate a pint of blood each year.

If the village falls short of its quota, those who have donated and members of their immediate families are still eligible. They will be given as much blood as they need for as long as necessary.

Donors must be 18 to 65 years old and weigh at least 110 pounds.

IGE study group response distresses school official

School Dist. 96 Board of Education member Tom Rusk voiced disappointment Monday because only a small number of residents have volunteered to study the Individually Guided Education open-school curriculum in the district.

So far, only four persons have expressed interest in serving on the citizens' committee to be appointed by the school board.

The IGE program has been in operation for two years of a five-year implementation schedule in Dist. 96, which serves the Lake County section of Buffalo Grove and Long Grove.

The school board decided to appoint the citizens' committee two weeks ago, after questions and criticism of the IGE program in recent weeks by Dist. 96 residents.

The school board's community relations committee will undertake the evaluation of IGE and include nine community members.

RUSK, WHO WILL chair the group, told The Herald he was amazed that more Dist. 96 residents have not volunteered to serve on the committee.

"I'm completely disappointed in the people of Dist. 96," he said. "After the music fiasco and the other IGE meeting, I thought that people would jump on this one."

Rusk referred to dissatisfaction on the part of some residents with the IGE program that surfaced in recent meetings regarding the music curriculum in the district.

The committee originally was scheduled to convene shortly after Labor Day. Rusk said that starting time will be delayed to give residents ample opportunity to volunteer.

"It's still open," Rusk said. "If the volunteers don't come in, we'll have to start personally contacting people we think might be interested. But we hesitate to do that because people will say it's a fixed committee."

The intent, Rusk said, is to set up the committee with five residents from Buffalo Grove, two from Long Grove and one from an unincorporated area of the district.

RUSK HAS established three broad guidelines for the committee, asking residents to study:

- The IGE program as it exists today in relation to the student, the parents, the faculty, the administration, and the community as a whole.

- Discipline in Dist. 96 schools.
- Curriculum and school activities as they relate to the students, parents and faculty.

Persons interested in serving on the committee should contact Rusk, 438-0083, board member Gary Ikens, 541-3386 or Dist. 96 Supt. William Hitzeman, 634-3074.

pushing the Northwest suburbs toward a bus system — rising gasoline prices, the increased cost of car ownership, worsening traffic congestion, and additional numbers of senior citizens in the population. The door is open, he says, for another bus company, backed by the RTA, to begin service in the suburbs. "I don't think we ruined it for the future for Arlington Heights. I know we didn't leave our passengers with a bad taste in their mouths."

The statement underscores Luisada's belief that Metrolink did not short-change its riders. "The only one who got short-changed is sitting right here," he says.

and brat festival and an old-fashioned corn roast will take place at the field across from the village hall. Residents will be able to purchase "beer and brat for a buck" as well as hot dogs and soft drinks.

At 1 p.m., a homemaking and garden contest will be in progress at nearby Emmerich Park and at 2 p.m. an art fair will start at the village hall. Entries for the homemaking contest should be made by 9 a.m.

Sunday's activities also will include games, three puppet shows and music by the Palatine Village Band. The day will end with a fireworks display.

Anyone wishing to assist in the Buffalo Grove Days celebration should call Bob Bogart, 541-1620; Mike Chamberlain, 541-2993, or Nick Rubino, 537-1588.

6-story condo plan up for review again

The Des Plaines Zoning Board of Appeals will renew deliberations tonight on plans for a six-story condominium at 1702 Mill St. that has been bogged down by residents' protests and city plans to build a new street in the area.

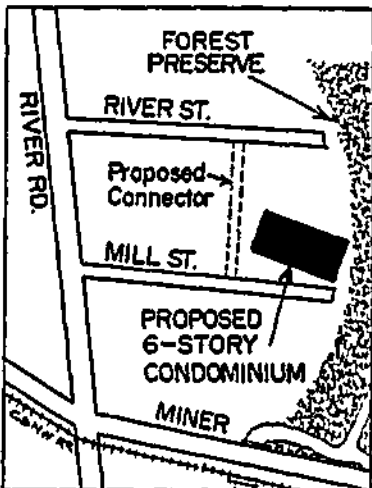

First plans for the building were presented Aug. 13, but the zoning board put off final action until city representatives were able to present their plans for a connector street to run between Mill and River streets.

The new street would be needed for an entrance for Mill Street residents if the proposed River Road overpass is built.

IN ADDITION TO representatives from various city departments, both 1st Ward aldermen also are expected to attend the zoning board session. Both Ald. Joseph Szabo, 1st, and Thomas Koplos, 1st, said they had received a number of calls from residents protesting the proposed location of the street and asking they attempt to have it moved about 200 feet east.

The city has been considering a number of plans for several years, but a recent proposal to develop the property, owned by Barney Franzen, has brought about a need for quick action.

Mayor Herbert Behrel had been trying to obtain right-of-way from the Cook County Forest Preserve District for the connector street, but was told last month that it was against the district's policy to permit such uses.

Under existing city zoning codes, Harmony Builders could have built the structure without any zoning board hearing, but in an effort to assist the city in providing the connector street the builder agreed to move his structure to the east of his property, which required a side-yard variation.

SEVERAL PERSONS who own property on River Street behind the proposed condominium also testified at the first zoning board session.

Two property owners estimated the value of their property at more than $145,000 and said the city would have to pay for the land in order to get the right-of-way for the connector street.

Other property owners complained the proposed connector street would cause increased traffic congestion in the area. A number of residents have frequently protested the construction of multiple-family housing units in the area. They also have fought construction of the proposed River Road overpass.

Paul Kron, an architect for Harmony Builders, said last week that if the company is denied its request for the variation it will seek building permits for its plans that do meet all city requirements.

The zoning board is expected to reach some decision on the matter tonight after hearing from city officials. The meeting is at 8 p.m.

A STAIRWAY SOARS skyward as construction continues on the senior citizen housing project, Lee and Ashland streets. Nearly 200 applications have been received for the low-income housing for people over 65 years of age. Persons who have lived in Des Plaines more than two years will be the first to be placed.

City needs another 450 pints of blood

The City of Des Plaines still needs more than 450 pints of blood despite an emergency blood drawing last week.

Mrs. Rosemarie Beedy, blood program coordinator, said last Thursday's blood drive "went very well for such short notice." Some 66 employees from the city, Do-All Co. and Seralo Co. turned out for the drawing, which netted 55 pints of blood for the city.

Jean Branding, Des Plaines health director, said the city has collected about 130 pints of blood. The city needs 600 pints of blood by the end of September to meet its quarterly quota in the 4 per cent blood-assurance program.

Under the 4 per cent program, all Des Plaines residents and their dependent children to age 23 are assured of getting blood when and where they need it, providing 4 per cent of the population has donated. The city needs to collect 2,400 pints a year, but in the 1½ years it has been in the program with the North Suburban Blood Center it has not met that yearly quota.

MRS. BRANDING said the city will sponsor another blood drawing during September. Residents also can give blood at any hospital which cooperates with the NSBC and have blood credited to the city.

Donors must be from 18 to 65 years of age and in good health. Each donor is given a quick medical check and a questionnaire to determine eligibility.

The city also has been working with group blood assurance plans with Des Plaines businesses and organizations, Mrs. Beedy said.

Under this group plan, the members and their families are covered for blood needs each year if 20 per cent of the members donate. Donors can have their blood credited both to the group plans and the city plans if they are residents.

For further information, contact Mrs. Branding or Mrs. Beedy at 324-3136.

Burglars get $350 worth of stereo gear

Burglars stole $350 worth of stereo equipment after breaking into the home of Jack F. Schimka, 1335 Carol Ln., Des Plaines police said.

Schimka told police he was returning home Friday night about 11 p.m. and noticed someone twisted his rear doorknob, off and forced open a dead-bolt lock.

Burglars also tried unsuccessfully to break into Gilman's House of Kleen carwash, 935 S. Elmhurst Rd., police said Monday.

According to reports, the burglars broke windows in an effort to get inside but were stopped by bar secured doors.

55 new teachers already at work

Schools getting 'finishing touches'

by BOB GALLAS

While most students in Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 are enjoying their last days of summer vacation this week, district staff members are busy getting ready for the first day of school, Sept. 3.

An estimated 10,833 students are expected to trek back to 21 district schools next week, down slightly from last year's enrollment of about 11,150, said Al Stone, assistant superintendent for personnel.

About 55 new teachers in the district officially started the school year Monday. All will attend a week-long series of special workshops. The rest of the 552 district teachers will officially start Friday, attending individual building workshops, although some teachers have reported early to their assigned schools to prepare for next week.

WHILE MANY neighboring school districts are starting back to school this week, Dist. 59 will start the traditional day after Labor Day, Sept. 3, due to remodeling going on at two district junior high schools.

"We wanted to give the contractors as many working days as possible," said Arthur Perry, assistant superintendent for administrative services.

Virtually all indoor remodeling at Grove Junior High School in Elk Grove Village and Dempster Junior High school in Des Plaines will halt when school starts, although outdoor work will continue, according to Perry. Construction will restart next summer.

Architects hope Maryville bids can be let soon

Architects in charge of the new Maryville School project say they are still hopeful of letting bids for construction of the school by October.

Anthony J. Siros of Flecks, Goldman and Magee, Mount Vernon, chief architect for the project, said Monday final design plans have yet to be fully approved by the Illinois Capital Development Board. The ICDB must approve design plans since it is providing nearly $1 million toward construction of the school.

Last week the ICDB okayed roughly 40 per cent of design drawings completed thus far and directed architects to prepare design specifications for use by prospective contractors for bidding.

SIROS SAID ARCHITECTS are hoping the ICDB will agree to hold only one more meeting for a final review of design plans. If the ICDB decides it wants to schedule more than one review session, it may delay bidding by several weeks, Siros said. Architects are planning another meeting with the ICDB either the third or fourth week in September, Siros added.

Although the school will be under the jurisdiction of River Trails Dist. 26, bids for construction of the new school will be let by the ICDB. Siros speculated the bids probably will be opened at the board's LaGrange office.

Architects are aiming for a September, 1975, opening for the new building, but Siros said if bid letting is set back much past October, the school may not be ready for occupancy until some months past September.

The new school will serve students from Maryville Academy, Des Plaines, who now attend River Road School. River Road must be replaced because it does not meet state life safety codes.

THE SCHOOL WILL be located on the Maryville Academy grounds in Des Plaines on a five-acre parcel of land at the intersection of Gregory Street and River Road.

According to preliminary designs the new school will be a 30,000 square foot, one-story building which will be basically rectangular in shape with various juts to house instructional modules.

Lloyd Demel, Dist. 26 board member, said last week he would like the board to begin considering a name for the new school. Demel suggested the name of Winston Harwood, who served as superintendent in the district for eight years before his retirement in 1971.

The board member added that other names for consideration should be presented by other board members.

Summer slides away quickly in the month of August.

Parks offer more than 50 programs for fall

A full schedule of more than 50 fall programs has been prepared by the Mount Prospect Park District.

The latest issue of "Fun Talk" listing fall programs has been mailed and should be received by residents of the park district this week.

Two new programs are being offered — aikido, the Oriental art of self defense and preschool trampolines.

Two special events also are being planned. One is a dried flower arranging demonstration by Kellen's Country Florists in Mount Prospect from 10 to 11 a.m. Oct. 11 at the Lions Park Recreation Center. The other is a Halloween party for youngsters in grades 1 through 6, from 4 to 5:30 p.m. Oct. 31 at the Lions Park Recreation Center gym.

THERE IS NO FEE for either of the special programs, but advance registration is being taken at the park district office in Lions Park, 411 S. Maple St., or 255-3300.

Besides the new and special programs, others being offered range from sewing to football with boxing, badminton, belly dancing, ceramics, tinkering and yoga in between.

Most classes begin meeting the week of Sept. 30. Registration will begin at 9 a.m. Sept. 10 at the Lions Park Recreation Center, with doors opening at 8 a.m.

After the initial registration day, registration will be available between 9 a.m. and noon and between 1 and 5 p.m. Monday through Friday and from 8 a.m. to 1 p.m. Saturday at Lions Park until activities begin or classes are filled. Fees must be paid at the time of registration. Each person can register one other family member besides his own.

Schools get final touches for new year

When school closes. With the seasonal crunch of rewaxing floors and other maintenance at other schools near completion, a beefed up maintenance crew of 20 to 30 men has been assigned to Grove and Dempster to assure cleanup operations at the two schools are completed before school starts.

NEW HEATING AND ventilating systems have been installed at both schools and work has almost been completed, according to Perry. The assistant superintendent added that work at both schools during the summer had progressed right on schedule, if not a little ahead of schedule.

In addition to major work at the two junior highs this summer, major repairs of roofs at 18 district buildings began and heating and ventilating work at two other schools has been completed.

Roofing repairs have been completed at Forest View School in Mount Prospect and Brentwood School in Des Plaines, said Adolph Danta, director of buildings and grounds for the district. Repairs are nearing completion at Clearmont School and Grove Junior High School in Elk Grove Village and John Jay School in Mount Prospect, he said.

Roofing repairs will continue at the remainder of the buildings as long as weather permits, according to Danta. The entire project, which will cost nearly $500,000, probably won't be completed until the end of next summer at the earliest, Danta said.

Hebrew education concept changed

The Independent Jewish Families of the Private Educational Center has introduced a new concept in Hebrew education in Des Plaines.

There are no grades in the school and progress reports replace report cards. Students move from one group to another according to their readiness, age and ability and do not necessarily have to wait a whole year to be promoted. Bar and Bas Mitzvah preparation begins one year before the actual Bar or Bas Mitzvah date.

The school is designed to fill a gap for those children whose parents are not who might not otherwise be able to obtain a Jewish education. Membership in the Independent Jewish Families is not necessary.

The Independent Jewish Families also serves the community by offering High Holy Day Services, adult classes and consultation. Membership is open for anyone who wishes to join.

Information about the school at 9000 Home Ave., Des Plaines may be obtained by calling 677-3252. Registration is now open for classes beginning in early September.

Project Pre-Dict begins next month

Registration for Project Pre-Dict, a diagnostic and instructional program for preschool children with learning problems, will begin in mid-September.

Parents are advised to contact their local elementary school for exact time and date. Each elementary school in Maine Township will have a half day of registration. During enrollment, parents will be able to discuss any concerns about their child's development.

Project Pre-Dict is entering its third and final year as a federally funded project. The program operates from the Project Pre-Dict Center in Oakton School, 2101 Oakton St., Park Ridge.

For further information, contact Richard W. Frank, Project Pre-Dict director, at 696-0214.

100 kids in Bible School

More than 100 children, aged 4 through 12, were enrolled in Immanuel Lutheran Church's recent Bible School program. Nursery service was provided for 2 and 3 year olds while mothers attended Bible and Christian art classes.

"Gods People Today" was the theme of the session with lessons, craft classes and music programs. Each day children won a "Children's Living Bible."

The theme was put into practice with children donating canned goods, and clothing, making quilts and sending their donations to the Chicago Uptown Ministry and St. James Lutheran Church in inner city Chicago. Guest speakers from Uptown and St. James told the children how they could aid people living close to them.

Schools getting final touches to start new year

by DOB GALLAS

While most students in Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 are enjoying their last days of summer vacation this week, district staff members are busy getting ready for the first day of school, Sept. 3.

An estimated 10,833 students are expected to trek back to 21 district schools next week, down slightly from last year's enrollment of about 11,150, said Al Stone, assistant superintendent for personnel.

About 55 new teachers in the district officially started the school year Monday. All will attend a week-long series of special workshops. The rest of the 552 district teachers will officially start Friday, attending individual building workshops, although some teachers have reported early to their assigned schools to prepare for next week.

WHILE MANY neighboring school districts are starting back to school this week, Dist. 59 will start the traditional day after Labor Day, Sept. 3, due to remodeling going on at two district junior high schools.

"We wanted to give the contractors as many working days as possible," said Arthur Perry, assistant superintendent for administrative services. Virtually all indoor remodeling at Grove Junior High School in Elk Grove Village and Dempster Junior High School in Des Plaines will halt when school starts, although outdoor work will continue, according to Perry. Construction will restart next summer when school closes.

With the seasonal crunch of rewaxing floors and other maintenance at other schools near completion, a beefed up maintenance crew of 20 to 30 men has been assigned to Grove and Dempster to assure cleanup operations at the two schools are completed before school starts.

NEW HEATING AND ventilating systems have been installed at both schools and work has almost been completed, according to Perry. The assistant superintendent added that work at both schools during the summer had progressed right on schedule, if not a little ahead of schedule.

In addition to major work at the two junior highs this summer, major repairs of roofs at 18 district buildings began and heating and ventilating work at two other schools has been completed.

Roofing repairs have been completed at Forest View School in Mount Prospect and Brentwood School in Des Plaines, said Adolph Danta, director of buildings and grounds for the district. Repairs are nearing completion at Clearmont School and Grove Junior High School in Elk Grove Village and John Jay School in Mount Prospect, he said.

Roofing repairs will continue at the remainder of the buildings as long as weather permits, according to Danta. The entire project, which will cost nearly $300,000, probably won't be completed until the end of next summer at the earliest, Danta said.

Library seeks to 'retrobuy' adult books

by RONALD NORBERG

Elk Grove Public Library officials are now seeking to correct a two-year-old deficiency in adult books, a situation that one official called "miserable."

In an operation called "retrobuy," the library is spending 25 per cent of its budgeted funds to purchase books published before 1972.

A 1972 survey by an outside consultant showed the library had only purchased 206 books (25.9 per cent) of a possible 793 recommended by "The Public Library Catalog."

The consultant said "adequate library service should begin when the library has 75 per cent of the titles listed in the catalogs."

The consultant recommended at the time that the library spend "15 to 20 per cent of its budget on new books."

Guild reaches out to bring arts to village

A new organization designed "to bring the arts to Elk Grove Village and Elk Grove Village to the arts" has been formed in cooperation with the Elk Grove Village Public Library and Elk Grove High School.

Called "The Elk Grove Arts Guild" the organization hopes to transport residents to a variety of cultural events such as concerts, films, ballets, operas and art shows, both local and in Chicago, according to Mary Clark, administrative librarian at the Elk Grove Village Public Library.

The organization also plans to publish a monthly guide which would list events of all village groups and organizations.

MISS CLARK HELPED organize the guild along with Richard Calisch, head of the English and fine arts department at the high school.

"We wanted to run buses to cultural events but felt it was too large an undertaking for the library alone," said Miss Clark. "When I mentioned it to Dick Calisch he said he was doing it already at the high school for students so why not combine," she said.

Miss Clark said plans call for the new organization to cooperate with as many other village groups as possible.

Planned future events include trips to the Lyric Opera production of "Falstaff," the Alvin Ailey City Center Dance Theater at the Auditorium Theatre, and the Chicago Tribune Charities' Christmas production of "The Nutcracker Suite," plus other theatrical and film events.

FURTHER INFORMATION or ticket reservations can be obtained by calling Mary Clark at 439-0447 or Richard Calisch at 439-4800.

Firemen file suit charging rights violated

A lawsuit charging that Elk Grove Village violated the civil rights of fire department officers was filed Friday in U. S. District Court, but no court date has been assigned.

Gilbert Cornfield, attorney for the firemen, said Monday the case has been assigned to Judge Bernard Decker, and that a trial date will be set after summonses have been delivered to witnesses.

Cornfield said summonses will be delivered this week, after which witnesses will have 20 days to reply.

The Elk Grove Village fire department officers are contending they were forced to resign from Local 2346 of the International Assn. of Firefighters or face demotion within the fire department.

Gilbert has said they will ask the court to declare that any village policy that forbids officers from joining a union with rank and file membership is unconstitutional.

ELK GROVE VILLAGE Pres. Charles Zettek said neither the village nor the fire department has such a policy.

Zettek admitted Thursday, however, that he instructed fire department officers to resign from the local on June 8. He said, however, that the directive was his "personal wish," rather than a village policy.

He also said the order was "merely a statement of feelings."

Zettek denied that he threatened the officers with demotion if they refused to resign from the local.

THE FIREMEN'S suit also asks that

Apartment cleanup cost: $2,200

by JOHN MAES

The owner of the buildings that include a townhouse at 529-J W. Dover Dr., will be billed for the $2,200 it cost the city to haul tons of garbage from the apartment during the week-end.

Wallace Schaeffer, deputy commissioner of public works for Des Plaines, said Monday the bill would be turned over to Robert Lubin, of Lubin Management Corp., owners of the 22-unit complex on the city's west side.

Schaeffer said his crews spent 15½ hours Friday and Saturday shoveling mounds of assorted trash and human excrement from the townhouse.

The tenant, Wayne Cleghorn, 38, was arrested last week by Des Plaines police and charged with violating a city ordinance for creating a public nuisance.

CITY WORKERS boarded up the residence after finishing the massive cleanup operation late Saturday afternoon. City Health Director Jean Branding said Lubin will also be given a deadline for "cleaning and extermination."

Residents of the development and his employer said Cleghorn was neat in appearance and had no idea he lived among heaps of garbage.

"He was a good man, no problems with him at all," said Nick Tarant, owner of Happy Foods, 4616 Oakton, Skokie, where Cleghorn worked for almost five years before he quit several days ago.

Cleghorn has a wife and three children, but they were not living in the apartment when police arrested him after responding to a call of a break-in at the address.

Mrs. Cleghorn works as an obstetrical nurse in Chicago, police said.

THE CLEGHORNS kept their windows and door shut all the time and those neighbors who noticed the odor thought it was sewage rather than the heaping debris accumulating in the house.

Pieces of paper were stuffed under the rear door of the residence and were stuck over a door window blocked in apparent attempts to cover up the mess inside.

ALTHOUGH SOME neighbors said they had complained to city health officials about an odor several months ago, Mrs. Branding said she received no "specific" complaints about the 259-J apartment other than general nuisance-abatement complaints that she said came from all over the city.

Lubin could not be reached for comment yesterday and Mrs. Cleghorn, when contacted, refused to answer questions about how long it had been since she had been in the apartment and why it was in such condition.

"I don't have anything to say," she said.

Named in the suit are Zettek, Fire Chief Allen Hulett, Village Mgr. Charles Willis, and trustees Nanci Vanderweel, Michael Tosto, George Spies, Theodore Staddler, Ronald Chernick and Edward Kenna.

Cornfield said Monday he had "no idea" whether the suit would be resolved before it is brought to court.

Dist. 54 wrapup

All students may eat lunch at school

All students may stay at school to eat lunch in Schaumburg Township Dist. 54 according to new guidelines approved by the board of education.

The old policy only allowed students being bused to school or living more than one mile from school to stay for lunch. Other students were permitted to stay if they participated in either a parent-paid or parent-volunteer lunch program.

The guidelines also formalized the procedure for establishing lunch programs at the individual schools. Principals may decide to have either 30 or 45-minute lunch periods and will be responsible for recruiting supervisors for the lunch periods.

Drug education policy set

Policies concerning drug education were approved by Dist. 54 board.

Dist. 54 will continue to provide a drug education curriculum for students in grades 4-8 relating to the effects from the use of drugs.

It also will establish procedures to help students who misuse drugs and will follow the legal requirements related to drugs.

Cooperation with the police departments and other agencies related to youth will be maintained to provide additional assistance for students who misuse drugs.

A program to educate teachers about behavior brought on by drug use and the proper procedures to use for notifying authorities about students suspected of misusing drugs will be established by the district.

Parents also will be informed about the kinds of drugs being used and the source of the drugs at the discretion of the principals. Parents also may be given advice about sources to obtain additional information and help and will be kept informed about the curriculum offered through the schools.

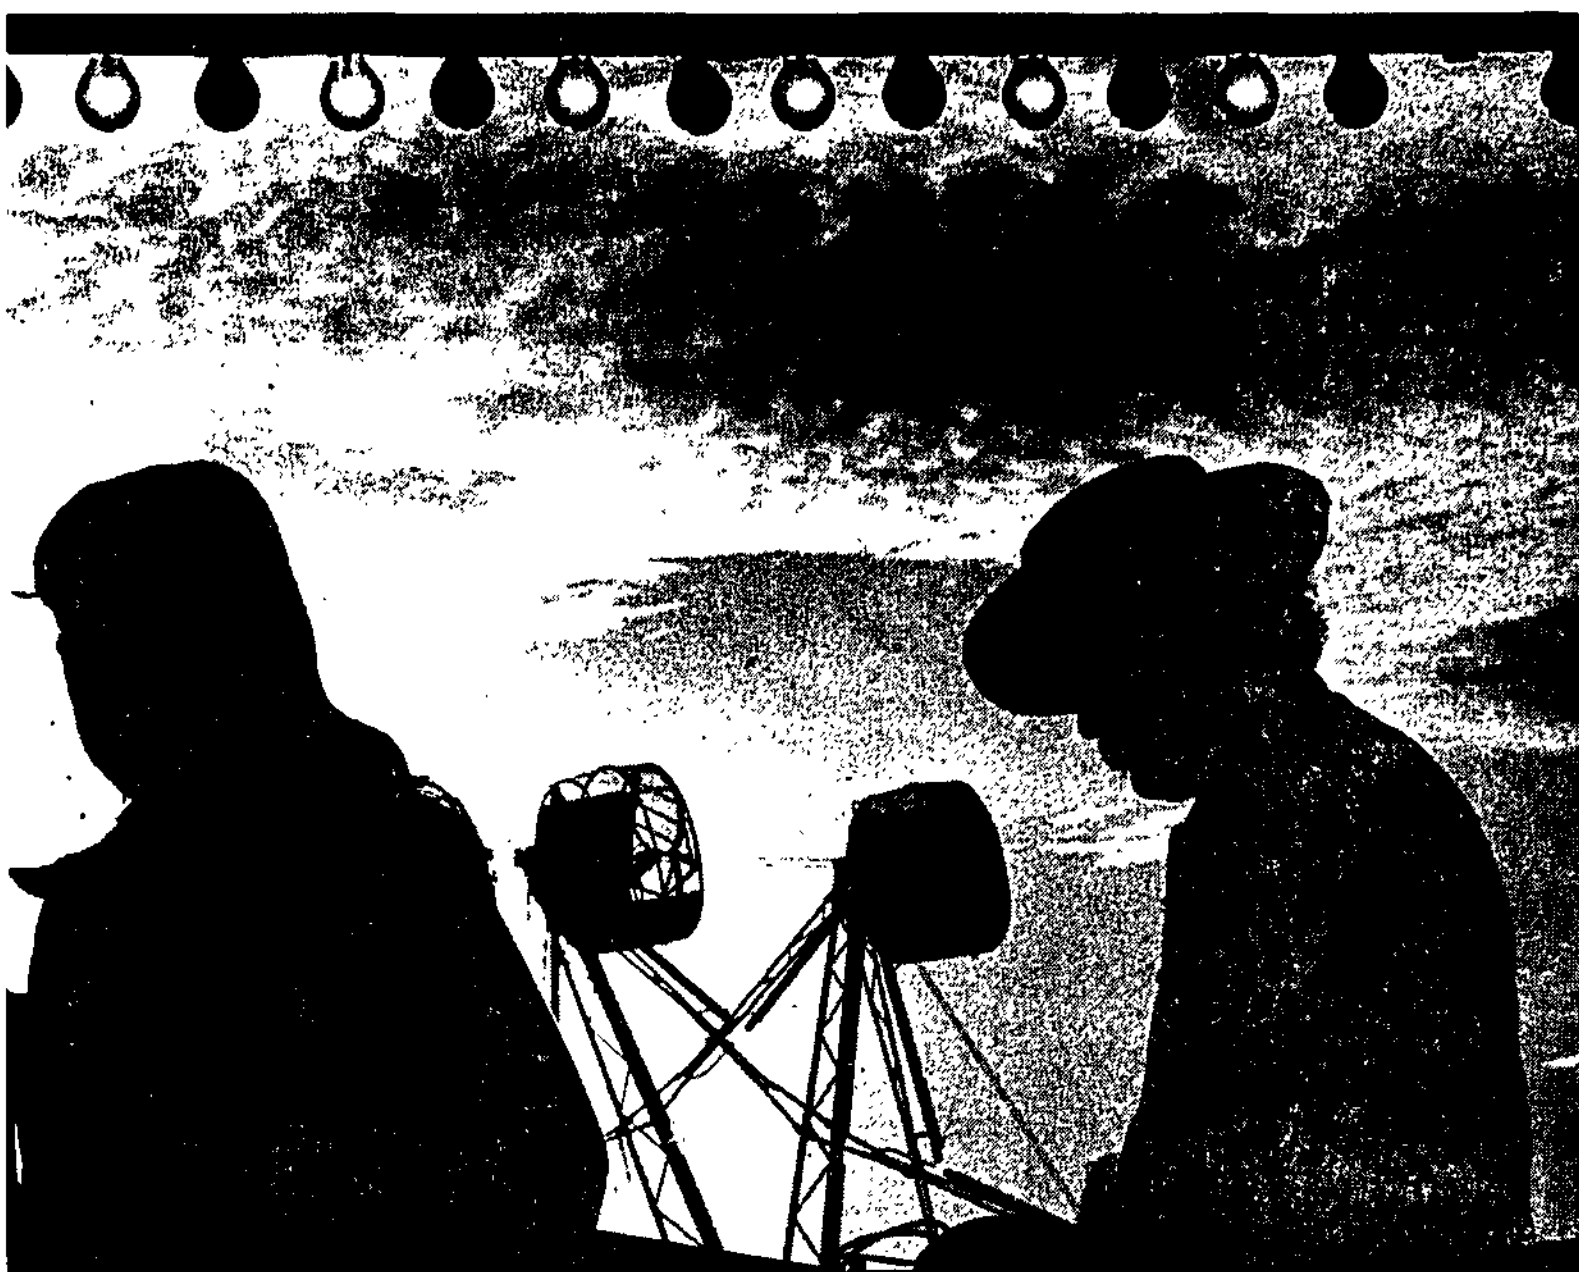

Liaison, truant officers named

Dennis Hogg and Michael Mulcahy were appointed liaison and truant officers for Dist. 54.

Hogg, a patrolman on the Schaumburg Police Dept., will be responsible for Addams and Frost junior high schools and Aldrin, Campanelli, Collins, Dooley, Dirksen, Einstein, Fox, Hale, Hanover Highlands, Link and Schaumburg elementary schools.

Mulcahy, a police officer on the Hoffman Estates Police Department, will serve Eisenhower and Keller junior high schools and Armstrong, Blackhawk, Churchill, Fairview, Hillcrest, Hoffman, Hoover, Lakeview, MacArthur, Mulr, and Twinbrook elementary schools.

Both officers will work four hours a day Monday through Friday at the hourly rate they receive from their police departments.

City gets Mount Prospect pupils

by BOB GALLAS

The Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 Board of Education ended several weeks of controversy Monday night by voting to accept a committee recommendation which would send Mount Prospect school children to Des Plaines schools this fall.

The board voted 5-1 to accept the committee's recommendation with the lone objecting vote cast by Des Plaines resident, board member Judith Zanca.

The decision received mixed reaction from persons at the meeting.

The vote followed a 90-minute discussion which broke down at times into arguments among parents over how to solve boundary problems.

THE BOARD DECIDED to investigate possible boundary changes in the John Jay School area of Mount Prospect earlier this summer and charged the School Community Council Board to make a recommendation after studying the matter.

A change was made necessary due to overcrowding at Jay.

The committee's recommendation, to send future John Jay students to Brentwood and High Ridge Knolls schools, came under fire from parents from the two Des Plaines schools who said they were not involved in the decision making process.

During the meeting two main proposals were considered by the board. One called for solving the Jay overcrowding problem immediately. The other called for a district-wide study of boundaries, delaying a boundary change at least until the first of the year.

After the board's decision Mrs. Zanca said she would call for a district-wide boundary study at the board's next regular meeting.

The change will affect 12 children this fall. Eventually an estimated 59 children from Crystal Towers and Forest Cove apartments in Mount Prospect will go to Brentwood. An estimated 26 children from Laurel Estates apartments will eventually go to High Ridge Knolls. No children will be transferred from Jay and those already attending Jay from the three complexes, which are not yet completed, will be allowed to continue there.

cent" of its budgeted funds for previously published books.

THE LIBRARY began its program immediately after it received the survey results, spending about 12 per cent of total budget, according to Mary Clark, administrative librarian.

Now, with the addition of staff members Janet Steiner and Michael Perlman, the library has increased its purchasing to $200 per month.

"One of the main difficulties we have faced is that about 40 per cent of the books available before 1972 are out of print now," Perlman said Monday.

In spite of the difficulties, Perlman said by next April 30, 50 per cent of the adult fiction books listed in the catalog will be available at the library.

By Dec. 1, he said, 80 per cent of the reference books will be available.

RETROACTIVE PURCHASING of adult non-fiction materials will not begin until January, Perlman said, and no projections were available.

The consultant said, at the time of the 1972 survey, the book deficiency was caused by "incompetence in the book selection."

Miss Clark summed up the situation a bit more tersely: "We were out in the boondocks as far as library service was concerned," she said.

Miss Clark was hired for her present position at the recommendation of the consultant.

Miss Steiner and Perlman have recently been hired in the adult department and are overseeing the "retrobuy" program.

MISS STEINER received her bachelor's degree from Dominican College, Racine, Wis., and her master of library science degree from the University of Wisconsin.

She has worked in the College of Racine Library and Dane County, Wis., Bookmobile.

Perlman received his undergraduate degree in management from Roosevelt University, and has graduated from the Library School at the University of Chicago.

He has worked at the Northwestern University Library and various libraries while serving in the Air Force.

Schaumburg schools name six special consultants

Six new consultants have been appointed to serve Schaumburg Township Dist. 54.

Barbara Christiansen was selected as media consultant and will be responsible for providing and instructing teachers about audiovisual equipment and related materials.

Mrs. Christiansen was audiovisual specialist for four years at Conant High School in Hoffman Estates and also taught at Niles West High School before coming to Dist. 54.

Sandra Taenzer was appointed special services consultant and will work in the Early Education Center and as a consultant for the kindergarten program on language development.

Mrs. Taenzer has been a speech pathologist in Dist. 54 for six years and taught for three years in Des Plaines School Dist. 62 before coming to Dist. 54.

EVA BRESSNIK will be the career education coordinator for Dist. 54 and will work to develop a district-wide approach for teaching students about career opportunities.

Mrs. Bressnik, a teacher at Link School in Elk Grove Village, has helped with the development of a career education curriculum in the district. She also was a member of the team of teachers that wrote a career education curriculum for the district this summer.

Changing from his position as mathematics consultant, Joseph Cech will be the testing and research consultant. He will work on the federally funded project to establish a program evaluation model for the district.

Replacing him as mathematics consultant will be Mary Kay Karl. Miss Karl was mathematics department chairman at Addams Junior High School in Schaumburg last year and has conducted math workshops in the district as well as work on the math curriculum committee.

Thomas Teschner was appointed as the junior high school physical education coordinator. Teschner has taught physical education and coached boys' athletics at the junior high schools since 1959.

Teacher contract may be ratified at Thursday meet

Teachers in Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15 should have a contract to ratify this Thursday if negotiators' optimistic predictions come true.

No longer on the Illinois Education Assn.'s "critical" list of negotiating districts, Dist. 15 negotiators met Monday night with the feeling that a settlement was possible at that meeting.

IEA area representative David Tomchek, who also is negotiating for Dist. 15 teachers in the contract talks, said that because a full negotiating session was scheduled Monday night with indications of a settlement, the district was pulled off the statewide list of schools that may strike. Thomas Kelley, who heads the teachers' negotiating team, said he sees no threat of a strike in Dist. 15.

TOMCHEK AND Richard Zweiback, attorney for Dist. 15, met Monday afternoon to discuss contract language. The two were scheduled to meet Aug. 14 but Tomchek's negotiating commitments in other local districts conflicted and forced him to postpone the meeting. Meanwhile, Dist. 15 Supt. Frank Whiteley and Kelley met to talk salary.

Kelley said teacher salary demands have been modified from an original request for an 18 per cent increase to a present 11 to 13 per cent increase. Under the last district contract, teachers are paid between $8,250 and $16,306. Kelley said he would like to see a settlement like that of Elk Grove Township Dist. 59, which settled in May for a teacher salary range of $9,100 to $19,170. Kelley said that salary demands might be traded off for language concessions in the final contract talks.

Whiteley said Monday that a settlement now is possible. If a final agreement were reached and teachers accepted it, Whiteley said that the board of education would probably ratify the agreement in its next regular meeting Sept. 11.

Meeting with police chief planned

Vandalism hits historic Palatine Twp. cemeteries

Avery Wolfrum, chairman of the Palatine Township Advisory Committee, will meet today with Palatine Police Chief Jerry Bratcher to discuss ways to prevent vandalism in Palatine cemeteries. The latest vandalism occurred sometime last week and was discovered Saturday by Wolfrum.

On his routine weekend check of Cady Cemetery, Elm Road just south of Dundee Road, Wolfrum said he found a heavy wire cable chaining off the road entrance "hacksawed" in two places and a stop sign knocked down. Wolfrum also said someone apparently had tried to drive through the large inner gates to the cemetery a few feet beyond the cable.

In addition Wolfrum said he found nearly all the headstones overturned at Salem Church Cemetery, Kirchhoff and Plum Grove roads. Wolfrum said the headstones were overturned during the last month, and many were broken off their foundations.

Wolfrum said he reported the vandalism at Cady Cemetery to Palatine police Saturday. He did not report the Salem Cemetery vandalism to Palatine police because it is located outside village limits.

Wolfrum said he installed the wire cable in October to reduce vandalism. Although Cady Cemetery has had a history of vandalism, this was the first incidence of vandalism since the cable was installed, he said.

Local cemeteries have had quite a history of vandalism. Two years ago three youths were arrested for overturning gravestones at South Side Cemetery on Greeley Street on their school lunch hours. In 1960 six youths were caught gravestones at Cady Cemetery, and youths have been blamed for constant vandalism at many area cemeteries through the years.

Cady and Salem cemeteries primarily bear the graves of local pioneers. Some date to the 1840s.

For Colfax street improvements

Village drops special assessment

A special assessment of 33 property owners for improvements along W. Colfax Street was dropped by the Palatine Village Board of Trustees Monday night.

The action, which followed a hearing by the Palatine Board of Local Improvements, officially killed the controversial W. Colfax Street improvement project planned by a former village board four years ago.

Trustee Fred H. Zajonc voted against abandoning the special assessment.

"THE BUSINESSMEN of Palatine have been abandoned," said Zajonc. He said the road is "poor and deteriorating" and a four-lane road is necessary to the Palatine Post Office and into the central business district.

"It's a sad day when we go through the whole process of engineering an excellent project to build up Palatine and then abandon it," said Zajonc.

Residents also voiced concern stating the dropping of the special assessment was "shortsighted" and the road improvement was needed to provide access to the post office and downtown area.

Trustee Richard W. Fonte listed three main reasons the Republican majority on the village board favored dropping the special assessment. They are:

- Four lanes would encourage more non-residential traffic along W. Colfax Street.
- The improvement project would increase flooding in the Pleasant Hills subdivision.
- Not all the persons who would benefit from the improvement project would be affected by the special assessment.

The village will now have to absorb nearly $100,000 that has been spent planning the improvement project. The $100,000 includes engineering fees, legal fees, appraisers' fees and court costs. Village Mgr. Anton H. Harwig said the sum probably would be financed from the village's general fund and motor fuel tax fund.

The improvement project called for the widening of W. Colfax Street between Smith Street and Quentin Road from two to four lanes and installation of a 72-inch storm sewer to drain the Smith-Colfax streets intersection.

Improvements were planned to serve the industrial area along W. Colfax Street, post office, Buehler YMCA, downtown area and developing areas north-west of the village.

THE ORIGINAL COST of the improvement project was estimated at $1.4 million of which the village would pay 70 per cent and the 33 property owners the remaining 30 per cent. The special assessment was upheld by the Cook County Circuit Court in April, 1973.

Bids for the improvement project were rejected by the village board one year ago, but the special assessment had stayed in effect serving as a lien against the property owners.

No new long-range plans for improvements along Colfax Street have been planned.

A $45,000 repaving and shoulder improvement project to be financed from motor fuel tax funds was recently adopted by the board as a temporary measure. The comprehensive flood plan for the village currently being prepared also is expected to recommend a solution to the flooding problem in the area.

Apartment cleanup cost: $2,200

by JOHN MAES

The owner of the buildings that include a townhouse at 529-J W. Dover Dr., will be billed for the $2,200 it cost the city to haul tons of garbage from the apartment during the week-end.

Wallace Schaeffer, deputy commissioner of public works for Des Plaines, said Monday the bill would be turned over to Robert Lubin, of Lubin Management Corp., owners of the 22-unit complex on the city's west side.

Schaeffer said his crews spent 15½ hours Friday and Saturday shoveling mounds of assorted trash and human excrement from the townhouse.

The tenant, Wayne Clegghorn, 38, was arrested last week by Des Plaines police and charged with violating a city ordinance for creating a public nuisance.

CITY WORKERS boarded up the residence after finishing the massive cleanup operation late Saturday afternoon. City Health Director Jean Branding said Lubin will also be given a deadline for "cleaning and extermination."

Residents of the development and his employer said Clegghorn was neat in appearance and had no idea he lived among heaps of garbage.

"He was a good man, no problems with him at all," said Nick Tarant, owner of Happy Foods, 4618 Oakton, Skokie, where Clegghorn worked for almost five years before he quit several days ago.

Clegghorn has a wife and three children, but they were not living in the apartment when police arrested him after responding to a call of a break-in at the address.

Mrs. Clegghorn works as an obstetrical nurse in Chicago, police said.

THE CLEGGHORNS kept their windows and door shut all the time and those neighbors who noticed the odor thought it was sewage rather than the heaping debris accumulating in the house.

Pieces of paper were stuffed under the rear door of the residence and were stuck over a door window blocked in apparent attempts to cover up the mess inside.

ALTHOUGH SOME neighbors said they had complained to city health officials about an odor several months ago, Mrs. Branding said she received no "specific" complaints about the 259-J apartment other than general nuisance-abatement complaints that she said came from all over the city.

Lubin could not be reached for comment yesterday and Mrs. Clegghorn, when contacted, refused to answer questions about how long it had been since she had been in the apartment and why it was in such condition.

"I don't have anything to say," she said.

Salt Creek parks must cut expenses; assessment low

Salt Creek Park District will have to cut back on expenditures this year due to a surprisingly low tax assessment.

The district figured its 1974-75 budget on a $16 million assessment with a .26 tax rate. Instead, the district was assessed at $10 million with a .24 tax rate. According to James DeVos, park district superintendent, this will mean an approximate $10,000 reduction in funds.

Actually, the park district will lose $23,600 in tax funds, but the district expects to take in about $13,000 in fees from district programs over the year.

THE NECESSARY budget cuts will have to be made in capital expenditures and improvements, DeVos said. Items such as a new skate for Winston Park and a pick-up truck for the district will have to wait, he said. Other cuts will have to be made in programming and maintenance labor costs.

DeVos said he counts his district lucky in that its assessment went up approximately $1 million from last year's

Preschool signup opens Sept. 9

Preschool for residents of Salt Creek Park District will begin Sept. 9.

The sessions, held at the Rose Park fieldhouse, will continue through May 26, following the basic school calendar of Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15.

Classes will be open to 3 and 4-year-olds. Three-year-olds will meet Tuesdays and Thursdays from 9 to 11 a.m. Four-year-olds will meet Mondays and Wednesdays from 1 to 3 p.m. A combined class of three and four year olds will be held on Tuesdays and Thursdays from 1 to 3 p.m.

Fees for the classes are $14 per month for park district residents. Nonresidents are charged $16 per month.

Parents may register their children for the classes by calling 259-6890 or visiting the district offices at the Rose Park fieldhouse.

The classes are being taught by Judy Peterson, a certified preschool teacher. No transportation is provided.

$39,201,517 assessment. Last year following a quadrennial reassessment, Salt Creek's assessment skyrocketed from $25 million to $39 million, a $14 million increase which netted the district an additional $20,000 in tax revenues.

"I still think our assessment would have reached $46 million," DeVos said, except that a lower equalization figure kept the assessment down to $40 million.

Buses still the way, Luisada believes

by KURT BAER

The need for public transportation within the Northwest suburbs is as great today as it ever was, says Claude Luisada, the man who tried but failed to run a profitable commuter bus service in Arlington Heights.

It was a year ago that Metron Systems Corp. began shuttling commuters to and from the Arlington Heights train station, an enterprise that was to end in financial collapse nine months later.

But though the system may have been ill-fated, it was not ill-conceived, Luisada insists today.

"Nothing has happened to change my mind about that," he says. What he has changed his mind about is the notion that public transportation will ever turn a profit.

"Maybe if you have a million dollars' backing for 18 to 24 months at full operation, along with all the necessary promotion, you might have a fighting chance," he says.

LUISADA ADMITS that the commuter

Claude Luisada

bus shuttle was undercapitalized. "We started on a shoestring," he says. But he also criticizes the Arlington Heights Village Board's decision not to provide an operating subsidy to keep the buses running. "I think they should have bit the bullet and kept something going until the Regional Transportation Authority could take over funding."

Despite its financial failure, the commuter service itself was good and couldn't have been expanded with more buses, Luisada says. "People have told us they felt we were providing a very good service."

At the time it ceased operation on May 31, Metron was using two village-owned buses, purchased at a cost of $57,000, and a small van. More buses, even if they had been second hand, would have permitted the company to run more routes, and meet more trains which eventually would have meant more riders, Luisada reasons.

The 200 passengers who were riding Metron's buses each working day is a "very misleading number," he says, because the buses in use were nearly filled for each of the three trips they were able to make during the rush hour.

METRON SYSTEMS had only started to meet the need for public transportation in Arlington Heights when it was forced to abandon its bus service, Luisada says.

There is a need for transportation to area office buildings, industries, shopping centers and other traffic generators. There is a need for dial-a-bus among the elderly, persons who do not drive, families who cannot afford a second, or even a first car, and youngsters aged 10-16, he says.

"People are generally skeptical of public transportation because it hasn't met their needs," Luisada says, adding that he has detected a general slackening of interest in public transportation in the Chicago area over the past several months.

"The two biggest misconceptions are that we don't need public transportation and that nobody's going to ride it even if we have it," he says.

Luisada identifies at least four forces pushing the Northwest suburbs toward a bus system — rising gasoline prices, the increased cost of car ownership, worsening traffic congestion, and additional numbers of senior citizens in the population.

The door is open, he says, for another bus company, backed by the RTA, to begin service in the suburbs. "I don't think we ruined it for the future for Arlington Heights. I know we didn't leave our passengers with a bad taste in their mouths."

The statement underscores Luisada's belief that Metron did not short-change its riders. "The only one who got short-changed is sitting right here," he says.

2 youths charged in bank theft

A hearing in juvenile court is to be set shortly for two Rolling Meadows youths apprehended Friday and charged with stealing $1,000 from the Bank of Rolling Meadows.

The youths, 15 and 16-year-olds boys, also may be charged on federal bank-robbery counts pending a decision by the United States attorney's office. FBI agents Monday conferred with Rolling Meadows police and will present the case to the U. S. attorney's office, Rolling Meadows Police Chief Lewis R. Case said Monday.

The boys already have been charged with grand theft by local police and will be required to appear in county juvenile court at a date to be set.

According to police reports, the two boys entered the bank Friday at about 1 p.m. and asked a teller to check their parents' account totals. As the teller did, the juveniles apparently reached behind the counter, taking a bound stack of bills totaling $1,000.

Case said the boys then left the bank, but a customer standing behind them told the teller she thought the youths had grabbed something from the bank window.

A day-ending tally revealed the $1,000 shortage and police were notified. The youths were traced by the accounts which they had asked the teller to consult.

Det. Michael Condroski and Det. Gerald Broderick apprehended the 15-year-old several hours later as he attempted to flee from the Fair Lakes Rolling Meadows Bowl. The 16-year-old was arrested at his home.

Police said the 15-year-old had $420 with him and the 16-year-old had $420 when they were apprehended. Some $80 apparently had been spent by the youths at Arlington Park Friday, Case said.

FBI agents told police the case would be handled as a bank robbery, which could result in federal charges being brought against the youths.

Tentative $34.3 million high schools budget shown

Expenses in High School Dist. 211 will be about $34.3 million next year, according to a tentative budget placed on public display Thursday by the Board of Education.

The budget includes $15.4 million in the district's education fund, an increase of 20 per cent over expenses last year. The increases in next year's education fund stem from increased teacher and administrative salaries and a $750,000 reserve for construction of the district's sixth high school.

THE DISTRICT'S building fund totals $1.9 million next year, an increase of about 77 per cent. The increased costs stem from maintenance salaries, the construction of additional special education facilities in the district and remodeling of school buildings so they will meet the state Life Safety Code.

Dist. 211's revenue increased this year due to an increase in the assessed value of property in the district. Next year's assessed value is estimated at $637 million compared to $508 million last year, said Dist. 211 Business Mgr. James Slater. He said the district would lower the tax rate next year by 4 cents to $2.61 per $100 assessed value.

Next year's budget provides for a growth in enrollment of about 9 per cent and the hiring of about 50 additional teachers.

The board of education will review the tentative budget when it meets Sept. 26 before giving it final approval.

From suburbs to Bogota, Colombia

Family drops 'good life' to serve religious hostel

by MARILYN McDONALD

David Swift has a good job in a Loop bank, a comfortable home at 3701 Bobwhite Ln., Rolling Meadows, and a family which enjoys the security he has provided for them.

Why, then, are they choosing to give up their home and comfortable life for a five-year stint in a religious hostel in Bogota, Colombia, where all their financial needs will be supplied through prayer?

Their decision was reached after an introduction to Wycliffe Bible Translators Inc., based in Huntington Beach, Calif.

Wycliffe Bible Translators are Christians who go into remote areas of the world where tribal languages have never been written down. The translator is trained to live with the tribe, learn their language and develop a written language, and then translate the Bible into that language. According to Swift, the entire process takes about 15 years. Once finished with one tribe, the translator moves on to another.

TRANSLATORS IN the field often make trips to the nearest city for vacations, medical attention and shopping. There they stay at special Wycliffe hostels, staffed by Wycliffe hosts and hostesses. The Swifts will become host and hostess of the Bogota, Colombia Wycliffe hostel.

Swift said that he and his wife, Joan, became friends with several couples who work with the Wycliffe organization. The Swifts had both attended religious colleges and are active members of the Evangelical Free-Church of Des Plaines. Swift said that he had always found church work fulfilling in a way that his bank work was not. Gradually, the couple decided to give all their time to the work of the church.

Their sons, Randy, 11 and Jeff, 6, are excited about the family adventure. The first phase of their training, a summer institute in linguistics, was held at the University of Oklahoma. This November, the family will attend a three-month jungle survival camp where they will learn to provide a home for themselves in jungle conditions. In addition, the family is gradually learning Spanish, which will become their native tongue in Bogota.

The Swifts hope to begin their tour of duty in June. After five years, they will be furloughed for a year and may return for another five-year period.

Settlement seen Thursday

IEA no longer thinks area teacher negotiations critical

Teachers in Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15 should have a contract to ratify this Thursday if negotiators' optimistic predictions come true.

No longer on the Illinois Education Assn.'s "critical" list of negotiating districts, Dist. 15 negotiators met Monday night with the feeling that a settlement was possible at that meeting.

IEA area representative David Tomchek, who also is negotiating for Dist. 15 teachers in the contract talks, said that because a full negotiating session was scheduled Monday night with indications of a settlement, the district was pulled off the statewide list of schools that may strike. Thomas Kelley, who heads the teachers' negotiating team, said he sees no threat of a strike in Dist. 15.

TOMCHER AND Richard Zwielsbach, attorney for Dist. 15, met Monday afternoon to discuss contract language. The two were scheduled to meet Aug. 14 but Tomchek's negotiating commitments in other local districts conflicted and forced him to postpone the meeting. Meanwhile, Dist. 15 Supt. Frank Whiteley and Kelley met to talk salary.

Kelley said teacher salary demands have been modified from an original request for an 18 per cent increase to a present 11 to 13 per cent increase. Under the last district contract, teachers are paid between $8,250 and $16,300. Kelley said he would like to see a settlement like that of Elk Grove Township Dist. 59, which settled in May for a teacher salary range of $9,100 to $19,170. Kelley said that salary demands might be traded off for language concessions in the final contract talks.

Whiteley said Monday that a settlement now is possible. If a final agreement were reached and teachers accepted it, Whiteley said that the board of education would probably ratify the agreement in its next regular meeting Sept. 11.

Appropriations almost $1 million

Tax-ordinance action expected tonight

Action on a proposed near-$1 million tax appropriation ordinance for fiscal 1974 is expected tonight by the Rolling Meadows City Council.

The tax appropriation ordinance, which will be used to compute the city real estate tax rate for next year, calls specifically for $905,687 to be collected. The sum includes a new $223,000 category for police and general funding use; $312,737 for fire protection; $48,000 for the fire pension fund; $47,000 for the police pension fund; $144,930 for the library, and $8,000 for the mental health fund.

The ordinance is expected to be approved tonight. It must be on file with the county clerk by the second Tuesday in September.

Ald. Kennedy Retzke, 5th, two weeks ago had requested a public hearing on the ordinance, but City Mgr. James Watson said Monday no official hearing is planned. Watson said no legal notice advising a hearing date had been published.

Part or all of the appropriation may be abated by the council by Dec. 31 if funds from other city revenue sources are sufficient to pay for city expenses. In the past the council has been able to abate all but the library and fire levies.

HOWEVER, INFLATION and increasing financial obligations taken on by the city may hinder attempts to abate the levy this year.

In addition, an automatic tax levy also may be required to pay for a bank loan being sought by the city to pay for 6.7 acres of land near Rohlwing Road and Northwest Highway.

The land has been mentioned as the possible site for a municipally owned refuse incinerator.

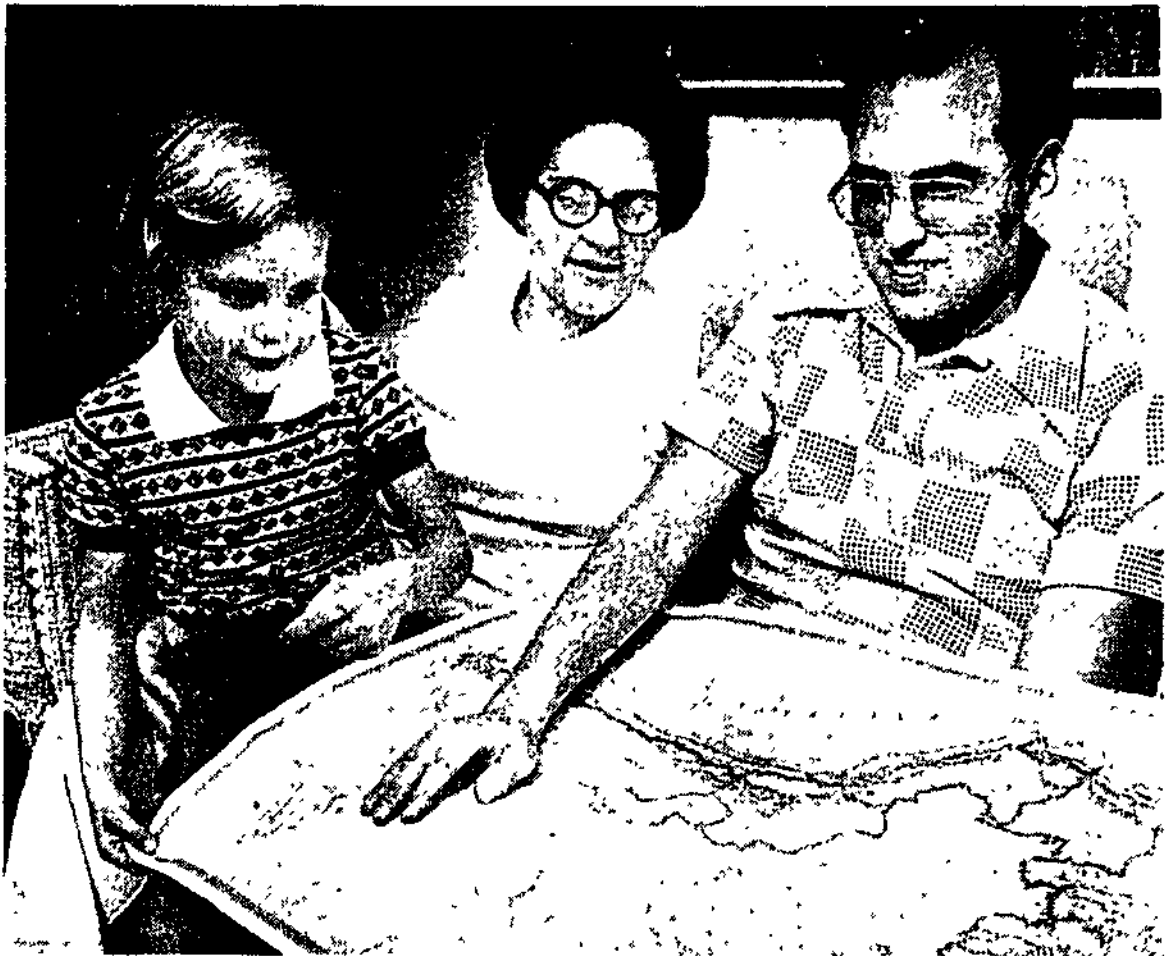

City Treasurer Robert Cole has said state statutes require a tax levy to pay for municipal loans, but Mayor Roland Meyer has said he may request a $2 fee for residential garbage collection as an alternative to the tax levy.

Homeowners currently receive garbage service from the city at no charge.

A PUBLIC HEARING before the council also is planned tonight on a proposed 1,000-unit townhouse development on 80 acres near Quentin and Plum Grove roads.

The long-delayed project was first presented to the city last year but the death of one of its backers of the plan forced numerous postponements of further hearings.

The meeting is scheduled to begin at 8:30 p.m. in the city hall.

Chairmen of the contest are Mr. and Mrs. John Hunter.

Preliminary details of the contest call for two rounds of judging before the final judging Feb. 22. The first judging will take place Nov. 22 from noon to 4 p.m. at the Holiday Inn of Rolling Meadows. The second will take place Dec. 27 from noon to 4 p.m. also at the hotel.

Forms are being prepared for applicants and will be due Nov. 1. Mrs. Hunter said. Judging criteria will include a number of categories including pose, personality and talent.

Church newspaper drive Saturday

A paper drive will be held at the Community Church of Rolling Meadows parking lot on Saturday from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. The Young People's Fellowship, which is sponsoring the drive, will take papers at the church parking lot, 2720 Kirchhoff Rd., across from the Topps-National shopping center.

Those wishing to have their papers picked up may call the church office any weekday morning before noon. The number is 255-5510.

Apartment cleanup cost: $2,200

Pieces of paper were stuffed under the rear door of the residence and were stuck over a door window blocked in apparent attempts to cover the mess inside.

ALTHOUGH SOME neighbors said they had complained to city health officials about an odor several months ago, Mrs. Branding said she received no "specific" complaints about the 259-J apartment other than general nuisance-abatement complaints that she said came from all over the city.

Lubin could not be reached for comment yesterday and Mrs. Cleghorn, when contacted, refused to answer questions about how long it had been since she had been in the apartment and why it was in such condition.

"I don't have anything to say," she said.

Hearing set for 2 teens charged in $1,000 bank theft

A hearing in juvenile court is to be set shortly for two Rolling Meadows youths apprehended Friday and charged with stealing $1,000 from the Bank of Rolling Meadows.

The youths, 15 and 16-year-olds boys, also may be charged on federal bank-robbery counts pending a decision by the United States attorney's office. FBI agents Monday conferred with Rolling Meadows police and will present the case to the U. S. attorney's office, Rolling Meadows Police Chief Lewis R. Case said Monday.

The boys already have been charged with grand theft by local police and will be required to appear in county juvenile court at a date to be set.

According to police reports, the two boys entered the bank Friday at about 1 p.m. and asked a teller to check their parents' account totals. As the teller did, the juveniles apparently reached behind the counter, taking a bound stack of bills totaling $1,000.

Case said the boys then left the bank, but a customer standing behind them told the teller she thought the youths had grabbed something from the bank window.

A day-ending tally revealed the $1,000 shortage and police were notified. The youths were traced by the accounts which they had asked the teller to consult.

Det. Michael Condroski and Det. Gerald Broderick apprehended the 15-year-old several hours later as he attempted to flee from the Fair Lanes Rolling Meadows Bowl. The 16-year-old was arrested at his home.

Police said the 15-year-old had $440 with him and the 16-year-old had $420 when they were apprehended. Some $80 apparently had been spent by the youths at Arlington Park Friday, Case said.

FBI agents told police the case would be handled as a bank robbery, which could result in federal charges being brought against the youths.

ONE YOUNG COWBOY strolled down Main Street wearing his 10-gallon hat, and he appeared well in the spirit of the Rolling Meadows Shopping Center West Fest, held during the weekend. This western street was just one of many attractions which included a carnival and food stands.

Buses still the way to go, ill-fated line's chief says

by KURT BAER

The need for public transportation within the Northwest suburbs is as great today as it ever was, says Claude Luisada, the man who tried but failed to run a profitable commuter bus service in Arlington Heights.

It was a year ago that Metron Systems Corp. began shuttling commuters to and from the Arlington Heights train station, an enterprise that was to end in financial collapse nine months later.

But though the system may have been ill-fated, it was not ill-conceived, Luisada insists today.

"Nothing has happened to change my mind about that," he says. What he has changed his mind about is the notion that public transportation will ever turn a profit.

LUISADA ADMITS that the commuter bus shuttle was undercapitalized. "We started on a shoestring," he says. But he also criticizes the Arlington Heights Village Board's decision not to provide an operating subsidy to keep the buses running. "I think they should have bit the bullet and kept something going until the Regional Transportation Authority could take over funding."

Despite its financial failure, the commuter service itself was good and couldn't have been expanded with more buses, Luisada says. "People have told us they felt we were providing a very good service."

At the time it ceased operation on May 31, Metron was using two village-owned buses, purchased at a cost of $57,000, and a small van. More buses, even if they had been second hand, would have permitted the company to run more routes, and meet more trains which eventually would have meant more riders, Luisada reasons.

The 200 passengers who were riding Metron's buses each working day is a "very misleading number," he says, because the buses in use were nearly filled for each of the three trips they were able to make during the rush hour.

METRON SYSTEMS had only started to meet the need for public transportation in Arlington Heights when it was forced to abandon its bus service, Luisada says.

There is a need for transportation to area office buildings, industries, shopping centers and other traffic generators. There is a need for dial-a-bus among the elderly, persons who do not drive, families who cannot afford a second, or even a first car, and youngsters aged 10-16, he says.

"People are generally skeptical of public transportation because it hasn't met their needs," Luisada says, adding that he has detected a general slackening of interest in public transportation in the Chicago area over the past several months.

"The two biggest misconceptions are that we don't need public transportation and that nobody's going to ride it even if we have it," he says.

Luisada identifies at least four forces pushing the Northwest suburbs toward a bus system — rising gasoline prices, the increased cost of car ownership, worsening traffic congestion, and additional numbers of senior citizens in the population.

The door is open, he says, for another bus company, backed by the RTA, to begin service in the suburbs. "I don't think we ruined it for the future for Arlington Heights. I know we didn't leave our passengers with a bad taste in their mouths."

The statement underscores Luisada's belief that Metron did not short-change its riders. "The only one who got short-changed is sitting right here," he says.

A SWIRL OF GLORY is painted in the night-time sky by the neon lights of carnival rides at the Rolling Meadows West Fest. While the tilt-a-whirl and

Vandalism hits historic Palatine Twp. cemeteries

Avery Wolfrum, chairman of the Palatine Township Advisory Committee, will meet today with Palatine Police Chief Jerry Bratcher to discuss ways to prevent vandalism in Palatine cemeteries. The latest vandalism occurred sometime last week and was discovered Saturday by Wolfrum.

On his routine weekend check of Cady Cemetery, Elm Road just south of Dundee Road, Wolfrum said he found a heavy wire cable chaining off the road entrance "hacksawed" in two places and a stop sign knocked down. Wolfrum also said someone apparently had tried to drive through the large inner gates to the cemetery a few feet beyond the cable.

In addition Wolfrum said he found nearly all the headstones overturned at Salem Church Cemetery, Kirchhoff and Plum Grove roads. Wolfrum said the headstones were overturned during the last month, and many were broken off their foundations.

Wolfrum said he reported the vandalism at Cady Cemetery to Palatine police Saturday. He did not report the Salem Cemetery vandalism to Palatine police because it is located outside village limits.

Wolfrum said he installed the wire cable in October to reduce vandalism. Although Cady Cemetery has had a history of vandalism, this was the first incidence of vandalism since the cable was installed, he said.

Local cemeteries have had quite a history of vandalism. Two years ago three youths were arrested for overturning gravestones at South Side Cemetery on Greeley Street on their school lunch hours. In 1960 six youths were caught gravestoning at Cady Cemetery, and youths have been blamed for constant vandalism at many area cemeteries through the years.

Cady and Salem cemeteries primarily bear the graves of local pioneers. Some date to the 1840s.

Firemen seek 'discounts' from stores

Hoffman Estates Village President Virginia Hayter Monday night refused a request from local firemen that she ask local merchants to provide firemen with discounts and "additional courtesies."

The request came in a letter dated Aug. 13 from Richard Cordova, 126 S. Morton, Hoffman Estates, president of the Firemen's Union, and James Reardon, 207 Kendrick Ct., Schaumburg, secretary.

The firemen said they made the request because "many of our men have found themselves in a very embarrassing situation where many firefighters from neighboring towns receive a discount at numerous establishments and we receive it from only a few."

THEY ADDED they would appreciate Mrs. Hayter seeking "possibly additional courtesies in the future . . ."

Mrs. Hayter said she had not brought

Sherwood Spatz to seek seat on school board

Sherwood L. Spatz announced Monday he will seek appointment to one of two vacancies on the Schaumburg Township Dist. 54 Board of Education.

Spatz, 7875 Ramsgate Cir., Hanover Park, served as a board member from 1971-74. He was defeated when he sought reelection to the board in April.

He could fill one of the positions vacated by the resignations of Bonnie Hanon and Donnie Rudd, accepted last Thursday and effective Sept. 7.

Spatz said he will notify the board this week of his decision to apply for one of the openings. He said he was waiting until the resignations were accepted by the board before announcing his intent.

THE BOARD will decide Sept. 6 whether it will fill the two vacancies through appointment or through a special election this fall.

While on the board, Spatz served as chairman of both the education and building and sites committees. He currently is a member of the policy and legislation committee.

Spatz said he wants the board to admit problems exist with vandalism and drugs and do something about them. He said more should be done with the Parents Observer Program, a program he initiated while on the board to have par-the request to the village board previously because, "I really was in a state of shock when I received this." She noted village employees and nonpaid officials do not even accept free lunches and said she "would strongly resist this kind of pressure be put on anyone."

"I wonder how the average taxpayer would feel if he felt there were special courtesies to people" who work for the village, she added.

Mrs. Hayter did not note the fact the firemen are not yet village employees and will not work for the village until about mid-October. That's the anticipated timing for village assumption of the Hoffman Estates Fire Protection District.

Trustee Edward Hennessy joined Mrs. Hayter in saying village board members "would all like it if discounts were offered to every one of the more than 32,000 residents of Hoffman Estates."

MRS. HAYTER also noted Reardon does not live in Hoffman Estates and wondered if she might also be asked to approach Schaumburg merchants for discounts. Hennessy said that when he read the letter he felt the request was something people might think of "but I didn't think anyone was dumb enough to put it in writing."

The firemen are members of Local 2061, International Association of Firefighters, AFL-CIO, which has been seeking bargaining agent recognition from the fire district board for about three years without success.

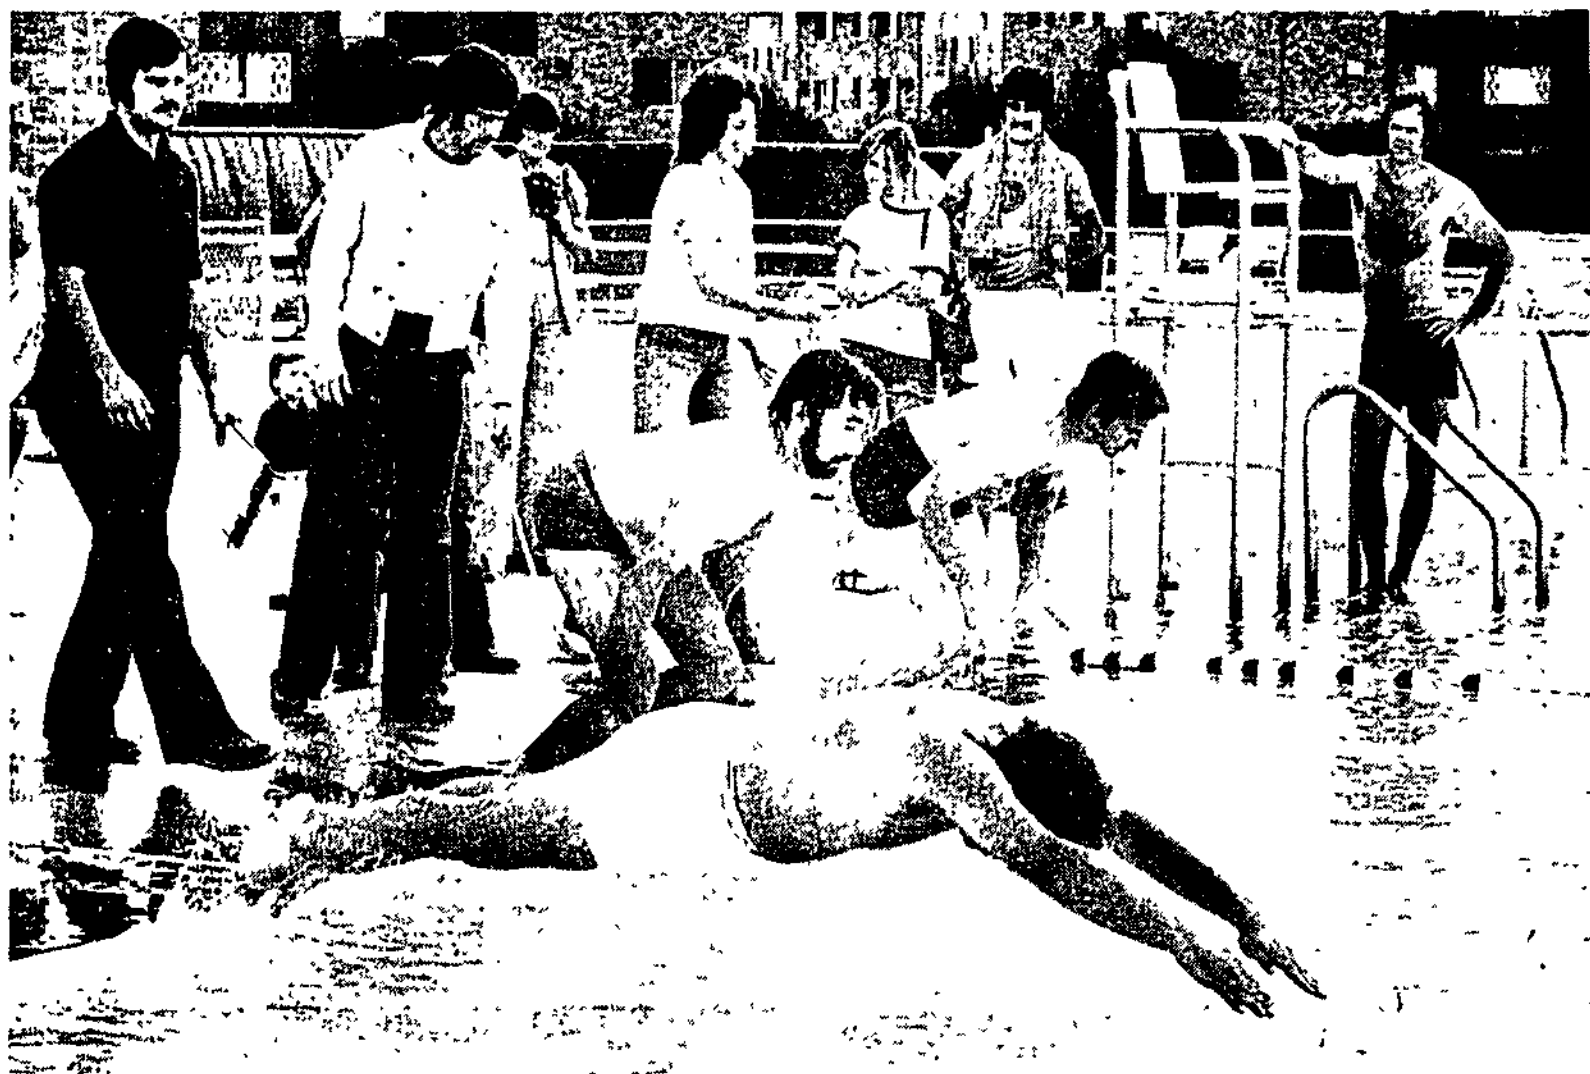

Free school lunches available to poor

A free-lunch program will be available to children unable to pay the full price of meals in Schaumburg Township Dist. 54 under the National School Lunch and Breakfast Program.

Annual family income and family size are used to determine whether a child is eligible for the free-lunch program. Other criteria such as unusual medical expenses and special education expenses also apply.

Application forms are available at the school offices. Information is confidential and will be used only to determine eligibility. Applications may be submitted throughout the school year and will be reviewed by Milton Derr, associate superintendent.

A complete copy of the program policy is on file in each school and may be reviewed by interested parents.

READY, SET . . . GO! And they're off in the swim portion of the Hoffman Estates Park District superstars competition held over the weekend. The competition was for persons in four age categories and designed to determine the all-around champion. The swimming contest was at Community Pool.

Would you believe he's 'out of shape'? Now it's Allen 'Superstar' Binder

by STIRLING MORITA

The Hoffman Estates Park District director, who said he is in the worst shape he has ever been in, "superstarred" during the weekend by topping his age division in the district's superstar competition.

Allen Binder shed his trousers and white, patent-leather loafers for gym trunks and gym shoes Saturday and Sunday to win a trophy and the title, "Superstar of Hoffman Estates," for the 30 to 39 category. Binder recorded firsts in the baseball hitting, tennis and golf contests placed in three other events and managed to stay afloat in the swimming race.

Binder's age division had the most participants in the whole competition — 12 men.

"I was a little surprised. I did much better than I thought I would," said Binder, who turned in a 13.4-second clocking for the 100-yard dash while running on an angle on the unlined track at Hoffman Estates High School.

THE DIRECTOR had broken his tennis racquet before the tennis contest and had to borrow four different racquets to win the tennis part of the 30's competition. He said he competed to win because it would look bad for the park director to come in at the tail end of the order.

Points were awarded for placing in each event and totaled to determine the champion of each age division. Competitors had to participate in seven of 10 scheduled events.

Winning the 40's age group title was Tony Stompanato, a director on the board of the Hoffman Estates Boys Club. Stompanato took six firsts in seven events.

In the 10 to 29 age category, Rick Dern narrowly beat out Bryant Murphy by a point for a trophy. In the same age division in women's competition, Nancy Ballyne finished first.

The champion in the 30 to 39 grouping for women was Mary Mullen, and for the 40 to 49 category, Lollie Guiney. Shirley Turpin, head of the women's auxiliary for the planned Community Hospital of Hoffman Estates finished second in the 40 to 49 division.

GORDON VANDERPE, who finished behind Stompanato, had his personal cheering section during the competition. Officials estimated that about 100 persons from his church, Church of the Cross, were out to spur Vanderpe on. Children paraded with signs, chanting, "Go, Gordie, Go."

"It's a good event for community spirit," said Binder.

He explained different events may be scheduled for next year's superstar competition. He hopes more people will participate in future competitions, he said.

While everyone was competing to win, they still had a good time, Binder added.

Besides the half-mile run and 100-yard dash, competitors swam two laps at Community Pool, bowled one game for score, hit short-approach golf shots for accuracy, played tennis and horseshoes. They also raced bicycles, hit baseballs for distance and shot six arrows each at targets.

Apartment cleanup cost: $2,200

by JOHN MAES

The owner of the buildings that include a townhouse at 529-J W. Dover Dr., will be billed for the $2,200 it cost the city to haul tons of garbage from the apartment during the weekend.

Wallace Schaeffer, deputy commissioner of public works for Des Plaines, said Monday the bill would be turned over to Robert Lubin, of Lubin Management Corp., owners of the 22-unit complex on the city's west side.

Schaeffer said his crews spent 15½ hours Friday and Saturday shoveling mounds of assorted trash and human excrement from the townhouse.

The tenant, Wayne Cleghorn, 38, was arrested last week by Des Plaines police and charged with violating a city ordinance for creating a public nuisance.

CITY WORKERS boarded up the residence after finishing the massive cleanup operation late Saturday afternoon. City Health Director Jean Branding said Lubin will also be given a deadline for "cleaning and extermination."

Residents of the development and his employer said Cleghorn was neat in appearance and had no idea he lived among heaps of garbage.

"He was a good man, no problems with him at all," said Nick Tarant, owner of Happy Foods, 4616 Oakton, Skokie, where Cleghorn worked for almost five years before he quit several days ago.

Cleghorn has a wife and three children, but they were not living in the apartment when police arrested him after responding to a call of a break-in at the address.

Mrs. Cleghorn works as an obstetrical nurse in Chicago, police said.

THE CLEGHORNS kept their windows and door shut all the time and those neighbors who noticed the odor thought it was sewage rather than the heaping debris accumulating in the house.

Pieces of paper were stuffed under the rear door of the residence and were stuck over a door window blocked in apparent attempts to cover up the mess inside.

ALTHOUGH SOME neighbors said they had complained to city health officials about an odor several months ago, Mrs. Branding said she received no "specific" complaints about the 229-J apartment other than general nuisance-abatement complaints that she said came from all over the city.

Lubin could not be reached for comment yesterday and Mrs. Cleghorn, when contacted, refused to answer questions about how long it had been since she had been in the apartment and why it was in such condition.

"I don't have anything to say," she said.

Teacher contract may be ratified at Thursday meet

Teachers in Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15 should have a contract to ratify this Thursday if negotiators' optimistic predictions come true.

No longer on the Illinois Education Assn.'s "critical" list of negotiating districts, Dist. 15 negotiators met Monday night with the feeling that a settlement was possible at that meeting.

IEA area representative David Tomchek, who also is negotiating for Dist. 15 teachers in the contract talks, said that because a full negotiating session was scheduled Monday night with indications of a settlement, the district was pulled off the statewide list of schools that may strike. Thomas Kelley, who heads the teachers' negotiating team, said he sees no threat of a strike in Dist. 15.

TOMCHIEK AND Richard Zwickback, attorney for Dist. 15, met Monday afternoon to discuss contract language. The two were scheduled to meet Aug. 14 but Tomchek's negotiating commitments in other local districts conflicted and forced him to postpone the meeting. Meanwhile, Dist. 15 Supt. Frank Whiteley and Kelley met to talk salary.

Kelley said teacher salary demands have been modified from an original request for an 18 per cent increase to a present 11 to 13 per cent increase. Under the last district contract, teachers are paid between $8,250 and $16,308. Kelley said he would like to see a settlement like that of Elk Grove Township Dist. 59, which settled in May for a teacher salary range of $9,100 to $19,170. Kelley said that salary demands might be traded off for language concessions in the final contract talks.

Whiteley said Monday that a settlement now is possible, if a final agreement were reached and teachers accepted it. Whiteley said that the board of education would probably ratify the agreement in its next regular meeting Sept. 11.

ents watch schools to help curb vandalism.

He also said the board should improve the lunch program, an issue he said has not been settled and won't be "until the board is willing to set up an equitable program for all students."

Mark Henfro, 747 Kent Ct., Hanover Park, who has advocated bus safety legislation, and Adam J. Jelen Jr., 329 Baxter Ln., Hoffman Estates, a board member from 1971-74, also have announced they will seek appointment to the board.

Jaycees to push Operation ID

Hoffman Estates Jaycees will be going door-to-door starting Sunday to offer the services of Operation Identification — a program in which citizens mark valuables to discourage burglaries and thefts.

Jaycees will split up into teams to cover various areas of Hoffman Estates. They will offer information about the program and how it has fared in other parts of the country. If the resident desires to take advantage of the program, he may sign a sheet and receive for three days an engraving pen and a specially made Jaycee window sticker.

The pens have been available at the Hoffman Estates police station since the program started in February.

Residents are encouraged to use the pens to engrave driver's license or social security numbers on their stereos, televisions and other valuable items. Authorities recommend usage of driver's license numbers because they are the ones most readily identifiable by law enforcement officials.

THE PROGRAM, which was started in California, has been said to be a deterrent to burglaries because thieves are reluctant to handle goods that are easily traced back to the owners.

The Jaycee goal is to get at least 1,000 households to use the engraver's pen. Police officials in the village have said the program has received only a lukewarm reception from residents.

After three days, the user is required to return the pen to the Jaycees.

JAYCEES HOPE to make the program a success or give it so much publicity that it will become a self-sustaining effort.

Jaycee officials said the door-to-door project is the first in a series of planned projects that will work closer with the community than in the past.

It is expected that the project will take about a month.

Open hostility between two factions of the Schaumburg United Party necessitates internal work for party members before its slate can be put together for the April village elections.

With the Oct. 24 convention coming up and a six-member slate to nominate at least one problem is imminent.

There are leaders who resent the potential candidacy of Jim Blankenship for trustee. They feel he has not "paid his dues" in service to the party and the community.

Blankenship, appointed to the zoning board in May seems to have heavy top administrative support earned in part from recent work with the Unit School District Committee.

Some village officials say Blankenship appears to have been nudged out of a March trustee appointment by his opposition.

Ed Olsen, a former administration foe turned SUP supporter, was named to the village board vacancy even though he had not submitted his name to an SUP nominating committee.

SCHAUMBURG TOWNSHIP residents are not the only persons who will benefit from the Woodfield 76, a $250 million urban development proposed on the Union Oil property.

Ten acres of the 237-acre site at Golf Road and Rte. 53 is located in Elk Grove Township and will benefit local government there, including High School Dist. 214.

HOFFMAN ESTATES officials say Village Pres. Virginia Hayter can now go on "the war path" after being presented last night with a Twinbrook YMCA Indian Princess headdress and award.

SEND BIRTHDAY greetings to Schaumburg Airport Mgr. Ken Wolmer who said he celebrated his 29th again Sunday. A birthday wish is also in order for Schaumburg's John J. Carsello who marked another year Monday. Carsello is recuperating from serious illness at Chicago's Resurrection Hospital.

PHIL OSSIFER talks about the latest driving maneuver classified by traffic engineers as the O-turn. "It was invented by the lady who made a U-turn and then changed her mind."

Area bicyclist dies in Missouri

WASHINGTON, Mo. — A 24-year-old Hoffman Estates man and his bicycling companion were killed Sunday when their bicycles were struck from behind by a car on Missouri Rte. 47 near the Franklin and Warren county lines.

State highway patrol officials identified the victims as Clarence A. Walder, 150 Bradley Ln., a son of Dr. and Mrs. Harry Walder, and Pamela Jean Moody, 21, Downers Grove. Both were students at Western Illinois University at Macomb, Ill.

Authorities said the two were thrown from their bicycles after they were struck by a car driven by Thomas A. Glastetter, 17, Marthaville. There were no charges filed in connection with the mishap.

Funeral services for Mr. Walder are being handled by Ahlgren and Sons Funeral Home, 330 W. Golf Rd., Schaumburg.

Art, antique fest Sept. 21

The Service League of Rush-Presbyterian-St. Luke's Medical Center North will hold an art and antique festival from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Sept. 21 at Schaumburg High School, 1100 W. Schaumburg Rd.

The event is open to all art and antique exhibitors. Booth rent is $10.

Those interested in exhibiting are asked to send a notice, with a check for the fee, to Patricia Brandenburg, 1736 Weathersfield Way, Schaumburg.

Tentative $34.3 million high schools budget shown

Expenses in High School Dist. 211 will be about $34.3 million next year, according to a tentative budget placed on public display Thursday by the Board of Education.

The budget includes $15.4 million in the district's education fund, an increase of 29 per cent over expenses last year. The increases in next year's education fund stem from increased teacher and administrative salaries and a $750,000 reserve for construction of the district's sixth high school.

THE DISTRICT'S building fund totals $3.9 million next year, an increase of about 77 per cent. The increased costs stem from maintenance salaries, the construction of additional special education facilities in the district and remodeling of school buildings so they will meet the state Life Safety Code.

Dist. 211's revenue increased this year due to an increase in the assessed value of property in the district. Next year's assessed value is estimated at $637 million compared to $508 million last year, said Dist. 211 Business Mgr. James Slater. He said the district would lower the tax rate next year by 4 cents to $2.61 per $100 assessed value.

Next year's budget provides for a growth in enrollment of about 9 per cent and the hiring of about 50 additional teachers.

The board of education will review the tentative budget when it meets Sept. 26 before giving it final approval.

Committee recommendation accepted

Mount Prospect pupils to go to Des Plaines

by BOB GALLAS

The Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 Board of Education ended several weeks of controversy Monday night by voting to accept a committee recommendation which would send Mount Prospect school children to Des Plaines schools this fall.

The board voted 3-1 to accept the committee's recommendation with the lone objecting vote cast by Des Plaines resident, board member Judith Zanca.

The decision received mixed reaction from persons at the meeting.

Township looking for misaddressed New Town bills

Tax bills for several hundred homeowners in the New Town section of Mount Prospect are being delayed because the bills were mistakenly sent to the homeowners' discontinued Prospect Heights addresses.

Wheeling Township Assessor Marshall Theroux, who is attempting to track down the wayward tax bills, said Monday "at least several hundred were mis-guided."

The bills apparently were sent by the county treasurer's office to the homeowners' former street addresses, when they lived in unincorporated Prospect Heights. After the area was annexed to the village of Mount Prospect in 1971, most of the street names were changed to avoid duplication with existing Mount Prospect streets, and numbers were changed to fit in with the village's numbering system.

HOMESOWNERS WHO informed the county of their change of address received tax bills on schedule when they were mailed two weeks ago. However, tax bills of those who hadn't notified the county were returned by the U. S. Postal Service in Prospect Heights to the county as undeliverable.

A change was made necessary due to overcrowding at Jay.

The committee's recommendation, to send future John Jay students to Brentwood and High Ridge Knolls schools, came under fire from parents from the two Des Plaines schools who said they were not involved in the decision making process.

During the meeting two main proposals were considered by the board. One called for solving the Jay overcrowding problem immediately. The other called for a district-wide study of boundaries, delaying a boundary change at least until the first of the year.

After the board's decision Mrs. Zanca said she would call for a district-wide boundary study at the board's next regular meeting.

The change will affect 12 children this fall. Eventually an estimated 59 children from Crystal Towers and Forest Cove apartments in Mount Prospect will go to Brentwood. An estimated 26 children from Laurel Estates apartments will eventually go to High Ridge Knolls. No children will be transferred from Jay and those already attending Jay from the three complexes, which are not yet completed, will be allowed to continue there.

Trustees study tax ordinance tonight

The Village of Mount Prospect's annual tax levy ordinance will be considered tonight in an informal meeting of the village board.

The board, meeting as a committee of the whole, also will consider procedures for devising the 1975-76 village budget.

The meeting will begin at 7:30 p.m. in the village hall, 112 E. Northwest Hwy.

JUST IN TIME to help youngsters en route to Westbrook School in Mount Prospect is a newly installed traffic signal on Busse Road, just south of Central Road. Maureen O'Boyle and Diana Reinhardt test the new light. Half the funds were provided by the county and half by the village.

Schools get final touches for new year

by BOB GALLAS

While most students in Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 are enjoying their last days of summer vacation this week, district staff members are busy getting ready for the first day of school, Sept. 3.

An estimated 10,833 students are expected to trek back to 21 district schools next week, down slightly from last year's enrollment of about 11,150, said Al Stone, assistant superintendent for personnel.

About 53 new teachers in the district officially started the school year Monday. All will attend a week-long series of special workshops. The rest of the 532 district teachers will officially start Friday, attending individual building workshops, although some teachers have reported early to their assigned schools to prepare for next week.

WHILE MANY neighboring school districts are starting back to school this week, Dist. 59 will start the traditional day after Labor Day, Sept. 3, due to remodeling going on at two district junior high schools.

"We wanted to give the contractors as many working days as possible," said Arthur Perry, assistant superintendent for administrative services. Virtually all indoor remodeling at Grove Junior High School in Elk Grove Village and Dempster Junior High School in Des Plaines will halt when school starts, although outdoor work will continue, according to Perry. Construction will restart next summer when school closes.

With the seasonal crunch of rewaxing floors and other maintenance at other schools near completion, a beefed up maintenance crew of 20 to 30 men has been assigned to Grove and Dempster to assure cleanup operations at the two schools are completed before school starts.

NEW HEATING AND ventilating systems have been installed at both schools and work has almost been completed, according to Perry. The assistant superintendent added that work at both schools during the summer had progressed right on schedule, if not a little ahead of schedule.

by JOHN MAES

The owner of the buildings that include a townhouse at 529-J W. Dover Dr., will be billed for the $2,200 it cost the city to haul tons of garbage from the apartment during the weekend.

Wallace Schaeffer, deputy commissioner of public works for Des Plaines, said Monday the bill would be turned over to Robert Lubin, of Lubin Management Corp., owners of the 22-unit complex on the city's west side.

Schaeffer said his crews spent 15½ hours Friday and Saturday shoveling mounds of assorted trash and human excrement from the townhouse.

The tenant, Wayne Cleghorn, 38, was arrested last week by Des Plaines police and charged with violating a city ordinance for creating a public nuisance.

CITY WORKERS boarded up the residence after finishing the massive cleanup operation late Saturday afternoon. City Health Director Jean Branding said Lubin will also be given a deadline for "cleaning and extermination."

Residents of the development and his employer said Cleghorn was neat in appearance and had no idea he lived among heaps of garbage.

"He was a good man, no problems with him at all," said Nick Tarant, owner of Happy Foods, 4616 Oakton, Skokie, where Cleghorn worked for almost five years before he quit several days ago.

Cleghorn has a wife and three children, but they were not living in the apartment when police arrested him after responding to a call of a break-in at the address.

Mrs. Cleghorn works as an obstetrical nurse in Chicago, police said.

"THE CLEGHORNS kept their windows and door shut all the time and those neighbors who noticed the odor thought it was sewage rather than the heaping debris accumulating in the house.

Pieces of paper were stuffed under the rear door of the residence and were stuck over a door window blocked in apparent attempts to cover up the mess inside.

ALTHOUGH SOME neighbors said they had complained to city health officials about an odor several months ago, Mrs. Branding said she received no "specific" complaints about the 229-J apartment other than general nuisance-abatement complaints that she said came from all over the city.

Lubin could not be reached for comment yesterday and Mrs. Cleghorn, when contacted, refused to answer questions about how long it had been since she had been in the apartment and why it was in such condition.

"I don't have anything to say," she said.

Architects hope Maryville bids can be let soon

Architects in charge of the new Maryville School project say they are still hopeful of letting bids for construction of the school by October.

Anthony J. Siros of Fields, Goldman and Magee, Mount Vernon, chief architect for the project, said Monday final design plans have yet to be fully approved by the Illinois Capital Development Board. The ICDB must approve design plans since it is providing nearly $1 million toward construction of the school.

Last week the ICDB okayed roughly 40 per cent of design drawings completed thus far and directed architects to prepare design specifications for use by prospective contractors for bidding.

SIROS SAID ARCHITECTS are hoping the ICDB will agree to hold only one more meeting for a final review of design plans. If the ICDB decides it wants to schedule more than one review session, it may delay bidding by several weeks, Siros said. Architects are planning another meeting with the ICDB either the third or fourth week in September, Siros added.

Although the school will be under the jurisdiction of River Trails Dist. 26, bids for construction of the new school will be let by the ICDB. Siros speculated the bids probably will be opened at the board's LaGrange office.

Architects are aiming for a September, 1975, opening for the new building, but Siros said if bid letting is set back much past October, the school may not be ready for occupancy until some months past September.

The new school will serve students from Maryville Academy, Des Plaines, who now attend River Road School. River Road must be replaced because it does not meet state life safety codes.

THE SCHOOL WILL be located on the Maryville Academy grounds in Des Plaines on a five-acre parcel of land at the intersection of Gregory Street and River Road.

According to preliminary designs the new school will be a 30,000 square foot, one-story building which will be basically rectangular in shape with various juts to house instructional modules.

Lloyd Demel, Dist. 26 board member, said last week he would like the board to begin considering a name for the new school. Demel suggested the name of Winston Harwood, who served as superintendent in the district for eight years before his retirement in 1971.

The board member added that other names for consideration should be presented by other board members.

IT HAPPENS EVERY fall — school registration, that is. of roofs at 18 district buildings began and heating and ventilating work at two other schools has been completed. Roofing repairs have been completed at Forest View School in Mount Prospect and Brentwood School in Des Plaines, said Adolph Danta, director of buildings and grounds for the district. Repairs are nearing completion at Clearmont School and Grove Junior High School in Elk Grove Village and John Jay School in Mount Prospect, he said.

Roofing repairs will continue at the remainder of the buildings as long as weather permits, according to Danta. The entire project, which will cost nearly $500,000, probably won't be completed until the end of next summer at the earliest, Danta said.

WORK IS "99 per cent complete," Danta said, at John Jay School in Mount Prospect and Adm. Richard E. Byrd School in Elk Grove Village. Both schools underwent major repairs to heating and ventilating systems during the summer.

Students going back to school will also have to remember different starting times, aimed at keeping junior high students away from dark bus stops during the winter.

Kindergarten to fifth grade buildings will start five minutes later than last year. Grade school buildings will operate from 9:10 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.

Dempster and Grove Junior High Schools along with Friendship Junior High School in Des Plaines will start 15 minutes later and run from 8:35 a.m. to 3:10 p.m.

Students at Lively Junior High School in Elk Grove Village and Holmes Junior High in Mount Prospect will start 10 minutes later, running from 8:05 a.m. to 2:45 p.m.

Parks offer more than 50 programs for fall

A full schedule of more than 50 fall programs has been prepared by the Mount Prospect Park District.

The latest issue of "Fun Talk" listing fall programs has been mailed and should be received by residents of the park district this week.

Two new programs are being offered — aikido, the Oriental art of self defense and preschool trampoline.

Two special events also are being planned. One is a dried flower arranging demonstration by Kellen's Country Florists in Mount Prospect from 10 to 11 a.m. Oct. 11 at the Lions Park Recreation Center. The other is a Halloween party for youngsters in grades 1 through 6, from 4 to 5:30 p.m. Oct. 31 at the Lions Park Recreation Center gym.

THERE IS NO FEE for either of the special programs, but advance registration is being taken at the park district office in Lions Park, 411 S. Maple St., or 255-5380.

Besides the new and special programs, others being offered range from sewing to football with boxing, badminton, belly dancing, ceramics, tinkering and yoga in between.

Most classes begin meeting the week of Sept. 30. Registration will begin at 9 a.m. Sept. 19 at the Lions Park Recreation Center, with doors opening at 8 a.m.

After the initial registration day, registration will be available between 9 a.m. and noon and between 1 and 5 p.m. Monday through Friday and from 8 a.m. to 1 p.m. Saturday at Lions Park until activities begin or classes are filled. Fees must be paid at the time of registration. Each person can register one other family besides his own.

Copies of "Fun Talk" are available at the park district office.

Honesty doesn't always pay too well

Kyle E. Mock, 600 Oriole Ln., found a bank bag with $1,109.14 in it Saturday evening in the Randhurst Shopping Center parking lot. He took the bag to the Mount Prospect police station.

As it was explained shortly thereafter, the bank bag was filled with receipts from LePetit Cafe, a restaurant inside the shopping center, 999 N. Elmhurst Rd. An agent for the restaurant, Richard S. Fenton, had placed the bag on the roof of his car, while he unlocked the car door. He then drove off, forgetting the bag which fell off as the car moved.

Fenton's destination had been the nearby First National Bank of Mount Prospect. According to police, Mock received only a thank-you for his good deed.

Thieves loot another drug store

For the second weekend in a row, burglars broke into a Mount Prospect drug store by lowering themselves through a roof vent opening. It was the third such burglary in the past four weeks.

Saturday night's burglary at the Walgreen Co. store, 1010 Mount Prospect Plaza, was similar to the Aug. 18 burglary at Keefer's Pharmacy, 5 W. Prospect Ave., and a third burglary at a doctor's office, 1060 W. Northwest Hwy., the weekend of Aug. 3-4.

In all three burglaries, quantities of drugs were stolen. Taken in the Walgreen's burglary was an estimated $400 worth of dexamy, eskatrol and dexedrine. Also taken were two calculators, valued at $100.

Police said numerous other drugs were found scattered on the floor of the drug store.

Cash and an undisclosed amount of drugs was taken in the Keefer's burglary. In the burglary at the doctor's office, valium, penicillin, some 500 needles and syringes, a typewriter, a skin analyzer, an incubator oven and VD medicine were stolen.

insurance coverage plan for all grades is available for $16.

An itemized receipt will be issued for all fees that are paid. Fees for field trips will be assessed during the school year.

STUDENTS ARE ALSO required to return a completed dental inspection card as soon as possible. Students entering Dist. 57 schools for the first time must also have a physical examination forwarded from the last school attended or arrange for a new examination.

Supply needs for each grade will be announced by classroom teachers and physical education teachers will inform students what equipment is needed for gym classes.

Classes begin Thursday. The morning kindergarten class will run from 8:55 a.m. to 11:30 a.m. and the afternoon class will run from 12:55 p.m. to 3:30 p.m.

Girl Scouts plan uniform exchange day

Girl Scout Service Unit 642 of Mount Prospect will sponsor a uniform exchange day Sept. 12 at Park View School, 805 Burning Bush Ln., Mount Prospect.

Uniforms may be brought to the school from 3 to 5 p.m. today and on Sept. 5 from 3 to 5 p.m. Donors should include their name, address, uniform size and price of the uniform when they drop off the articles.

Uniforms for Brownies, junior cadets and Scout leaders will be accepted. Persons wishing to purchase one of the uniforms or exchange a uniform they have may do so on the exchange day, Sept. 12.

Woods to head group

12-man citizen panel to study parks' plight

by JOE SWICKARD

Formal announcement of a select citizens' committee to be headed by former Village Pres. John G. Woods to solve the financial problems facing the Arlington Heights Park District will be made today.

The 12-man committee, is expected to come up with an "action plan" within four to six weeks to bail out the park district.

The committee was drawn from a list of 20 prospective candidates representing civic, business and governmental leaders in the village. Official letters of confirmation were mailed out over the weekend, but the park district declined to release the names before Tuesday.

GOALS OF THE committee include "exploration of all alternative parks and recreation financing," according to Katherine Muller, park district vice president and chairman of the park liaison group to the committee. Mrs. Muller said the committee will have the option of recommending the dissolution of the district if financial rescue is not feasible.

"We want to give them the broad ability to look at all methods of financing recreations. We purposely did not tie it to the district specifically. It is not necessary for them to go through that channel of action," she said.

She said the district "already knows the options. We want a plan of action from the committee. We want them to present us with a plan."

THE PARK DISTRICT has been in financial trouble for several years. District officials blame limitations, under the state constitution, on sources of revenues for their plight.

Park districts, as separate governmental bodies, receive operating funds through property taxes and activities fees. Officials said costs keep rising while the district's tax base is leveling off and may decline.

The district has already eliminated most free activities in favor of those that can pay their own way.

The current budget does not allow for "preventive maintenance" of district buildings, and rising material costs are cutting into general upkeep of the property.

THE DISTRICT could raise the tax rate through a referendum, but park board members are leery of one in view of the present mood of the village residents toward raising their own taxes. A park referendum and an anti-flooding bond issue both failed in the past two years.

If the district did dissolve, the village could carry most of the load through a parks and recreation department. The tax monies that now go to the district would go to the village, which could supply additional funds to pick up the slack in the budget.

The select committee is expected to meet next week for the first time. The park district group, Mrs. Muller, Bruce Everly and Katy Graham, will act as a liaison to the full district board and the committee, but will not have more than advisory status within the select committee.

Coronets' director to retire?

A banquet Thursday honoring the Coronets of Arlington Heights' third undefeated year of drill team competition will be an affair of celebration and sadness.

Lynn Lindstrom, founder and director of the Coronets, is expected to announce her retirement before the 64 drill team members at the banquet.

The Coronets will keep on marching though, since most of the instructors plan to stay on, and a new director is being sought.

The Coronets returned Aug. 21 from drill team competition in Ithaca, N.Y., where they won the Drum Corps International title. "Winning the DCI title means the Coronets have been undefeated for three years," said Kathy Dougherty of Arlington Heights, cocaptain of the Coronets. "That's in parades and contests. That's in everything."

The title was the fourth drill team contest the Coronets have won this year. The Coronets also won VFW and American Legion sponsored state competitions this year. It was the 10th straight year the Coronets have won VFW state competition.

In July the Coronets brought home a four-foot trophy for winning the South Milwaukee Drill Team Competition three years in a row. Like the competition in Ithaca, the Coronets competed against 12 out-of-state teams in the south Milwaukee competition.

Mrs. Lindstrom, who founded the group in 1965, is retiring to devote more time to her family in Milwaukee, Miss Dougherty said. Mrs. Lindstrom's husband, who wrote the Coronets' drills, will also no longer be connected with the Coronets.

"We're really going to miss the Lindstroms. They are fantastic people and they are our friends," said Miss Dougherty. "They taught us such discipline and how to be good winners."

School board lets refuse contracts

Contracts for picking up refuse at local schools were awarded by the Wheeling-Butte Grove Dist. 21 Board of Education.

The Laseke Disposal Co. will service Arlington Heights schools at a cost of $1,728, with the Wheeling Disposal Co. to service Wheeling schools for $6,390 and the Buffalo Grove Disposal Co. to service schools there for $4,385.70.

A contract was also given to the Angle Steel Equipment Co. to furnish and install lockers at London Junior High School for $4,203.

Buses still the way, Luisada believes

by KURT BAER

The need for public transportation within the Northwest suburbs is as great today as it ever was, says Claude Luisada, the man who tried but failed to run a profitable commuter bus service in Arlington Heights.

It was a year ago that Metron Systems Corp. began shuttling commuters to and from the Arlington Heights train station, an enterprise that was to end in financial collapse nine months later.

But though the system may have been ill-fated, it was not ill-conceived, Luisada insists today.

"Nothing has happened to change my mind about that," he says. What he has changed his mind about is the notion that public transportation will ever turn a profit.

"Maybe if you have a million dollars' backing for 18 to 24 months at full operation, along with all the necessary promotion, you might have a fighting chance," he says.

LUISADA ADMITS that the commuter bus shuttle was undercapitalized. "We started on a shoestring," he says. But he also criticizes the Arlington Heights Village Board's decision not to provide an operating subsidy to keep the buses running. "I think they should have bit the bullet and kept something going until the Regional Transportation Authority could take over funding."

Despite its financial failure, the commuter service itself was good and couldn't have been expanded with more buses, Luisada says. "People have told us they felt we were providing a very good service."

At the time it ceased operation on May 31, Metron was using two village-owned buses, purchased at a cost of $57,000, and a small van. More buses, even if they had been second hand, would have permitted the company to run more routes, and meet more trains which eventually would have meant more riders, Luisada reasons.

The 200 passengers who were riding Metron's buses each working day is a

An emergency light-and-loudspeaker system was stolen from atop a police squad car Sunday night, according to the Arlington Heights police.

According to reports, the squad car was parked in the Municipal Building

The unit was valued in excess of $150 by the police department.

Apartment cleanup cost: $2,200

by JOHN MAES

The owner of the buildings that include a townhouse at 529-J W. Dover Dr., will be billed for the $2,200 it cost the city to haul tons of garbage from the apartment during the weekend.

Wallace Schaeffer, deputy commissioner of public works for Des Plaines, said Monday the bill would be turned over to Robert Lubin, of Lubin Management Corp., owners of the 22-unit complex on the city's west side.

Schaeffer said his crews spent 15 1/2 hours Friday and Saturday shoveling mounds of assorted trash and human excrement from the townhouse.

The tenant, Wayne Cleghorn, 38, was arrested last week by Des Plaines police and charged with violating a city ordinance for creating a public nuisance.

CITY WORKERS boarded up the residence after finishing the massive

"He was a good man, no problems with him at all," said Nick Tarant, owner of Happy Foods, 4616 Oakton, Skokie, where Cleghorn worked for almost five years before he quit several days ago.

Cleghorn has a wife and three children, but they were not living in the apartment when police arrested him after responding to a call of a break-in at the address.

Scott's O'Hare noise suit may affect entire U.S.

An anti-noise suit filed by Illinois Atty. Gen. William J. Scott could have a far-reaching effect on operations at O'Hare Airport and other airports throughout the nation.

Scott has charged that the Federal Aviation Administration and the Civil Aeronautics Board, which control commercial flight operations and scheduling, have failed to comply with regulations of the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969.

The suit is in response to hundreds of complaints his office has received. Scott said, O'Hare-area residents report that they cannot talk, sleep or otherwise live comfortably in their homes because of overhead jet noise, he said.

FAA officials said fewer complaints come from Arlington Heights compared to the number from Park Ridge, Niles and other northwest Chicago areas. Arlington Heights has been spared the noise, said Peter Edison of the FAA, because the repaving of two runways resulted in rerouting of jet traffic.

FILING HIS SUIT Friday in U.S. District Court on behalf of the half million persons living in the O'Hare area, Scott said the FAA, and CAB have failed to conduct environmental impact studies, including hearings, and have not published environmental impact statements relating to jet traffic at O'Hare.

Scott said the FAA could take action on noise control with existing technology and procedures that are effective. He suggested two-segment approaches that bring planes in higher for landings; retro-fitting existing jet engines with sound-absorbent materials and quieter fans; restricting use of airports to newer, quieter jets; initiating curfews during late hours and designating approaches over less populated areas, such as forest preserves, rivers and expressways.

If Scott's suit is successful, the same requirements could be forced at all major airports in the United States. He said the anti-noise measures are particularly necessary now because the FAA has indicated it will promote additional flights at O'Hare and other airports in the next 10 years. He said O'Hare already has 1,800 to 2,000 landings and takeoffs a day.

THE FAA has been inundated recently with complaints from residents who live under flight paths being used temporarily while regular runways are repaved at O'Hare. Most complaints are coming from the Park Ridge area, with some from Des Plaines and Mount Prospect.

The recent complaints are not related to Scott's suit. The FAA warned the noise patterns would change during the two months of repaving on two major runways at O'Hare, although only one runway is being done at a time.

One east-west runway, 9R/27L, is scheduled for completion this week, but its closure required the use of a relatively inactive runway in the southeast corner of the airport.

The next runway under construction is

Buses still the way, Luisada believes

"very misleading number," he says, because the buses in use were nearly filled for each of the three trips they were able to make during the rush hour.

METHON SYSTEMS had only started to meet the need for public transportation in Arlington Heights when it was forced to abandon its bus service, Luisada says.

There is a need for transportation to area office buildings, industries, shopping centers and other traffic generators. There is a need for dial-a-bus among the elderly, persons who do not drive, families who cannot afford a second, or even a first car, and youngsters aged 10-16, he says.

"People are generally skeptical of public transportation because it hasn't met their needs," Luisada says, adding that he has detected a general slackening of interest in public transportation in the Chicago area over the past several months.

"The two biggest misconceptions are that we don't need public transportation and that nobody's going to ride it even if we have it," he says.

Luisada identifies at least four forces pushing the Northwest suburbs toward a bus system — rising gasoline prices, the increased cost of car ownership, worsening traffic congestion, and additional numbers of senior citizens in the population.

The door is open, he says, for another bus company, backed by the RTA, to begin service in the suburbs. "I don't think we ruined it for the future for Arlington Heights. I know we didn't leave our passengers with a bad taste in their mouths."

The statement underscores Luisada's belief that Metron did not short-change its riders. "The only one who got short-changed is sitting right here," he says.

Omni-House: Youth Services

Land deal may force youth bureau to move

by JILL BETTNER

Omni-House: Youth Services Bureau, 57 S. Wolf Rd., may be relocating next summer. A Glenview realty firm has applied for business zoning on the Wolf Road site and will purchase the land if zoning is approved.

Richard (Ned) Lyke & Associates has asked that the Omni-House property be rezoned from residential special use to business zoning for professional offices. The request was to be considered Monday night by the village board.

According to the petition for rezoning, the contract purchase price on the property is $92,500. The owners are Earl and Anita Jensen, who formerly lived in the red-brick ranch home on the site.

The Jensens obtained the residential special use zoning on the property last year that allowed Omni-House to move in. The counseling agency signed a lease last January to rent the house for one year with the option of renewing the agreement for an additional six months.

PETER DIGRE, Omni-House executive director, said Monday the counseling agency will continue to rent the house until the option expires next July.

If Lyke & Associates purchase the property, Digre said the decision facing the Omni-House board of directors will be whether to seek another location for one central office or set up several branch facilities in the area.

Omni-House serves Wheeling, Buffalo Grove, Arlington Heights, Prospect Heights and Mount Prospect.

Digre said Omni-House had an opportunity to bid on the property, but decided against making a large real estate investment in favor of using available funds to provide services.

"We could have bid if we had wanted to," he said, "but we didn't want to get strapped with a large debt for capital development while we're trying to go on with programs. We decided it would be better to keep the money in programs."

DIGRE ALSO SAID it was understood when the original lease was signed on Grocery cart hit by car; 2 hurt

An Arlington Heights mother and child were slightly injured Saturday when their grocery cart was struck by a car in the Northport Shopping Center Jewel Food Store parking lot.

Treated at Northwest Community Hospital were Lillian A. Prothero, 34, of 1612 S. Waverly, and her daughter, Stephanie, 2, for scrapes and bruises.

Police said Mrs. Prothero was wheeling her child in a cart across the parking lot when she was struck by a car driven by Lynn Runyan, 23, of 1010 Sterling, Palatine.

Mrs. Prothero told police after the first contact the car backed up and hit the cart again. Both collisions were minor and the cart was not turned over, police said.

The car then left the parking lot. Miss Runyan was stopped several blocks later by police after witnesses took down the license number.

Police charged the driver with failure to stop and give aid and information at the scene of an accident.

Gun stolen from car at race track

Arlington Heights police are investigating the reported theft of a pistol from a car trunk Saturday at Arlington Park.

Lafayette R. Gerien, 47, told police a .38-caliber pistol was taken from the trunk of a 1973 Cadillac limousine at the race track. Gerien, Chicago, is the driver and body guard for Harry M. Shore, of Chicago, police said.

Gerien told police he carries the weapon, but always takes it off and locks it in the trunk while visiting the track with Shore, a mattress company executive.

CLOSING OF RUNWAY 9R/27L at O'Hare airport for repaving has resulted in extra jet noise for residents northeast of the airport because planes are using alternate runways. Work is to begin soon at 14R/32L, which may mean quieter skies for part of the Northwest suburbs.

Police charge local man after his wife complains

An Arlington Heights man was charged with unlawful possession of a firearm and possession of stolen property last weekend after police answered a battery complaint from his wife.

According to reports, Harold C. Borom, 28, of 500 W. Rand Rd., was arrested by Arlington Heights police in the parking lot of his apartment building after his wife, Melodine, 27, charged that he struck her.

Police said that while at the scene, Mrs. Borom told them her husband had a rifle. Police said a .30-06 caliber semi-automatic rifle was found in the front closet of his apartment.

Borom was charged with unlawful possession of the weapon because he had been convicted of a felony within the past five years, police said.

A search of Borom's leased 1974 Cadillac revealed a purse reported stolen in Chicago, police said. The purse, belonging to Rosemary Caobianco, of Melrose Park, reportedly contained several credit cards that had been used since the purse was taken.

Police said a quantity of tools, a pry bar and two flashlights with red-painted lenses were also found in the car.

Six patrolmen and detectives took part in the arrest and investigation of the incidents.

Borom was released on $5,000 bond, pending a Sept. 6 appearance in the Arlington Heights branch of the Cook County Court on the charges of possession of stolen property and firearms and battery.

Schools get final touches for start of another year

by BOB GALLAS

While most students in Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 are enjoying their last days of summer vacation this week, district staff members are busy getting ready for the first day of school, Sept. 3.

An estimated 10,833 students are expected to trek back to 21 district schools next week, down slightly from last year's enrollment of about 11,150, said Al Stone, assistant superintendent for personnel.

About 55 new teachers in the district officially started the school year Monday. All will attend a week-long series of special workshops. The rest of the 552 district teachers will officially start Friday, attending individual building workshops, although some teachers have reported early to their assigned schools to prepare for next week.

WHILE MANY neighboring school districts are starting back to school this week, Dist. 59 will start the traditional day after Labor Day, Sept. 3, due to remodeling going on at two district junior high schools.

"We wanted to give the contractors as many working days as possible," said Arthur Perry, assistant superintendent for administrative services. Virtually all indoor remodeling at Grove Junior High School in Elk Grove Village and Dempster Junior High School in Des Plaines will halt when school starts, although outdoor work will continue, according to Perry. Construction will restart next summer when school closes.

With the seasonal crunch of rewaxing floors and other maintenance at other schools near completion, a beefed up maintenance crew of 20 to 30 men has been assigned to Grove and Dempster to assure cleanup operations at the two schools are completed before school starts.

NEW HEATING AND ventilating systems have been installed at both schools and work has almost been completed, according to Perry. The assistant superintendent added that work at both schools during the summer had progressed right on schedule, if not a little ahead of schedule.

In addition to major work at the two junior highs this summer, major repairs of roofs at 18 district buildings began and heating and ventilating work at two other schools has been completed.

Roofing repairs have been completed at Forest View School in Mount Prospect and Brentwood School in Des Plaines, said Adolph Danta, director of buildings and grounds for the district. Repairs are nearing completion at Clearmont School and Grove Junior High School in Elk Grove Village and John Jay School in Mount Prospect, he said.

Roofing repairs will continue at the remainder of the buildings as long as weather permits, according to Danta. The entire project, which will cost nearly $500,000, probably won't be completed until the end of next summer at the earliest, Danta said.

WORK IS "99 per cent complete," Danta said, at John Jay School in Mount Prospect and Adm. Richard E. Byrd School in Elk Grove Village. Both schools underwent major repairs to heating and ventilating systems during the summer.

Students going back to school will also have to remember different starting times, aimed at keeping junior high students away from dark bus stops during the winter.

Kindergarten to fifth grade buildings will start five minutes later than last year. Grade school buildings will operate from 9:10 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.

Dempster and Grove Junior High Schools along with Friendship Junior High School in Des Plaines will start 15 minutes later and run from 8:35 a.m. to 3:10 p.m.

Students at Lively Junior High School in Elk Grove Village and Holmes Junior High in Mount Prospect will start 10 minutes later, running from 8:05 a.m. to 2:45 p.m.

Schools plan management course

Wheeling-Buffer Grove Dist. 21 will offer a management training course for employees interested in going into school administration.

Dist. 21 Supt. Kenneth Gill last week told the school board he intends to set up the course as part of the district's $108,000 federally funded Self Renewal Project. It probably will not be offered for college credit, he said.

The course is to provide the basics in management by objective, budgeting and other facets of school administration for persons interested in becoming principals, coordinators or top level administrators.

Beginning in September, the class probably will meet monthly or bimonthly and present Dist. 21 administrators will be involved in teaching the class.

Gill said he intends to make the course available each year from now on.

"I intend to go on with this and build up a cadre of people available so we can move our own people up as the opportunities become open," he said.
